Several reviews for The British Critic at various dates; Thoughts on the Study of the Gospels, 1842; Sermons on the Characters of the Old Testament, 1856; The Beginning of the Book of Genesis, with Notes and Reflections, 1861; The Psalms interpreted of Christ, vol. 1., 1864 (no other volumes were published); A Memoir of the Rev. R. A. Suckling, late Perpetual Curate of Bussage, 1852; A Harmony of the Four Gospels, 1850; Sermons on the Epistles and Gospels, 3 vols., 1853; Sermons on the Female Characters of Holy Scripture, 1859; The Apocalypse, 1851, and many other minor works.

Besides these, he edited a large number of Plain Sermons at different dates by various writers, and he also wrote some of the Tracts for the Times, notably Tract 80 (1838), and 87 (1840), on Reserve in Communicating Religious Knowledge. It is difficult to see why these should have given so much offence. The principles on which the conclusion is based are obviously correct. Perhaps the title Reserve was alarming when men's minds were excited by the fear that they were being led by the new Oxford school they knew not whither. These two Tracts, with Tract 86, also by Isaac Williams, would fill an octavo volume of more than 200 pages. Both the character and the writings of Isaac Williams are singularly attractive. They both present a striking combination of qualities which are not often found in union. He was as firm as a rock in the maintenance and expression of his principles, but so quiet and retiring that his personality came far less before the public than that of any of the other leaders of the Oxford movement. His writings are so Christian and unaggressive in their tone that we are won over to his side almost without knowing it. He was a most valuable ally on this very account to his party, and the hymnologist may well regret that he did not devote his exquisite poetical taste, his refined culture, and his ardent piety more to hymn-writing than he did.

[J. H. O.]

Isaac Williams's position in hymnody does not lie so much in the actual work which he did, as in the influence he had over others. His trs. from the Latin, mainly through the metres which he deliberately adopted, have not had a wide acceptance in the hymnody of the Church. J. Chandler, however, has left it on record that Williams's trs. in the British Magazine led him to undertake kindred work, and Chandler's trs. are amongst the most popular in the English language. Williams's Hymns on the Catechism, 1842, were with Dr. Neale's Hymns for Children of the same year the forerunners of the more popular productions on the same lines by later writers. Williams's trs. together with the more important of his original hymns may be traced through the Index of Authors and Translators. Of his original hymns the following are also in C. U. :—

7. Jesus, lead us with Thy power. Divine Guidance Desired. Sometimes given as "Father, lead us with Thy power."

8. Jesus, Whose Almighty sceptre. Jesus as King.

9. Saviour, look on Thy beloved. The Help of Jesus desired.

10. White and ruddy is my Beloved. Beauties of Jesus.

Williams is most widely known through his two hymns, "Guide me, O Thou great Jehovah," and "O'er those gloomy hills of darkness." Williams d. at Pantycelyn, Jan. 11, 1791. [See Welsh Hymnody.] [W. G. T.]

Willis, Nathaniel Parker, was b. at Portland, Maine, Jan. 20, 1807, and educated at Yale College, graduating in 1826. After writing for a time for the American Monthly Magazine, which he established, and the New York Mirror, into which the former was merged, he was attached to the American Legation at the French Court. His stay in Europe extended from 1831 to 1837. On his return he became in 1839 one of the editors of The Corsair. His works are numerous, and include Sacred Poems, 1843. He d. Jan. 29, 1867. His sister, Mrs. Parton, is the well-known "Fanny Fern." His hymn—"The perfect world by Adam trod" (Dedication of a Place of Worship), was "Written to be sung at the Consecration of Hanover Street [Unitarian] Church, Boston," in 1826, and since then has been widely used, although of no exceeding merit. [F. M. B.]

Willkommen unter deiner Schaar. N. L. von Zinzendorf. [Christian Church.] The origin of this hymn was somewhat remarkable. On May 10, 1737, Zinzendorf had been consecrated, at Berlin, by Daniel Ernst Jablonsky (see p. 766, ii.), as Bishop and Ordinary of the Moravian Brethren's Unity. In 1741 J. L. Dober, who had officiated as General-Elder (General-Aelteste) of the entire Moravian connexion, resigned his office. Zinzendorf then held (from Sept. 11 to Sept. 23, 1741) a noteworthy synodical conference at London at which the assembled brethren agreed that no suitable successor to Dober could be found in their midst. On Sept. 16, 1741, they therefore resolved to beseech the Lord Jesus Christ Himself to take the office of General-Elder of the entire Unity, and, as on casting lots the result was favourable to their wishes, they took for granted that He had assumed this position, and appointed 12 Assistant-Elders (Vice-Aelteste) to form the directing General Conference of the Unity, Zinzendorf's power of general superintendence being abolished (see Koch, v. 264). It was on this occasion that Zinzendorf wrote this hymn. Albert Knapp in his ed. of Zinzendorf's Geistliche Gedichte (1845, p. 288), entitles it "When Jesus assumed the position of General-Elder," and dates it Sept. 16, 1741. It was included in Appz. xi., circa 1743, to the Herrnhut G. B., as No. 1778, and in 14 st. of 8 l. In the Brüder G. B., 1778, No. 1099, st. vi.-viii. were omitted, and in the Hist. Nachricht thereto (ed. 1851, p. 188) it is dated "In London, 16 Sept., 1741." Tr. as:—

1. Welcome among thy flock of grace. This is a somewhat free tr. of st. i., ii., iv., v., ix.-xiii., as No. 529 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1749 (1886, No. 834). It was adopted, slightly altered and beginning, "We hail Thee, Lord, thy Church's Rock," as No. 278 in the 1857 ed. of Mercer's C. P. & H. Bk. (Ox. ed., 1864, No. 493, in 5 st.). From Mercer st. l., v., viii. passed into the Pennsylvania Luth. Church Bk., 1868, No. 272.

2. Welcome among thy chosen flock. This is No. 234 in the Appz. of 1743 to the Moravian H. Bk., 1742 (ed. 1754, pt. ii., No. 222). [J. M.]

Wilson, Caroline, née Fry, daughter of a farmer, was b. at Tunbridge Wells, Dec. 31, 1787. In 1831 she was married to a Mr. Wilson, and d. at Tunbridge Wells, Sept. 17, 1846. Her publications were somewhat numerous, and included a History of England in Verse, 1801; a Poetical Catechism, 1821; Serious Poetry, 1822; Death, and other Poems, 1823, &c. Her Autobiography, Letters, and Remains were pub. in 1843, and her Table of the Lord in 1859. Her best known hymns are:—

1. For what shall I praise Thee, My God and my King? Thanksgiving in Affliction. In C. U. in G. Britain and America.

2. Oten the clouds of deepest woe. Affliction leading to Glory. From her Poetical Catechism, 1821, p. 25. In Kennedy, 1863, it begins "Full oft the clouds of deepest woe." [J. J.]

Wilson, Jane, known as Sister Beatrice, the Mother Superior of the Sisterhood of St. Thomas the Martyr, Oxford, was the daughter of a clergyman, and d. in 1872 aged 36 years. She pub. Legenda Monastica, and other Poems (Oxford: Mowbray), which has passed through several editions. This work includes 16 hymns, originally written for Hymns used at the Church of St. Thomas the Martyr, Oxford, edited by the Vicar, the Rev. T. Chamberlain, 1861; enlarged ed., 1870, as follows:—

1. A Fast before a Feast. Shrove Tuesday.
2. A virgin heart she brought to Christ. St. Frideswide.
3. Again our Lent has come to us. Lent.
4. At eventide was light. Evening.
5. Behold, she comes, in silence. Conception of B. V. M.
6. Calm the saint's slumber. St. Peter ad Vincula; or, Lammastide.
7. Deep thoughts were in her breast. Visitation of B. V. M.
8. I love the courts of Jesus. Love for the House of God.
9. Jesu, ever present With Thy Church below. Holy Communion.
10. Loud in exultation. St. George.
11. Love and death have wrestled fiercely. St. Mary Magdalene.
12. 'Midst the bitter waters Moses. The Holy Cross.
13. The Church and world for once. SS. Philip and James.
14. 'Tis good, O Jesu, that alone with Thee. Advent.
15. We hail renowned Alban. St. Alban.
16. We cry to Thee, O Jesu. Evening. [J. J.]

Wilt Thou forgive that sin when I began. John Donne. [Lent.] Concerning this hymn, to which special reference is made in the article on Early English Hymnody, Izaak Walton says, in his Life of Donne, after quoting the hymn in detail:—

"I have the rather mentioned this hymn for that he caused it to be set to a most grave and solemn tune, and to be often sung to the organ by the Choristers of St. Paul's [Cathedral] Church in his own hearing, especially at the evening service, and at his return from his customary devotions in that place, did occasionally say to a friend, 'the words of this hymn have restored to me the same thoughts of joy that possessed my soul in my sickness, when I composed it. And, O the power of Church-music! that harmony added to this hymn has raised the affections of my heart, and quickened my grace of zeal and gratitude; and I observe that I always return from paying this public duty of prayer and praise with an unexpressible tranquillity of mind, and a willingness to leave the world.'"—Walton's Lives, 1670.

The special sickness during which this hymn was composed fell upon the author during the earlier part of his life. It was sung at St. Paul's Cathedral, at intervals from 1621 to 1631, when Donne died. It was published subsequently in Donne's Poems in 1633; again in 1635, and in later editions, and is usually entitled, "A Hymn to God the Father." Orig. text in Walton's Lives, 1670 (1850, pp. 53-4). [English Hymnody, Early, § VII.] [J. J.]

Winchester, Caleb Thomas, M.A., was b. in 1847. He is Professor of Rhetoric and English Literature in the Wesleyan University, Middletown, Connecticut. His hymn, "The Lord our God alone is strong" (Dedication of a Science Hall), was written for the opening of the Orange Judd Hall of Natural Science, Wesleyan University, Middletown. It was included in the Meth. Episco. Hymnal, 1878 (Nutter's Hymn Studies, 1884). [J. J.]

Winckler, Johann Joseph, s. of Gottfried Winckler, town clerk of Lucka, Sachsen-Altenburg, was b. at Lucka, Dec. 23, 1670. He became a student of Theology at the University of Leipzig, during the time when A. H. Francke and J. C. Schade were holding their Bible readings, and his sympathies henceforth were with the Pietistic movement. In 1692 he was appointed preacher to the St. George's Hospital at Magdeburg, and afternoon preacher at St. Peter's Church there. He became chaplain to the Prince Christian Ludwig regiment in 1695, and went with it to Holland and Italy. After the Peace of Ryswijk (Oct. 30, 1697) he made a tour in Holland and England. Returning to Magdeburg, he was appointed, in 1698, diaconus of the Cathedral, and in 1703 also inspector of the so-called Holzkreis. Finally, in 1714, he became chief preacher at the Cathedral, and in 1716, also Consistorialrath. He d. at Magdeburg, Aug. 11, 1722 (Wetzel, iii. 437; Grischow-Kirchner Nachricht to Freylinghausen, p. 53; Koch, iv. 383; Blätter für Hymnologie, 1888, p. 170, &c.).

Winckler was a man who had the courage of his opinions, and his hymn No. iv. below is a picture of the stand he was willing to make when conscience bade him. Not that he was fond of controversy, but rather the reverse. Twice however he raised considerable feeling against himself in Magdeburg, first by the position he took up against theatre going, and afterwards by his well-meant attempts to bring about a closer union between the Lutheran and Reformed churches in Prussia. But the opposition he encountered he bore patiently, and in the spirit of his hymn No. i. below. His hymns, some 27 in all, appeared mostly in the Appz. to the 2nd ed., 1703, of H. G. Neuss's Heb-Opfer (p. 798, ii.), in Porst's G. B., Berlin, 1708,* and in Freylinghausen's Neues geistreiches G. B., 1714. They rank among the better productions of the earlier Pietistic writers, and are distinguished by firm faith, earnestness, and picturesqueness; but are somewhat lengthy and frequently in unusual metres.

Those of Winckler's hymns which have passed into English are:—

i. Meine Seele senket sich. Resignation. 1st pub. in the 1703 ed. of Neuss's Heb-Opfer, * Dr. J. F. Bachmann in his Zur Geschichte der Berliner Gesangbücher, 1856, was only able to describe the 3rd ed. of 1713. The present writer has examined the 2nd ed. of 1711 (Neu-vermehrtes geistreiches G. B.). The references to the 1st ed. of 1708 are from the markings by Professor Müttzell, in a copy of the 1856 presented to him by Dr. Bachmann, and now in the possession of the present writer.

Bk., 1857, and abridged in Mercer's Oxford ed., 1864; Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, and others. It is also found in the following forms:—

- (1) Awed by a mortal's frown, shall I (Wesley's st. ii.). In W. Carus Wilson's Gen. Psal., 1842.
- (2) Saviour of men, Thy searching eye (Wesley's st. vi.). In J. A. Latrobe's Ps. & Hys., 1841, and various American collections.
- (3) Our Lives, our Blood, we here present (Wesley's st. ix. alt.). In M. Madan's Ps. & Hys., 1760.

[J. M.]

Winkler, Edwin Theodore, D.D., was b. in Savannah, Nov. 13, 1823, and educated at Brown University. He entered the Baptist ministry in 1846, and subsequently filled several important literary and other appointments in addition to his pastorates. He d. at Marion, Alabama, Nov. 10, 1883. He compiled The Sacred Lute, a Collection of popular Hymns, 1855 (enlarged ed., 1860), to which he contributed 8 hymns, the first lines of which are given in Burrage. (Burrage's Baptist H. Writers, 1888, p. 416.) Some of these have passed into other American collections, including "Our land with mercies crowned." (National Hymn.) [J. J.]

Winkworth, Catherine, daughter of Henry Winkworth, of Alderley Edge, Cheshire, was b. in London, Sep. 13, 1829. Most of her early life was spent in the neighbourhood of Manchester. Subsequently she removed with the family to Clifton, near Bristol. She d. suddenly of heart disease, at Monnetier, in Savoy, in July, 1878. Miss Winkworth pub.:—

Trs. from the German of the Life of Pastor Fliedner, the Founder of the Sisterhood of Protestant Deaconesses at Kaiserswerth, 1861; and of the Life of Amelia Sieveking, 1863.

Her sympathy with practical efforts for the benefit of women, and with a pure devotional life, as seen in these trs., received from her the most practical illustration possible in the deep and active interest which she took in educational work in connection with the Clifton Association for the Higher Education of Women, and kindred societies there and elsewhere. Our interest, however, is mainly centred in her hymnological work as embodied in her:—

- (1) Lyra Germanica, 1st Ser., 1855. (2) Lyra Germanica, 2nd Ser., 1858. (3) The Chorale Book for England (containing trs. from the German, together with music), 1863; and (4) her charming biographical work, the Christian Singers of Germany, 1869.

In a sympathetic article on Miss Winkworth in the Inquirer of July 20, 1878, Dr. Martineau says:—

"The translations contained in these volumes are invariably faithful, and for the most part both terse and delicate; and an admirable art is applied to the management of complex and difficult versification. They have not quite the fire of John Wesley's versions of Moravian hymns, or the wonderful fusion and reproduction of thought which may be found in Coleridge. But if less flowing they are more conscientious than either, and attain a result as poetical as severe exactitude admits, being only a little short of 'native music.'"

Dr. Percival, then Principal of Clifton College, also wrote concerning her (in the Bristol Times and Mirror), in July, 1878:—

"She was a person of remarkable intellectual and social gifts, and very unusual attainments; but what specially distinguished her was her combination of rare ability and great knowledge with a certain tender and sympathetic refinement which constitutes the special charm of the true womanly character."

Dr. Martineau (as above) says her religious life afforded "a happy example of the piety which the Church of England discipline may implant. . . . The fast hold she retained of her discipleship of Christ was no example of 'feminine simplicity,' carrying on the childish mind into maturer years, but the clear allegiance of a firm mind, familiar with the pretensions of non-Christian schools, well able to test them, and undiverted by them from her first love."

Miss Winkworth, although not the earliest of modern translators from the German into English, is certainly the foremost in rank and popularity. Her translations are the most widely used of any from that language, and have had more to do with the modern revival of the English use of German hymns than the versions of any other writer. [J. J.]

Winter reigneth o'er the land. Bp. W. W. How. [Winter.] Written for and first pub. in the S. P. C. K. Church Hymns, 1871, No. 64, and from thence has passed into numerous collections. In a few hymn-books, including Sir Josiah Mason's Birmingham Orphanage Hymnal, st. iii.-vi. are given as a hymn, "Sunny days are past and gone," but this mutilated text is not popular. [J. J.]

Wir glauben all an einen Gott, Schöpfer Himmels und der Erden. M. Luther. [Nicene Creed.] This very free setting of the Nicene Creed was 1st pub. in the Geystliche gesangk Buchleyn, Wittenberg, 1524, in 3 st. of 10 l., and thence in Wackernagel, iii. p. 16. Also in Schircks's ed. of Luther's Geistliche Lieder, 1854, p. 55; the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 253, &c. During the Reformation period it was generally sung after the Sermon. Luther included it among the Christliche Geseng . . . zum Begrebnis, 1542. It had been used at the funeral of the Elector Friedrich the Wise of Saxony, on May 9, 1525, and was often in later times sung before funeral sermons. Tr. as:—

1. We all one only God believe. By A. T. Russell, for his Ps. & Hys., 1851, No. 15.

2. We all believe in One true God, Maker of the earth and heaven, Who hath. By R. Massie, in his Martin Luther's Spir. Songs, 1854, p. 59. Repeated in the Ohio Luth. Hyl., 1880.

3. We all believe in One true God, Maker of the earth and heaven; The Father. By Miss Winkworth, in her C. B. for England, 1863, Appx., No. vi. Repeated, recast, by Dr. Bacon, in his Hys. of Martin Luther, 1884, p. 47.

Other trs. are:—

- (1) "We believe all upon one God." By Bp. Coverdale, 1539 (Remains, 1846, p. 546).
- (2) "We trow in God allanerlie." In the Gude and Godlie Ballates, ed. 1568, folio 6, (1868, p. 9).
- (3) "Believe we all in our Lord God," as No. 185 in part i. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754.
- (4) "In One God we all believe." By Miss Fry, 1845, p. 50.
- (5) "We believe in God the Father." By J. Anderson, 1846, p. 57 (1847, p. 72).
- (6) "We all believe in God Most High." By Dr. J. Hunt, 1853, p. 86.
- (7) "In One true God we all believe." By Dr. G. Macdonald, in the Sunday Magazine, 1867, p. 571. Repeated, altered, in his Exotics, 1876, p. 89. [J. M.]

Wir legen, Herr! in deinem Namen. [Laying the Foundation Stone of a Church.] Included as No. 140 in the Ohio G. B., 1870, in 4 st. of 6 l., entitled, "For the Festival of the Corner Stone laying." No author's name is given. Tr. as:—"In Thy dear name and by Thy favour." in full by C. H. L. Schnette, as No. 126 in the Ohio Luth. Hyl., 1880. [J. M.]

Wir singen dir Immanuel. P. Gerhardt. [Christmas.] Included in the Berlin

ed. of 1653 of Crüger's Praxis, No. 100, in 16 st. of 4 l. In Ebeling's ed. of Gerhard's Geistliche Andachten, Fünfte Dutzet, 1667, No. 52, four st. were added as iv., viii., ix., xvii. The complete text in 20 st. is in Wackernagel's ed. of Gerhard's Geistl. Lieder, No. 10; Bachmann's ed., No. 42, and the Unv. L. S., 1851, No. 58. It is a beautiful hymn of praise to Emmanuel, the longed for by the Fathers and the Prophets. Tr as.—

1. Emmanuel, we sing Thy praise. This tr. of st. i.-iii., v.-vii., xviii.-xx., appeared in the British Magazine, January, 1838, p. 35. Repeated, omitting the tr. of st. xix., and beginning, "Emmanuel, Thy Name we sing," in Annals, 1863.

2. Immanuel, we sing to Thee. A tr. of st. i.-iii., v., by A. T. Russell, as No. 12 in the Dalston Hospital H. Bk., 1848.

3. Immanuel, to Thee we sing. Of life, &c. A tr. of st. i.-iii., vi., xx., based on the earlier versions, as No. 35 in J. F. Thrupp's Ps. & Hys., 1853.

4. Thee, O Immanuel, we praise. A good tr. of st. i.-iii., v.-vii., xviii.-xx., by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 1st Ser., 1855, p. 28. In her 2nd ed., 1856, p. 24, she added a tr. of st. ix., and thus in her C. B. for England, 1863, No. 35. Repeated, abridged, in the Hyl. for St. John's, Abe deen, 1870, and Flett's Coll., Paisley, 1871; and, beginning, "With all Thy saints, Thee, Lord, we sing" (st. ii.), in Boardman's Sel., Philadelphia, 1861.

5. We sing to Thee, Emmanuel, The Prince, &c. A good tr. of st. i.-iii., v.-vii., xviii.-xx., by Miss Cox, contributed to Lyra Messianica, 1864, p. 55, and in her own Hys. from Ger., 1864, p. 35. In Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869, p. 56, it is in full, and in Jellicoe's Coll., 1867, omitting the tr. of st. v. In the Amer. Bapt. Hy. & Tune Bk., 1871, it begins, "All glory, worship, thanks and praise" (st. ii., iii., xix., xx.).

6. We sing to Thee, Immanuel! Thou Prince of Life. A tr. of st. i., ii., xix., xx., signed "F. C. C.," as No. 26 in Dr Pagenstecher's Coll., 1864.

Other trs. are: (1) "We sing to Thee, Immanuel, Thou Prince of Life," &c., as No. 109, in pt. iii., 1748, of the Moravian H. Bk. (1754, pt. i., No. 436). (2) "Immanuel, to Thee we sing, Thou Prince," &c., by L. E. Schlecht, in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789, No. 45 (1886, No. 45). (3) "Immanuel! Thy praise we sing," by Miss Fry, 1859, p. 163. (4) "To Thee, Immanuel, we sing, The Prince," &c., by Miss Manington, 1864, p. 36. (5) "Immanuel! to Thee we sing, The Fount," by J. Kelly, 1867, p. 37.

Presb. Ps. & Hys., 1867, and slightly altered, and omitting st. iii., iv., vii., in Miss Jane E. Lee's Paraphs. & Hys. for Congregational Singing, 1853, as pt. i. of No. 64. In the American Sabbath H. Bk., 1858, No. 505, and Martineau's Hymns, 1873, No. 122, beginning with st. v. altered, "Come unto me, all ye who mourn." [J. M.]

With thankful hearts our songs we raise. [Holy Baptism.] This hymn is No. 278, in the 4th ed., 1832, of J. Bickersteth's Ps. & Hymns, in 4 st. of 4 l. In common with all the hymns in the collection, it is unsigned, and there is nothing to determine its authorship. It is sometimes attributed to "Bickersteth," but for this ascription we know of no authority whatever. It is in somewhat extensive use in America. [J. J.]

With Thee, Lord, will I walk by day. T. Davis. [Morning.] 1st pub. in his Devotional Verse for a Month, 1855, in 4 st. of 4 l., and based upon the words "When I awake I am still with Thee," Ps. cxxxix. 18. In 1858 it was included, unaltered, in the Bap. Ps. & Hys., No. 911, and continued in later editions. When given in the author's Family Hymnal, 1860, and Hymns Old and New, 1864, st. iv. l. 3, "give" was changed to grant. This rendering was repeated in his Annus Sanctus, 1877, p. 246, as the authorized text. [J. J.]

With years oppressed, with sorrow worn. Sir R. Grant. [Ps. lxxi.] Pub. in his posthumous Sacred Poems, 1839, p. 31, in 5 st. of 6 l. It is in C. U. in its full or abbreviated form, and also as "Thy mercy heard my infant prayer" (st. ii.). [J. J.]

Wither, George, or Wyther—spelled in both ways by himself, the first usually, the second occasionally, e.g. in Prince Henrie's Obsequies (1612), and erroneously Withers, was b. on June 11th, 1588, at Bentworth, near Alton, Hampshire. He was the only son of George Wither, of Bentworth. His early education was at the Grammar School of Colemore or Colemere, under its celebrated master, John Greaves. After thorough training and discipline here he was entered in 1604 at Magdalen College, Oxford. His tutor was John Warner, subsequently D.D. and Bishop of Rochester. He had only been three years at the University when malicious and ignorant persons persuaded his father that more learning was not required. And so, as he modestly tells us in his Abuses Stript and Whipt (1613), he was withdrawn "without taking any degree," being now destined, as he moderately puts it, "for the plough," that is, for rustic employment on the paternal estate. This proved utterly uncongenial. He is found next at one of the Inns of Chancery, afterwards at Lincoln's Inn, and intimate with William Browne, the poet, of Britannia's Pastorals. His title-pages from 1617 to 1620 self-describe him as "Gentleman," and as "of the Societie of Lincoln's Inne" (Fidelia (1617), and 1st Psalme (1620), and Workes (1620)). But Anthony a-Wood informs us:—

"still his gong after things more smooth and delightful, he did at length make himself known to the world (after he had taken several rambles therein) by certain specimens of poetry, which being dispersed in several hands, he became shortly after a public author and most admired by some in that age for his quick advancement in that faculty" (Athenæ Oxon. æ. n.).

How uncritical was this miserable criticism, will be understood when it is recalled that amongst these "certain specimens" was the Shepherds Hunting under the first form of "A new song of a young man's opinion of the difference between good and bad women" (Tepysian, ad Percy MS.), Prince Henrie's Obsequies (1612), Epithalamia (1612), and his stinging and patriotically outspoken Abuses Stript and Whipt. The last drew down upon him the wrath of the monarch (James I.) and nobles, and cast him prisoner into the Marshalsea. Four large editions within a year, and numerous others up to 1622 and continuously onward (exclusive of the reproductions in his Workes) was the answer of the People to the Upper Ten. While in prison he wrote some of the most delicious of his verse. He likewise composed A Satyre to the King (1615). The wisest fool in Christendom was shrewd enough to perceive that it would be safer to make such a subject a friend than an enemy. He had deftly signed the dedication to the king "his Majesty's most loyall Subiect, and yet Prisoner in the Marshalsey." It procured him his release. From this time onward he was perpetually printing something, now in verse and now in prose, until the aggregate exceeded a hundred of books and pamphlets. There are several fairly accurate enumerations of them, e.g. British Bibliographer, i. 174–205, 305–32, 417–40; ii. 17–32, 378–91; Sir Egerton Brydges' Censura and Restituta; Hazlitt's Bibliography (1867). The Spenser Society reprinted a large portion of the Works in prose and verse; but there was really no editing and no annotation. His successive books are the main facts of Wither's life; yet was he an active member of the nation. Spite of his hard usage and imprisonments, he was loyal as any cavalier. When Charles I. proceeded to declare and carry war into his native Scotland against the Covenanters in 1639, George Wither served his Majesty as a captain of horse and quarter-master of his regiment under the Earl of Arundel. How sorrowful the wrong-headedness of the king who compelled such a true man as Wither to forsake him and prefer the kingdom to the king, as many others who with pathetic reluctance became Roundheads! In 1641–2 he sold his hereditary estates and raised a troop of horse for the Parliament, in whose army he was promoted to be major. On his colours he carried this motto, Pro Rege, Lege, Grege. Having been taken prisoner by the Royalists, a good-humoured jest of Sir John Denham it is alleged saved his life, to wit, that "his Majesty really must not hang George Wither, for so long as he lives no one will account him [Sir John] the worst poet in England." He was set free. Not long after he was constituted by the Long Parliament a Justice of Peace in quorum for Hampshire, Surrey and Essex. This he held for six years, and afterwards was made by Cromwell Major-General of all the horse and foot in the County of Surrey. On the title-page of his Bin Ominis Vatum (1656) in the British Museum there is a contemporary ms. note, "lately made Master of the Statute Office." At the Restoration he was shamefully dealt with, and by a vote of the Convention Parliament, was committed to Newgate because of his Vox Vulgi—a noble piece of fiery and idiomatic English, and manly pleading for respect to popular rights and liberties. For his Prisoner's Plea humbly offered (1661) he was again imprisoned, this time in the Tower. He married (Aubrey informs us) Elizabeth, eldest daughter of H. Emerson of South Lanuk, who, he says, was "a great wit and could write in verse too," and was of the same English Emersons from whom the great American Ralph Waldo Emerson descended. He had issue. He was at liberty when he died on 2nd May, 1667. Aubrey states that he was buried within the east doorway of Savoy Church in the Strand, having apparently lived near it, and either died in the church or in his own house (the phrasing being ambiguous).

This Dictionary is not a fitting place for any detailed criticism of the superabundant writings of George Wither. James Montgomery, in his admirable Lectures on Poets and Poetry, thus sums up his estimate of him and them:—

"There are scattered throughout his multifarious and very unequal productions, many passages of great beauty and excellence. He was avowedly a Christian poet, though he frequently lost his Christian meekness in the heat of polemics; but his zeal carried with it every evidence of honesty; and he was a sufferer almost to martyrdom, both for his loyalty and his orthodoxy. In the troublous times in which he lived. That he was a poet can never be questioned by any reader who has taste and sensibility enough to understand and enjoy the exquisitely affecting confession of his obligations to the Muse. That he was a Christian will be as little questioned by those who are most extensively acquainted with the character of his religious compositions" (s. n.).

Archbishop Trench, in annotating a charming sacred song entitled Vanished Blessings ("No voice which I did more esteem, Than music in her sweetest key," &c.), thus annotates:—

"I have detached these two stanzas from a longer poem of which they constitute the only valuable portion (?). George Wither ('a most profuse pourer forth of English rhyme,' Phillips calls him) was indeed so intolerable a power in verse, so overlaid his good with indifferent or bad, that one may easily forget how real a gift he possessed, and sometimes showed that he possessed" (Household Book of English Poetry, 1865).

Mrs. Masson says of him—"he is remembered now-a-days as pre-eminently the Puritan poet, whose irrepressible Muse made herself heard even amid the din of civil war" (Three Centuries of English Poetry, p. 375). She quotes his delightful "Christmas" ("So now is come our joyfullest part"), and "Of Poesy" (which Milton did not disdain to utilize), and his "Shall I, wasting in despair." With reference to the "irrepressible Muse" of Wither, it is a felicitous characterisation however regarded, inasmuch as so "irrepressible" was he that he actually set up the types and printed off at least one of his bulkier books. Wither's contributions to hymnology are to be found chiefly in the following:—

(a) Exercises Upon the First Psalm . . . . . (1620). At the close is a metrical paraphrase of Ecclesiastes xii. 1-8; (b) Paraphrase on the Creed and the Lord's Prayer (in Works 1620; separately 1668 and mis-asserted to be now "first printed"); (c) The Songs of the Old Testament, Translated into English Measures: preserving the Naturall Phrase and genuine Sense of the

Woher kommt mir doch diese Zeit. [Cross and Consolation.] F. Hommel, in his Geistliche Volkslieder, Leipzig, 1864, No. 147, prints this, in 4 st. of 4 l., from the Neue aufgerichtete Sing-Schul, a Roman Catholic collection which he describes as "apparently of the second half of the 17th cent." It is tr. as "Why is it that life is no longer sad?" By Miss Winkworth, in her Christian Singers of Germany, 1869, p. 255 (she quotes the first line as "Woher denn kommt es zu dieser Zeit"). [J. M.]

Wohl dem, der in Gottes Furcht steht. M. Luther. [Ps. cxxviii.] This version of Ps. cxxviii. was 1st pub. in Eyn Enchiridion, Erfurt, 1524, in 5 st. of 4 l., and thence in Wackernagel, iii. p. 8. Also in Schircks's ed. of Luther's Geistliche Lieder, 1854, p. 82, in the Unv. L. S., 1851, &c. Being the description of a pious household it was often sung at weddings. Tr. as:—

(1) "Blessed are all that feare the Lord." By Bp. Coverdale, 1539 (Remains, 1846, p. 573). He also gives a second version of Ps. cxxviii., 3 st. of 9 l., which contains many lines identical, but in form rather follows the version beginning "Wohl dem, der den Herren fürchtet," which Wackernagel, iii. p. 553, gives, in 3 st. of 7 l., from the Nürnberg Enchiridion of 1527. (2) "Blessed art thou that sit in God's dreid." In the Gude and Godlie Ballades, ed. 1668, folio 66 (ed. 1868, p. 113). (3) "Blest man! who walks in wisdom's way." By J. Anderson, 1846, p. 51 (1847, p. 68). (4) "Blest is the man who walks away." By Dr. J. Hunt, 1853, p. 81. (5) "Happy the man who feareth God." By R. Massie, 1854, p. 51. Repeated by Dr. Bacon, in his Hys. of M. Luther, 1884. (6) "Happy who in the fear of God." By Dr. G. Macdonald, in the Sunday Magazine, 1867. In his Exotics, 1876, altered and beginning "Happy who in God's fear doth stay." [J. M.]

Wolcott, Samuel, D.D., was b. at South Windsor, Connecticut, July 2, 1813, and educated at Yale College, 1833, and Andover Theological Seminary, 1837. From 1840 to 1842 he was a missionary in Syria. On his return to America he was successively pastor of several Congregational congregations, including Belchertown, Massachusetts; Providence, Rhode Island; Chicago, &c. He was also for some time Secretary of the Ohio Home Missionary Society. He d. at Longmeadow, Massachusetts, Feb. 24, 1886. His hymn-writing began late in life, but has extended to more than 200 hymns, many of which are still in ms. Those of his hymns which have come into C. U. include:—

1. All thy realms in midnight shrouded. Missions. In the Oberlin Manual of Praise, 1880.
2. Christ for the world we sing. Missions. Written Feb. 7, 1869. Its origin is thus recorded by the author: "The Young Men's Christian Associations of Ohio met in one of our Churches, with their motto, in ever-green letters over the pulpit, 'Christ for the World, and the World for Christ.' This suggested the hymn 'Christ for the world we sing.'" It was when on his way home from that service that he composed the hymn. It is in several American collections, including Laudes Domini, 1884, &c.
3. Father, I own Thy voice. Trust and Aspiration. This, his first hymn, was written in 1868, more as an experiment in hymn-writing than anything else. It was pub. in the Rev. Darius E. Jones's Songs for the New Life, Chicago, 1869. It has since passed into other collections.
4. Goodly were thy tents, O Israel. Missions. Written May 31, 1881, and included in Laudes Domini, 1884.
5. Lo! the faith which crossed the ocean. Missions. In the Oberlin Manual of Praise, 1880.
6. O gracious Redeemer! O Jesus our Lord. The Love of Jesus. Written in 1881.
7. On the works of His creation. God the Creator.

In the Ohio Evangelical Association's Hymn, 1. ok-1881.

8. Pitying Saviour, look with blessing. Prayer for the Penitent. In the Ohio Evangelical Association's Hymn Book, 1881.

9. Tell me Whom my soul doth love. Opening of Divine Service. A paraphrase of Cant. 1. 8. Written Feb. 6, 1870. Included in Laudes Domini, N. Y., 1884.

10. To us have distant ages. Saints Days. In Dale's English H. Bk., 1874.

11. This house, most holy Lord, is Thine. Opening of a Place of Worship. In Dale's English H. Bk., 1874.

For most of the information given above we are indebted to Duffield's English Hymns, N. Y., 1886. [J. J.]

Wolfe, Aaron Roberts, was b. at Mendham, New Jersey, Sep. 6, 1821, and educated at Williams College, 1844; and the Union Theological Seminary, New York, 1851. On April 9, 1851, he was licensed by the Third Presbytery of New York. For some time he had charge of a school for young ladies at Tallahassee, Florida; and in 1859 he established "The Hillside Seminary for Young Ladies" at Montclair, New Jersey. In 1858 he contributed 7 hymns under the signature "A. R. W." to Hastings's Church Melodies. These are:—

1. A Parting hymn we sing. Close of Holy Communion.
2. Complete in Thee, no work of mine. Complete in Christ. Pub. in the N. Y. Evangelist, 1850 or 51.
3. Draw near, O Holy Dove, draw near. Holy Communion.
4. How blest indeed are they. In the Likeness of Christ.
5. My God, I thank Thee for the guide. Conscience.
6. Mysterious influence divine. The Cross of Christ.
7. Thou Maker of our mortal frame. Chief end of Man.

The most popular of these hymns are Nos. 1, 2, and 3. [F. M. B.]

Wolff, Jakob Gabriel, LL.D., s. of Jakob Wolff, sometime conrector at Greifswald, was b. at Greifswald in 1684. He matriculated, in 1702, at the University of Greifswald, as a student of law. In 1705 went to Halle, where he graduated LL.D. In 1716 he was appointed extraordinary, and in 1724, ordinary professor of law at Halle, and afterwards received the title of Hofrath. He resigned his professorship in 1744, and d. at Halle, Aug. 6, 1754 (Koch, iv. 375; Bode, p. 174; the Grischow-Kirchner Kurzgefasste Nachricht, Halle, 1771, p. 54, &c.).

Wolff's hymns were mostly written early in life, principally during his student years at Halle. He was in thorough sympathy with the characteristic teachings of the Halle Pietists, and his hymns share in their excellences and defects. Some of them are of considerable merit, elegant in style, earnest and glowing in devotion, and have attained considerable popularity in Germany. Nineteen were contributed to Freylinghausen's Neues geistreiches G. B., 1714; and these, with nine others, were included in his autograph ms. (see No. iv. below).

Those of Wolff's hymns which have passed into English are:—

- i. Es ist gewiss ein köstlich Ding. Patience. 1st pub. 1714 as above, No. 481, in 6 st. of 7 l. In the Hannover G. B., 1740, No. 653, with a new st. as st. vii. Tr. as "It is, indeed, a precious thing," by Miss Manington, 1863, p. 59.
- ii. O wie selig ist die Seel. Love to Christ. 1st pub. 1714 as above, No. 418, in 12 st. of 4 l. In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1257. The trs. are: (1) "O how happy is the soul." As No. 688 in pt. I. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754. (2) "O those souls are highly blest." As No. 294 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789. In the 1803 and later eds. (1886, No. 390) it begins "Blest are they, supremely blest."

iii. Seele, was ermüdet du dich. Heavenly Mindedness. 1st pub. 1714 as above, No. 401, in 12 st. of 6 l., ll. 5, 6 of each st. being the popular refrain,

"Suche Jesum und sein Licht; Alles andre hilft dir nicht."

In the Univ. L. S., 1851, No. 338. Tr. as "O soul, why dost thou weary," by Miss Warner, 1869, p. 14.

iv. Wohl dem der sich mit Fleiss bemühet. Christian Warfare. On True and False Christianity. This hymn is ascribed to Wolff, by Count Christian Ernst of Stolberg Wernigerode (d. 1771, see p. 506, ii.), and by Koch, iv., 570. In the Nachricht as above, p. 54, it is given under Wolff's name; but Kirchner adds that it was not to be found in the autograph ms. of Wolff's hymns which he had bought at Wolff's sale in 1755. It appears in the Berlin G. B., 1711, No. 825, in 11 st. of 6 l., and was repeated (reading "mit Ernst") as No. 235 in Freylinghausen, 1714 as above. In the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 646. The tr. in C. U. is: "O well for him who all things braves." This is a good and full tr. by Miss Winkworth, in her Lyra Ger., 1st Ser. 1855, p. 167. Her st. ll.-iv., x., xl., beginning, "Who follows Christ, whate'er betide," are included in the Rugby School H. Bk., 1816, No. 309. [J. M.]

Woodd, Basil, M.A., was born at Richmond in Surrey, Aug. 5, 1760. The influences of his home and of his widowed mother were most salutary, and produced the best results. As a boy he studied under the Rev. T. Clarke, of Chesham Bois, and at seventeen he entered Trinity College, Oxford. Taking Holy Orders in 1783, he was chosen lecturer of St. Peter's Cornhill, in 1784; morning preacher at Bentinck Chapel, Marylebone in 1785, and Rector of Drayton Beauchamp, Buckinghamshire, in 1808. Bentinck Chapel being a proprietary chapel, he purchased the lease in 1793, and held the Incumbency, together with the Rectory of Drayton, from 1808 to his death on April 12, 1831. He took a deep interest in the great religious societies, and in the anti-slavery movement. His prose works were not numerous or important. He is associated with hymnody through the publication of the following:—

(1.) The Psalms of David, . . . . Adapted to the Services of the Church of England, &c., 1794. 2nd ed. 1800. (2.) The Psalms of David and other portions of the Sacred Scriptures arranged according to the Order of the Church of England, for every Sunday in the Year, &c., London: Printed and sold by Watts and Bridgewater, N.D. circa 1810-20. The Preface is signed "B. W." (3.) A New Metrical Version of the Psalms of David; with an Appendix of select Psalms and Hymns, adapted to the service of the United Church of England and Ireland. . . . By the Rev. Basil Woodd, M.A., &c., London: Printed and sold by E. Bridgewater, 1821. Dedicated to the Bp. of Durham. A portion of the preface of No. 2 was repeated; but the preface as a whole, was more historical than the preceding. With the exception of 4 hymns, and 4 doxologies at the end, this collection is a reprint of No. 2, with a new title-page, a dedication, and an enlarged preface.

Very few of Basil Woodd's hymns and paraphrases of the psalms are now in C. U. The best known is "Hail, Thou Source of every blessing" (p. 490, i.). The rest include:—

1. Blest be Jehovah, mighty Lord. Ps. cxlv. 1794.
2. Holy Ghost inspire our praises. Whitsuntide. circa 1810-20.
3. In Thee, O Lord, I trust, My hope is in Thy Name. Ps. xxi. 1794.
4. Lord of glory and salvation. Praise. circa 1810-20.

A short Memoir of the Rev. Basil Woodd, M.A. By the Rev. S. C. Wilks, M.A., was pub. by Hatchard & Son, London, 1831. [J. J.]

his annotated ed. of H. A. & M., 1867, has drawn attention to the similarity between this hymn and a Sequence of the 11th cent., "Verbum Dei, Deo natum," which, according to Mr. Keble, "probably suggested some of his ideas." It has also a trace of Adam of St. Victor's "Verbi vere substantivi." In his annotated ed. of H. A. & M., 1867, Mr. Biggs has rendered Keble's hymn into Latin as, "Verbum Dei, Increatum." [J. Wordsworth, Christopher, D.D., was b. at Lambeth (of which parish his father was then the rector), Oct. 30, 1807, and was the youngest son of Christopher Wordsworth, afterwards Master of Trinity College, Cambridge, and Priscilla (née Lloyd) his wife. He was educated at Winchester, where he distinguished himself both as a scholar and as an athlete. In 1826 he matriculated at Trinity College, Cambridge, where his career was an extraordinarily brilliant one. He swept off an unprecedented number of College and University prizes, and in 1830 graduated as Senior Classic in the Classical Tripos, and 14th Senior Optime in the Mathematical, won the First Chancellor's Medal for classical studies, and was elected Fellow of Trinity. He was engaged as classical lecturer in college for some time, and in 1836 was chosen Public Orator for the University. In the same year he was elected Head Master of Harrow School, and in 1838 he married Susan Hatley Freere. During his head-mastership the numbers at Harrow fell off, but he began a great moral reform in the school, and many of his pupils regarded him with enthusiastic admiration. In 1844 he was appointed by Sir Robert Peel to a Canonry at Westminster; and in 1848-49 he was Hulsean lecturer at Cambridge. In 1850 he took the small chapter living of Stanford-in-the-Vale cum Goosey, in Berkshire, and for the next nineteen years he passed his time as an exemplary parish priest in this retired spot, with the exception of his four months' statutable residence each year at Westminster. In 1869 he was elevated to the bishopric of Lincoln, which he held for more than fifteen years, resigning it a few months before his death, which took place on March 20th, 1885. As bearing upon his poetical character, it may be noted that he was the nephew of the poet-laureate, William Wordsworth, whom he constantly visited at Rydal up to the time of the poet's death in 1850, and with whom he kept up a regular and lengthy correspondence. Christopher Wordsworth was a very voluminous writer, his principal works being:—

- (1) Athens and Attica, 1836; (2) Pompeian Inscriptions, 1837; (3) Greece Pictorial and Descriptive, 1839; (4) King Edward VIIth's Latin Grammar, 1841; (5) Bentley's Correspondence, 1842; (6) Theophilus Anglicanus, 1843; (7) Memoirs of William Wordsworth, 1851; (8) S. Hippolytus, 1853; (9) Notes at Paris, 1854; (10) A Commentary on the whole Bible, 1856-1870; (11) The Holy Year, 1862; (12) Church History, 1881-1883; many volumes of Sermons, and an enormous amount of Pamphlets, Addresses, Letters, Speeches, on almost every subject in which the interests of the church were concerned, and also on subjects connected with classical literature.

Of his many works, however, the only one which claims notice from the hymnologist's point of view is The Holy Year, which contains hymns, not only for every season of the Church's year, but also for every phase of that season, as indicated in the Book of Common Prayer. Dr. Wordsworth, like the Wesleys, looked upon hymns as a valuable means of stamping permanently upon the memory the great doctrines of the Christian Church. He held it to be "the first duty of a hymn-writer to teach sound doctrine, and thus to save souls." He thought that the materials for English Church hymns should be sought (1) in the Holy Scriptures, (2) in the writings of Christian Antiquity, and (3) in the Poetry of the Ancient Church. Hence he imposed upon himself the strictest limitations in his own compositions. He did not select a subject which seemed to him most adapted for poetical treatment, but felt himself bound to treat impartially every subject, and branch of a subject, that is brought before us in the Church's services, whether of a poetical nature or not. The natural result is that his hymns are of very unequal merit; whether his subject inspired him with poetical thoughts or not, he was bound to deal with it; hence while some of his hymns (such as "Hark! the sound of holy voices," &c., "See the Conqueror mounts in triumph," &c., "O, day of rest and gladness") are of a high order of excellence, others are prosaic. He was particularly anxious to avoid obscurity, and thus many of his hymns are simple to the verge of baldness. But this extreme simplicity was always intentional, and to those who can read between the lines there are many traces of the "ars celans artem." It is somewhat remarkable that though in citing examples of early hymn-writers he almost always refers to those of the Western Church, his own hymns more nearly resemble those of the Eastern, as may be seen by comparing The Holy Year with Dr. Mason Neale's Hymns of the Eastern Church translated, with Notes, &c. The reason of this perhaps half-unconscious resemblance is not far to seek. Christopher Wordsworth, like the Greek hymn-writers, drew his inspiration from Holy Scripture, and he loved, as they did, to interpret Holy Scripture mystically. He thought that "the dangers to which the Faith of England (especially in regard to the Old Testament) was exposed, arose from the abandonment of the ancient Christian, Apostolic and Patristic system of interpretation of the Old Testament for the frigid and servile modern exegesis of the literalists, who see nothing in the Old Testament but a common history, and who read it (as St. Paul says the Jews do) 'with a veil on their heart, which veil' (he adds) 'is done away in Christ.'" In the same spirit, he sought and found Christ everywhere in the New Testament. The Gospel History was only the history of what "Jesus began to do and to teach" on earth; the Acts of the Apostles and all the Epistles were the history of what he continued to do and to teach from Heaven; and the Apocalypse (perhaps his favourite book) was "the seal and colophon of all." Naturally he presents this theory, a theory most susceptible of poetical treatment, in his hymns even more prominently than in his other writings. The Greek writers took, more or less, the same view; hence the resemblance between his hymns and those of the Eastern Church. [J. H. O.]

During the time that Bp. Wordsworth was Canon of Westminster, and Vicar of Stanford-in-the-Vale cum Goosey, he published his collection of hymns as:—

The Holy Year; or Hymns for Sundays and Holy-days, And other Occasions. Lond. Rivingtons, 1862.

This work contained an extended Preface; a Calendar of Hymns; 117 Original Compositions; and a Supplement of 82 hymns from other sources. In the 3rd ed., 1863, the Supplement was omitted, and the Original hymns were increased to 127. Several of these hymns are annotated under their respective first lines, the rest in C. U. are:—

From The Holy Year, 1st ed., 1862:—

1. Five pebbles from the brook. Temptation. Stanza ix. added in 1863.
2. Giver of law is God's [Thy] dear Son. Circumcision. Doxology added in 1863.
3. Gracious Spirit, Holy Ghost. Quinquagesima.
4. Holy, holy, holy, Lord, God of Hosts, Eternal King. Holy Trinity.
5. Holy of Holies! awful name. Epistle 5th S. in Lent.
6. How blest are hearts which Christ the Lord. Holy Matrimony. In 1863 in two parts, Pt. II. being "Bless these Thy servants, gracious Lord."
7. How blessed is the force of prayer. St. Peter. In 1863, in two parts, Pt. I. being "Behold! at hand is Herod's doom."
8. How wondrous and mysterious are. Holy Baptism. In the 1863 ed. it is divided into four parts:—Pt. II. "In Jordan Thou didst sanctify"; Pt. III. "Thee, risen in triumph from the grave"; Pt. IV. "Baptized in Christ we put on Christ." The cento, "By Water and the Holy Ghost," is also from this hymn.
9. In sorrow and distress. Ash Wednesday.
10. In Thy glorious Resurrection. Easter. In the 1863 ed. it begins, "Lord, Thy glorious Resurrection," and the doxology was added.
11. Lord, may we never, save to One. Against False Worship. Stanza vii. was added in 1863.
12. Lord not with (by) poor and paltry gifts. Offer-tory.
13. Lord, Who didst the Prophets teach. 2nd S. in Advent, or, Holy Scripture. The doxology was added in 1863.
14. Man fell from grace by carnal appetite. Gospel 1st S. in Lent.
15. Mankind in Adam fell. Good Friday. In the 1863 ed. it is divided into three parts: Pt. II. being "We fell by Adam's sin;" and Pt. III. "Thy Cross a Trophy is."
16. Not bound by chains, nor pent in cells. The Gifts of the Holy Ghost. This hymn is preceded by a special note on the Holy Spirit and His gifts.
17. Not gifts of prophecy can save. Self Discipline, or, 8th S. after Trinity.
18. O Jerusalem beloved, joyful morn has dawned on Thee. Purification of B. V. M., or, The Presentation. In the 1863 ed. it is divided into two parts, Pt. II. being "Light the Gentile world to lighten, and thy glory Israel."
19. O Saviour, Who at Nain's gate. The Raising of the Widow's Son.
20. O Son of God, the Eternal Word. The Queen's Accession.
21. Once all the nations were as one. Babel and Sion a Contrast.
22. Sing, O sing this blessed morn. Christmas. In the 1863 ed. a doxology was added, and the hymn was divided into two parts, Pt. II. being, "God comes down that man may rise."
23. The banner of the Cross. Missions. In the 1863 ed. it is in three parts, Pt. II., "Now for the Lord our God"; Pt. III. "The earth from East to West."
24. The Galilean Fishers toil. Collect 4th S. in Advent. From this "O Lord, when storms around us howl" is taken.
25. Thou bidd'st us visit in distress. The Promise of the Comforter, or, S. before Ascension. In the 1863 ed. it is in two parts, Pt. II. being "At Thy first birth, Thou, Lord, didst wait."
26. Thou hast a Temple founded. The Christian Temple; or, Epistle 19th S. after Trinity.
27. To-day, O Lord, the Holy James. St. James. In the 1863 ed. in two parts, Pt. II. being "God in His word does not display."

first appeared in Hymns for those that Seek, and those that have Redemption, &c., 1747, in 6 st. of 10 l. Of these st. i.-iv. and vi. were given in the Wes. H. Bk. in 1800. In an edition subsequent to that of 1809, st. iv. was also omitted, and in the revised ed., 1875, this form in 4 st. is retained. Orig. text P. Works, 1868-72, vol. iv. pp. 237-9. It has been suggested that the "tumult" referred to was that which took place at Wednesbury, October 26, 1743. Although this is quite probable it yet lacks certain proof. See G. J. Stevenson's Meth. H. Bk., Notes, 1883, p. 211. [J. J.]

Worthy the Lamb for sinners slain. [Praise to Jesus.] This cento appeared in the General Baptist New Hymn Book, edited by the brothers J. B. and J. C. Pike [Baptist Hymnody, p. 118, l.], in 1851: and was repeated in the Bapt. Hymnal, 1879, in 5 st. of 4 l. Of the cento st. i., ii. are from J. Montgomery's "Sing we the song of those who stand" (p. 1060, l.), and the rest (iii.-v.) are anonymous. The Rev. W. R. Stevenson, editor of the Bapt. Hymnal, is strongly inclined to think that these stanzas were by the Rev. J. G. Pike, of Derby (with whom he was co-pastor for some time), who was the father of the brothers Pike named above: but he was not quite satisfied with his authority. [J. J.]

Wreford, John Reynell, D.D., b. Dec. 12, 1800, educated at Manchester College, York, and in 1826 succeeded the Rev. James Yates as co-pastor to the Rev. John Kentish at the New Meeting, Birmingham. In 1830 he pub. a tr. of Cellerier's Discourse on the Authenticity and Divine Origin of the Old Testament. In the following year, in consequence of failure of voice, he withdrew from the Ministry, and in conjunction with the Rev. Hugh Hutton, Minister of the Old Meeting, opened a school at Edgbaston. In 1832 he pub. a Sketch of the History of Presbyterian Nonconformity in Birmingham; and in 1837, Lays of Loyalty, in celebration of the Queen's accession. He also contributed, in 1837, to the Rev. J. R. Beard's Coll. of Hys. for Public and Private Worship 55 hymns, of which the following are still in C. U.:—

1. God of the ocean, earth, and sky. God seen in His Works. In various collections, including those by Page Hopps, G. Dawson, and others.
2. Lord, I believe; Thy power I own. For increase of Faith. In Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1840.
3. Lord, while for all mankind we pray. National Hymn. This is in a large number of collections of various denominations, and is by far the most popular of his hymns. Sometimes it begins with st. iii., "O! guard our shores from every foe."
4. When my love to Christ [God] grows weak. Passiontide. In Longfellow and Johnson's Unitarian Hys. of the Spirit, Boston, U. S. A., 1864, "When my love to God grows weak." This is repeated in Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1873 (p. 1271, l.).

Dr. Wreford was also the author of several volumes of verse, chiefly devotional. The latter years of his life he spent in retirement at Bristol, and d. there in 1881.

[V. D. D.]

Wretched, helpless, and distressed. C. Wesley. [Lent.] 1st pub. in Hys. & Sacred Poems, 1742, p. 43, in 8 st. of 8 l., as a second hymn on Rev. iii. 17. In 1780, st. ii. was omitted when the hymn was given in the Wes. H. Bk., No. 105, and in the same form it is still retained. Orig. text P. Works, 1868-72, vol. ii. pp. 92-94. The somewhat peculiar lines:—

" My whole heart is sick of sin, is furnished with this note by Dr. Osborn (P. Works as above).
And my whole head is faint "

" This singular transposition of the Prophet's words (Isaiah l. 5) though found in all the editions, must still be regarded as an oversight."

No evidence, however, of its being such is forthcoming, and the revised ed. of the Wes. H. Bk., 1875, retains the old reading. [J. J.]

Wright, Philip James, was b. in London, May 1, 1810. His parents belonged to the old section of the Methodists, but not agreeing with the form of government he found there, he withdrew, and became a member, and subsequently a minister, with the New Connexion Methodists. After labouring most successfully for several years in various circuits, he d. in 1863. His pub. works include:—The Study of Creation, 1848; The Way of Salvation, 1848; the Gathered Rose, 1858; Revival Hys. and Spiritual Songs, 1860, &c. The Revival Hys., &c., is composed of 91 of his original compositions. Of these a few were included in the Meth. New Con. Hys. for Divine Worship, 1863. "The Lord of glory left His throne" (Redemption), and "Soldiers of the Cross, Servants of the Lord" (Young Men's Societies), are still in C. U. [J. J.]

Wyatt, Henry Herbert, M.A., was educated at Queen's College, Oxford (B.A. 1844, M.A. 1847), and took Holy Orders in 1845. He was travelling secretary for the S. P. G., 1852-56; incumbent of Holy Trinity Chapel, Brighton, 1856-66; principal of the Brighton Training College, 1863-86; and vicar of Bolney, Sussex, 1872-86. In 1886 he became rector of Conington, Ely. Mr. Wyatt has pub. Principal Heresies relating to our Lord's Incarnation, 1881; The Gospel according to St. Matthew, with Explanatory Notes for the Use of Teachers in Schools, 1884; and Ps. and Hys. for Public Worship, 1859 (4th ed., 1868). To this Coll. he contributed in 1859 his well known hymn for National Thanksgiving, "God the Lord has [hath] heard our prayer." It is given in several collections, including the S. P. C. K. Church Hys., 1871; Thring's Coll., 1882, and others. [J. J.]

Wyn, Elis, the Author of Bardd Cwsg, was b. near Harlech, Merionethshire, in the year 1670. He stands unrivalled as a Welsh prose writer. He was induced by Bishop Humphreys to enter Holy Orders, and was ordained deacon and priest on the same day, and on the next presented to the Rectory of Llanfair. He held at the same time other parishes. In 1703 appeared his admired work, Gweledigaethau y Bardd Cwsg, or the "Visions of the Sleeping Bard," which in style is one of the most beautiful works written in the Welsh language. In 1710 he was charged by the Bishops of Wales to superintend a new edition of the Book of Common Prayer. His "Eymyn Cynhebrwng" or Funeral Hymn is found in all Welsh hymnals. He d. in July, 1734, and was buried under the communion table in Llanfair Church.

Xavier, St. Francis, the great missionary saint of the Roman Catholic Church, was the s. of Don John Giasso and Donna Maria d'Azpilqueta y Xavier; he was b. at the castle Xavier, near Pampeluna, Spain, on April 7, 1506, and is known to history by his mother's name. At the age of eighteen he entered the University of Paris, where in due course he graduated, and then devoted himself to teaching. It was here that he became acquainted with Ignatius Loyola the founder of the Jesuits, who was then planning the colossal work which he afterwards accomplished. Xavier became one of the first nine of Loyola's converts, and the most enthusiastic of the little band. The date of the formation of the Order of the Jesuits is given as Aug. 15, 1534, and the place as Montmartre near Paris. We find Xavier at Venice with Loyola in 1537, where the visitation of a hospital for incurables was assigned to him. Here in the discharge of his duties he gave early evidence of his enthusiasm and self-devotion. He subsequently visited Rome, where with Loyola and others of the Order he was brought, through the influence of the Rector of the University of Paris, who was then at Rome, to the notice of John III. of Portugal, who desired some of them for mission work in India. Circumstances led to the selection of Xavier for the work. He left Rome in March 1540, and set sail on April 7, 1541, for Goa, the chief city of the Portuguese possessions, where he arrived on May 6, 1542. From that time to the day of his death at Sancian, near Canton, on Dec. 22, 1552, he devoted himself to his work in a most heroic and devoted manner, visiting Travancore, Ceylon, Malacca, Japan, and other heathen lands with Cross in hand, and a burning zeal in his heart. Xavier's life has been written by many hands. The roll of deeds which he is said to have done, and the miracles he is said to have wrought, even to the raising of the dead, is long, but many of the alleged facts are open to the gravest doubt, and others are beyond belief. The hymns which are associated with Xavier's name are, "O Deus ego amo Te, Nam prior Tu amasti me" (p. 826, i.), and "O Deus ego amo Te, Nec amo Te ut salves me" (p. 826, ii.). That the first was written by him is most improbable, the evidence in his favour being absolutely nil. The second may possibly be his (see as above), it breathes his abnegation of self in every word, his spirit in every line. See Murray's Mag. for Oct. 1890, for an interesting account of Goa and its Cathedral, where Xavier lies buried. [J. J.]

Y

Ye boundless realms of joy. Tate & Brady. [Ps. cxlviii.] Appeared in the New Version, 1696, in 8 st. of 8. l. It is seldom if ever found in its full form in modern collections, but usually as a cento. The metre, which is now somewhat common, is an imitation of John Pullain's version of the same and in hearing the word of life and mercy." (Small ed., 1848, p. 191.)

The hymn is in 12 st. of 4 double lines. In the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, sta. i., ii., viii.-xii. were given as No. 38, and this has become its recognized form in later collections. [J. J.]

Ye principalities and powers. G. Rawson. [Burial.] 1st pub. in the Leeds H. Bk., 1853, No. 858, in 5 st. of 4 l., and again in the author's Hymns, Verses, &c., 1876, p. 114. In the Bap. Ps. & Hys., 1858, No. 616, it was given with the omission of st. i., and began "Though tears will fall and hearts are stirred." This form of the text is repeated in later collections. [J. J.]

Ye royal priests of Jesus, rise. C. Wesley. [Holy Communion.] 1st pub. in his Hys. on the Lord's Supper, 1745, No. 137, in 7 st. of 4 l.; again in later editions of the same; and in P. Works of J. & C. Wesley, 1868-70, vol. iii. pp. 319-320. Its use is not extensive. This hymn is one of the most pronounced of C. Wesley's hymns on "The Lord's Supper." It is based on a portion of Dr. Brevint's work on The Christian Sacrament and Sacrifice, sect. vi. 2. "Concerning the Sacrament, as it is a Sacrifice. And first, of the Commemorative Sacrifice"—

"Nevertheless, this sacrifice, which by a real oblation was not to be offered more than once, is by a devout and thankful commemoration to be offered up every day. This is what the apostle calls, to set forth the death of the Lord: to set it forth as well before the eyes of God His Father as before the eyes of men: and what St. Austin explained, when he said the holy flesh of Jesus was offered in three manners: by prefiguring sacrifices under the law before His coming into the world, in real deed upon His cross, and by a commemorative Sacrament after He ascended into heaven. All comes to this: (1) That the sacrifice in itself can never be repeated; (2) That nevertheless this Sacrament, by our remembrance, becomes a kind of sacrifice, whereby we present before God the Father that precious oblation of His Son once offered. And thus do we every day offer unto God the meritorious sufferings of our Lord, as the only sure ground whereon God may give, and we obtain, the blessings we pray for," &c. P. Works, 1868-70, vol. iii. p. 203.

It is curious to note how faithfully C. Wesley reproduces Dr. Brevint's views not only of this aspect of the Holy Communion, but also of its daily administration. It is desirable that all C. Wesley's Hys. on the Lord's Supper be read with the extracts from Dr. Brevint's work, upon which they are based, and with which they are published in the P. Works, as above. [J. J.]

Ye saints! in blest communion. J. S. B. Monsell. [Saints Days, Special and General.] Pub. in his Hys. of Love and Praise, 1863, p. 186, and composed of 5 opening stanzas of 8 l.; 19 st. for special days, as St. Andrew, St. Thomas, and others; and a concluding doxology. In this form it was repeated in his Parish Hymnal, 1873, and in both instances directions were given in a note as to the use which might be made of these 28 st. for special festivals. This hymn suggested to Earl Nelson his well-known "From all Thy saints in warfare, for all Thy saints at rest," p. 399, ii. [J. J.]

Ye servants of God, Your Master proclaim. C. Wesley. [Missions.] Pub. in Hys. for Times of Trouble and Persecution, 1744, in 6 st. of 4 l., as No. 1 of "Hymns to be sung in Tumult" (P. Works, 1868-72, vol. iv. p. 51). It is given in its full, or in an abbreviated form in several of the older collections, and especially those of the Church of England. In 1830 a cento was included in the Supplement of the Wes. H. Bk., No. 557, st. i.-v. being from this hymn, and st. vi. from C. Wesley's Funeral Hys., 1746, No. 6, st. v. In the revised ed. of the Wes. H. Bk., 1875, this last stanza was omitted. [J. J.]

Ye servants of the Lord, Each in his office wait. P. Doddridge. [Christian Activity and Zeal.] Appeared in J. Orton's posthumous ed. of Doddridge's Hymns, &c., 1755, No. 210, in 5 st. of 4 l., and headed, "The active Christian"; and again in J. D. Humphreys's ed. of the same, 1839, No. 234. It is in extensive use, and usually in its original form. Sometimes, however, st. v. l. 3, "And raise that favourite Servant's head," is altered to "And raise that faithful servant's head." [J. J.]

Ye simple souls that stray. C. Wesley (?). [Exhortation.] 1st pub. in Hys. for those that Seek and those that Have Redemption, 1747, in 7 st. of 8 l. In 1780 it was given in the Wes. H. Bk., No. 21, with considerable alterations, and the omission of st. iii. The authorship of this hymn has been a matter of dispute for many years, some claiming it for John Wesley on the authority of Mr. Henry Moore, and others for Charles on the word of Dr. Whitehead. The work in which it appeared is known to have been pub. by the two brothers, and the contents were unsigned. Under these circumstances the difficulty of determining the authorship is great. There is some probability in the suggestion that it was written by Charles, and that the extensive alterations made therein for the Wes. H. Bk., in 1780, were the work of his brother. Original text, P. Works, 1868-72, vol. iv. p. 230. [J. J.]

Ye sons of earth, prepare the plough. W. Cowper. [The Sower.] Pub. in the Olney Hymns, 1779, Bk. i., No. 85, in 6 st. of 4 l., and entitled, "The Sower." It is in several modern collections, but it does not rank in popularity with many of Cowper's hymns. [J. J.]

Ye that pass by, behold the man. C. Wesley. [Good Friday.] 1st pub. in Hys. and Sacred Poems, 1742, in 18 st. of 4 l. and entitled, "A Passion Hymn" (P. Works, 1868-72, vol. ii. p. 70). In the Wes. H. Bk., 1780, 15 st. were given as No. 24, the omitted st. being ii., iv., and vii. In the 1809 ed. of that collection the hymn is divided into two parts, pt. ii. beginning with "O Thou dear suffering Son of God." Many expressions in the hymn, such as "Give me to feel Thy agonies," and others, have been much criticised from time to time, and this may possibly account for the omission of the hymn from the revised edition of the Wes. H. Bk., 1875. Both parts, however, are still in use in G. Britain and America. [J. J.]

Ye that put on the heavenly crown. G. Rawson. [Burial. Easter.] Contributed to the Leeds H. Bk., 1853, in 6 st. of 4 l., No. 856. In 1858 st. iii.-vi. were given as

"Glory to Him Who tasted death," in the Bap. Ps. & Hys., No. 273; and have been continued in later editions. The reason of this curtailment of the hymn probably arose from objections to the opening stanzas, and especially to the lines:—

"Brethren in glory, bend ye down,
And aid our faltering hymn."

The abbreviation has however changed a funeral hymn into one for Easter. In 1876 Mr. Rawson republished the full text in his Hymns, with the simple change in st. ii. l. 4, of "beside" to "so near the grave." [J. J.]

Ye whose hearts are beating high. J. Keble. [Palm Sunday.] Given in his Christian Year, 1827, as the Poem for Palm Sunday, in 6 st. of 8 l., and based on St. Luke xix. 40. In the Leeds H. Bk., 1853, No. 206, it is given in an altered form as "Come, all grateful human hearts." [J. J.]

Ye wretched, hungry, starving poor. Anne Steele. [The Gospel Feast.] 1st pub. in her Poems Chiefly Devotional, &c., 1760, vol. i., p. 17, in 7 st. of 4 l., and headed "Longing Souls invited to the Gospel-Feast, Luke xiv. 22;" also in the ed. of 1780, and D. Sedgwick's reprint of her Hymns, &c., 1863, p. 10. From this hymn the following abbreviated texts and centos have come into C.U.:—

1. Ye wretched, hungry, starving poor. In Ash and Evans's Bristol Bap. Coll., 1769, No. 144, and later hymnbooks. Usually st. vii. is omitted.

2. Ye wretched, starving poor. This in the American Church Pastorals, Boston, 1864, is composed of st. i.-iv. rewritten from C.M. into S.M.

3. See, Jesus stands with open arms. In the American Bap. Service of Song, 1871, beginning with st. ii. In the N. Y. Church Praise Bk., 1882, st. iv. is also omitted.

4. Lo, Jesus stands with open arms. This in the American Proto. Episco. Additional and Selected Hys. from H. A. & M., &c., N.Y., 1869 is composed of st. ii., v.-vii. slightly altered.

Through these various forms this hymn is somewhat widely used. [J. J.]

Yea, thou hast drained thy Master's cup. [Conversion of St. Paul.] This cento is in W. J. Blew's Church Hy. and Tune Bk., 1852-55; and Rice's Sel. from the same, 1870, No. 120, in 7 st. of 4 l. St. i.-iii. are a tr. from "Sudore sat tuo fides"; and iv.-viii. from "Sat Paule sat terris datum." Both hymns are by G. de la Brunetiere, in the Paris Brev. of 1680. The trs. are by Mr. Blew. [J. J.]

Yes, God is good! in earth and sky. [Goodness of God in nature; or, Flower Services.] The history of this popular hymn is somewhat curious and intricate. It is of American origin and came into modern hymnbooks in the following manner:—

1. The original hymn appeared in Hys. for Children, Boston, U.S.A., 1825, in 6 st. of 4 l., the opening stanza reading:—

"God is good! each perfumed flower,
The smiling fields, the dark green wood,
The insect fluttering for an hour;
All things proclaim that God is good!"

The editor of this collection is not named. Possibly it may have been Mrs. Follen, the writer of the hymn. The false metre of the opening line (7's instead of 8's) was probably a misprint. In several instances this line has been republished, notwithstanding the clearness of the error. (See p. 380, l. 4.)

appeared in the Protestant Dissenters Juvenile Magazine, 1833, and again in T. R. Taylor's Memoirs and Select Remains, 1836, p. 245, in 5 st. of 6 l. It is found in C. U. in its original form; and also rewritten as "Children's voices high in heaven," in the Bapt. Ps. & Hys., 1858, No. 959, and later collections. The re-written form of the text is by Mr. George Rawson, and was made for the Bapt. Ps. & Hys., 1858. [J. J.]

Yet a little while: the Lord Gave His saints this precious word. Lady Campbell, née Malcolm. [Second Advent.] The first stanza was written early in Nov., and the remaining two on Dec. 26, 1830, and subsequently pub. in lithograph from the author's mss. It was included in J. G. Deck's Ps. and Hys., Lond., D. Walther, 1842. Pt. i., No. 189; in Walker's Cheltenham Ps. & Hys., 1855; in Harland's Ch. Psalter & Hyl., and others. [J. J.]

Yet there is room! The Lamb's bright hall of song. H. Bonar. [Parable of the Marriage Supper.] This most appropriate hymn for Home Missions appeared in 1873. It has been somewhat widely adopted, and is given in the collections of Snepp, Sankey, Thring, and others, and is worthy of this attention. [J. J.]

Yonge, Charlotte Mary, dau. of William Crawley Yonge of the 52nd Regiment, was b. at Otterbourne, Hants, in 1823. Miss Yonge is widely known as the author of The Heir of Redcliffe, The Daisy Chain, and other popular novels; of a series of historical works for the young, including Stories of English History, 1874, Stories of Greek History, 1876, &c.; of the Life of Bishop Patteson; and as the Editor of the Monthly Packet. In 1841 Miss Yonge contributed two hymns to The Child's Christian Year, which was edited by her mother (see below). The hymns are:— (1) "Into Christ's flock we are received" (Holy Baptism); (2) "Why lived I not in those blest days?" (St Thomas). [J. J.]

Yonge, Frances Mary, née Bargus, was b. Jan. 13, 1795, was married to William Crawley Yonge of the 52nd Regiment, and d. Sep. 28, 1868. Mrs. Yonge pub. in 1841, The Child's Christian Year, with a Preface by John Keble. The contents are mainly by J. Anstice, J. H. Newman, I. Williams, and Mrs. Yonge, with a few hymns by Miss Yonge, Mrs. Mozley, T. Whytehead, J. Keble, and others. Mrs. Yonge's hymns are:—

1. Behold a Prophet,—yea, and more. St. John Baptist.
2. His are the cattle on the hills. All things for God.
3. Not only as a sacrifice. Jesus the Example.
4. Put far from us, O Lord, we pray. Advent.
5. The Assyrian King in splendour came. Defeat of the Assyrians.

The use of these hymns is limited. [J. J.]

You now must hear my voice no more. W. Robertson. [Ascensiontide.] First appeared as No. 15 in the Draft Scottish Translations and Paraphrases, 1745, as a version of John xiv., 25–29, in 6 st. of 4 l. and slightly altered in the revised ed. issued in 1751. In the Draft of 1781 it was included as No. 43, considerably altered, and with st. v., vi. omitted. In the public worship ed. of the Trs. & Paraphs. issued in that year by the Church of Scotland and still in use, st. ii. was re-written, and st. i., l. 3, st. iii., l. 1, were altered from the Draft. In the markings by the eldest daughter of W. Cameron (p. 200, ii.) the original is ascribed to Robertson, and the alterations in 1781 to Cameron. The revised text of 1781 is included in the Eng. Presb. Ps. & Hys., 1867, and a few other modern hymnals. (Compare the version of the same passage of Holy Scripture "Peace—it was our Saviour's blessing," No. 73, in Miss Leeson's Paraphs. & Hys. for Cong. Singing, 1853.) [J. M.]

You who dwell above the skies. G. Sandys. [Ps. cxlviii.] This fine rendering of Ps. cxlviii. appeared in his Paraphrase of the Psalms, 1636, in 40 l. It was republished in his Paraphrases upon the Divine Poems, 1638, and in later editions. Also in the Library of Old Authors. In the Wes. H. Bk., 1875, No. 639, it is given in 9 st. of 4 l. as "Ye, who dwell above the skies," where the text is but slightly altered. It is worthy of more extended use than is accorded to it in modern hymnals. [See Psalters, English, § x.] [J. J.]

You who the Name of Jesus bear. [Humiliation and Exaltation of Christ.] First appeared as No. 7 in the Draft Scottish Translations and Paraphrases, 1745, as a version of Phil. ii., 6–12, in 7 st. of 4 l. The author is unknown. In the revised edition, issued in 1751, st. iii. vii. were altered, and this form was included, slightly altered, as No. 52 in the Draft of 1781 beginning "Ye who the Name of Jesus bear." In the public worship ed. of the Trs. and Paraphs. issued in that year by the Church of Scotland, and still in use, st. v. was re-written, and st. ii., ll. 2–4, st. vi. l. 1 altered. In the markings by the eldest daughter of W. Cameron, (p. 200, ii.) the original is ascribed to Isaac Watts (in whose works it is not to be found) and the alterations of 1781 to Cameron. The revised text of 1781 is included in Pratt's Coll., 1829, the Eng. Presb. Ps. & Hys., 1867, and a few other modern hymnals. St. v.–vii. beginning "Hence God this generous love to men," were included, with an added doxology, in the Twickenham Chapel Coll., 1845, p. 58. In Miss Leeson's Paraphs. and Hys. for Cong. Singing, 1853, it is slightly altered as pt. i. of No. 81; her pt. ii., beginning "Hail, name of Jesus' glorious name," being partly from "All hail the power of Jesus' name." [J. M.]

Young, Andrew, second s. of David Young, for more than fifty years a most efficient teacher in Edinburgh, was b. at Edinburgh, April 23, 1807. After passing through a distinguished eight years' literary and theological course at the University of Edinburgh, he was appointed in 1830, by the Town Council, Head Master of Niddry Street School, Edinburgh, where he began with 80 pupils, and left with the total at 600. In 1840 he became Head English Master of Madras College, St. Andrews, where he was equally successful. He retired from St. Andrews in 1853, and lived in Edinburgh, where he was for some time the Superintendent of the Greenside Parish Sabbath School. He d. Nov. 30, 1889. Many of Mr. Young's hymns and poems were contributed to periodicals. A collected edition of these was published in 1876, as The Scottish Highlands and Other Poems. His poems entitle him to rank in the first order of Scottish minor poets. Some of his hymns are very sweet. His "There is a happy land" (q. v.) has attained great popularity. [J. M.]

Young children once to Jesus came.

Jane Taylor. [Christ receiving little children.] This hymn was given in the 1st ed. of Hys. for Infant Minds, 1810, as "As infants once to Christ were brought." In the 4th ed., 1812, the opening line was altered to "Young children once to Jesus came," and this is repeated in the revised ed. of 1886. It is in 6 st. of 4 l. and based upon the words "Suffer little children to come unto me." It is given in several modern collections for children. [J. J.]

Your harps, ye trembling saints.

A. M. Toplady. [Encouragement to Believers.] Printed in the Gospel Magazine, Feb. 1772, in 8 st. of 8 l., and headed "Weak Believers Encouraged." It was included in his Hys. on Sacred Subjects, &c., London, W. H. Collingridge, 1856; and in D. Sedgwick's ed. of his Hys. and Sacred Poems, 1860. Several abbreviated forms of the text, all beginning with the original first line, are in C. U. in G. Britain and America. There is also in American use a cento beginning "If through unruffled seas," in 4 st. of 4 l., of which st. ii.-iv. are from this hymn, and stanza i. is by another hand. It is given in the Songs for the Sanctuary, 1865, the Laudes Domini, 1884, and others. [J. J.]

Zage nicht wenn sich der Himmel.

[Cross and Consolation.] Included in J. Köbner's Christliche Harfentöne, Hamburg, 1840, p. 150, in 6 st. of 4 l., entitled "Guidance." No author's name is given. The tr. in C. U. is "Tremble not, though darkly gather." A good tr. expanding st. ii. as ii., iii., by Miss Borthwick, in H. L. L., 1st ser., 1854, p. 19 (1884, p. 24). Included in Gillfillan's Sel., Dundee, 1875, No. 51. [J. M.]

Zeller, Christian Heinrich, s. of Christian David Zeller, Hofrath at Hohenentrungen, near Tübingen, was b. at Hohenentrungen, March 29, 1779. He matriculated at the University of Tübingen in 1797, as a student of law. After completing his studies he chose, however, the profession of teaching. He became director of the Latin School at Zoffingen, Switzerland, in 1809, and finally removed in April, 1820, to Beuggen on the Rhine (Baden), near Basel, as director of the newly founded Institution there, meant for the education of poor children and for the training of teachers for poor children. He d. at Beuggen, May 18, 1860 (Koch, vii. 188, &c.).

Zeller was best known as an educationist, and in connection with the working of the Institution at Beuggen. His hymns, which are simple, Scriptural and earnest were written primarily for use at Beuggen, and mostly appeared in the Monatsblatt (begun in 1828), and other publications of the Institution. They came into notice

Zihn, Johann Friedrich, was b. Sept. 7, 1650, at Suhl, in Thuringia. After studying for some time at the University of Leipzig, he went to Wittenberg, where he graduated M.A. in 1675; and in 1679 was appointed rector of the school at Suhl. In 1690 he became diaconus, and in 1708 archidiaconus at Suhl, and d. there, Jan. 16, 1719 (Wetzel, iii. 470; Koch, v. 419, &c.). Zihn contributed five hymns (Nos. 526-530) to the Schleusingen G. B., 1688, the title of which begins, Der himmlischer Freude zeitlicher Vorschmack. One has been tr., viz. :—

Gott lebet noch, Seele was versaget du doch.
Cross and Consolation. 1688 as above, No. 529, in 8 st. of 10 l., marked as by M. J. F. Z. In each stanza ll. 1, 2 are as quoted above, and ll. 9, 10 are the refrain,

"Seele! so gedanke doch; Lebt doch unser Herr Gott noch."

It is a fine hymn, founded on Jer. x. 10. Koch says it was written in 1682. Included in Freylinghausen's Neues geistreiches G. B., 1714, and recently in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 844. The tr. in C. U. is :—

God liveth ever! This is a good and full version, by Miss Winkworth in her Lyra Ger., 1st Ser., 1855, p. 33. Repeated in full in Miss Warner's Hys. of the Church Militant, 1858, and in Bp. Ryle's Coll., 1860. Varying centos are included in the Cumbræ H. Bk.; Flett's Coll., Paisley, 1871, and the Ibrox Hyl., 1871. The form beginning "Our God is good; in every place," in the Hys. of the Spirit, Boston, U. S., 1864, is from ll. 3-6 of st. i., iii., vi., viii.

Other trs. are :—

(1) "God liveth still! Trust," &c. By Miss Cox, 1864, p. 129; repeated in the Gillman-Schaff Lib. of Rel. Poetry, 1881. (2) "God liveth still! Wherefore," &c. By R. Massie, in the Day of Rest, 1877, vol. vi. p. 326.

Zinzendorf, Christian Renatus, Count von, second s. of Nicolaus Ludwig von Zinzendorf, was b. Sept. 19, 1727, at Herrnhut, in Saxony. He received his education from his parents, and from Johann Langguth and others of the Brethren. He was the only son that survived his boyhood, early accompanied his father on his journeys, and was, e.g., in 1743, for sixteen days imprisoned with him at Riga. From 1744 to 1750 he lived mostly at Herrenhaag in Wetteravia, ministering specially to the single Brethren. When the community at Herrenhaag was dissolved in 1750, his father summoned him to London. He brought with him the seeds of consumption, which developed in England. He d. in London, May 28, 1752 (Koch, v., 312; Hist. Nachricht (to the Brüder G. B., 1778), 1835, p. 192, &c.).

C. R. von Zinzendorf's hymns were principally written during his residence in London. They are by no means free from the faults and mannerisms of that sentimental and fantastic period of Moravian hymn-writing; and their range of subjects is very limited. Their burden is a deep and intense personal devotion to the crucified Saviour; the spirit being that of his favourite saying, "I have but one passion, and that is He, only He." They were collected by his father, and pub. (with a preface dated March 18, 1755), as the 1st Appendix to the London G. B. of 1754, with 53 (54) pieces, 9 of which consist of only one stanza, 2nd ed. 1760 (See p. 768, ii.). Most of them passed into the Brüder G. B. of 1778. Few have passed into English use in non-Moravian hymn-books.

Three of these hymns may here be referred to :—

i. Ach lass auf allen Tritten. Sanctification, Written in 1751. Included in the Kleine Brüder G. B., London, 1754. It is No. 64 in the 2nd ed., 1760, of the Appx. of 1755, and repeated as st. ii. of No. 380, in the Brüder G. B., 1778. The tr. in C. U. is :—

Lord Jesus, Thy atonement. This is No. 427 in the Moravian H. B., 1789 (1849, No. 588), repeated in Bickersteth's Christ. Psalmody, 1833.

ii. Für uns ging mein Herr in Todesnöthen. Passiontide. This is included as No. 166 in the Brüder G. B., 1778, in 10 st. of 8 l. It is a cento from three hymns in the Appx. of 1755, as above, viz. st. 1-5, 8, 9 are st. 12-15, 17, 11, 18, of No. 28 (this hymn begins "Ach du unaussprechlich nahes Herze"); st. 6, 7 are st. 2, 3, of No. 10; while st. 10 is No. 17. The text of 1778 is in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 230. The tr. in C. U. is :—

My Redeemer, overwhelm'd with anguish. By J. Swertner, in full, from the 1778 text, as No. 78 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789 (1849, No. 93). The trs. of st. 1, 2, 6-8, were included in Walker's Coll., Cheltenham, 1855. In the Moravian H. Bk., 1886, No. 82, it begins with st. vi. "Our enraptured hearts shall ne'er be weary."

iii. O süsse Seelenwaide. This is noted at p. 467, ii.

Not including the above the English Moravian H. Bk., 1886, gives seven hymns with his name, and ascribes portions of four others to him. [J. M.]

Zinzendorf, Nicolaus Ludwig, Count von, was b. at Dresden, May 26, 1700; was educated at the Paedagogium at Halle (1710-1716), and at the University of Wittenberg (1716-1719); became Hof- und Justizrath at the Saxon court at Dresden in the autumn of 1721; received a license to preach from the Theological Faculty of the University of Tübingen in 1734; was consecrated Bishop of the Moravian Brethren's Unity at Berlin, May 10, 1737; and d. at Herrnhut, May 9, 1760.

An adequate sketch of the life and labours of this remarkable man would far exceed the limits of our space. The details of his life are fully given in his Leben, by A. G. Spangenberg, 8 vols., Barby, 1772-75 (English version, abridged, by Samuel Jackson, London, 1838); and good sketches, with references to the fuller biographies, will be found in Koch, v. 248, Herzog's Real-Encyklopädie, xvii. 513, &c. The English reader may also consult T. Kübler's Hist. Notes to the Lyra Germanica, 1865, p. 107; Josiah Miller's Singers and Songs, 1869, p. 160; Miss Winkworth's Christian Singers of Germany, 1869, p. 305, &c. It is impossible to speak of Zinzendorf apart from the religious Communion of which he was the Second Founder; and accordingly an account of his life and labours is given in this Dictionary in the article Moravian Hymnody (see pp. 765-769).

Zinzendorf's first hymn was written at Halle in 1712, and his last at Herrnhut, May 4, 1760. Between these dates he wrote more than 2000 hymns. He himself pub. an edition of his poems as his Teutsche Gedichte at Herrnhut, 1735 (2nd ed., Barby, 1766), but this only contains 128 hymns. The fullest representation of them is in Albert Knapp's

Geistliche Gedichte des Grafen von Zinzendorf, pub. at Stuttgart in 1845 (hereafter, in this article, referred to as Knapp, 1845). This contains 770 pieces, arranged in three books, with an introduction and a biographical sketch by Knapp.

In preparing this edition Knapp had access to much unpublished material in the archives at Herrnhut, and found there many of the hymns in Zinzendorf's autograph. But too much of the labour he bestowed thereon was spent in endeavouring, not so much to reconstruct the text from the original sources, as to modernise it. In various instances the hymns are altogether rewritten, so that the form in which they appear is not that in which, as a matter of fact, Zinzendorf did write them, but that in which he might have written them had he been Albert Knapp, and lived in the year of grace 1845. So much is this the case, that comparatively few of the hymns are given in Knapp's ed. in their original form. If not altered they are often either abridged or else combined with others.

The keynote of Zinzendorf's hymns, and of his religious character, was a deep and earnest personal devotion to and fellowship with the crucified Saviour. This is seen even in his worst pieces, where it is his perverted fervour that leads him into objectionable familiarity with sacred things both in thought and in expression. If his self-restraint had been equal to his imaginative and productive powers, he would have ranked as one of the greatest German hymnwriters. As it is, most even of his best pieces err in some way or other, for if they are reverent and in good taste, they are apt to lack concentration and to be far too diffuse. His best hymns, and those which have been most popular in German and English beyond the Moravian connection, are those of the period prior to 1734. Among the characteristically Moravian hymns of the period 1734 to 1742 there are also various noble pieces. The later productions, especially from 1743 to 1750, are as a rule one-sided, unrest, and exaggerated in sentiment, and debased in style; exemplifying a tendency inherited from Scheffler (see p. 1006, l.), and suffered to run to riot. Without doubt he wrote too much (especially considering the limited range of subjects treated of in his hymns), and gave too little care to revision and condensation. Yet many of his hymns are worthy of note, and are distinguished by a certain noble simplicity, true sweetness, lyric grace, unshaken faith in the reconciling grace of Christ, entire self-consecration, willingness to spend and be spent in the Master's service, and fervent brotherly love.

The hymnbooks in which Zinzendorf's productions mainly appeared, or with which they have been associated, are described at length at pp. 767, 768. The more important may for convenience be briefly noted here, as follows:—

(1) Sammlung geistlicher und lieblicher Lieder, Leipzig, 1728, with 889 hymns. The 2nd ed. was pub. circa 1728, and contains an Anhang with Nos. 890-1078 [Berlin Library, El. 2017]; while some copies have a Zugabe with Nos. 1079-1149 [Berlin, El. 2016], and others have also an Anderer Zugabe, circa 1730, with hymns 1-44, bound up with them [Berlin, El. 2014, and Brit. Mus.]. The 3rd ed., with 1416 hymns in all, was pub. at Götting in 1731. A copy of this, now in the Hamburg Library, has bound up with it a Nachlese einiger geistlicher Lieder, dated 1733.

(2) Herrnhut G. B. 1735 (Das Gesang-Buch der Gemeinde in Herrn-Huth) with its various Anhänge and Zugaben up to 1745.

(3) London G. B. 1753-54 (Etwas vom Liede Moris ... das ist: Alt- und neuer Brüder-Gesang, &c.), pub. at London, vol. I. 1753, II. 1754.

(4) Brüder G. B. 1778 (Gesangbuch zum Gebrauch der evangelischen Brüdergemeinen) pub. at Barby in 1778.

Zinzendorf's hymns passed into German non-Moravian use mainly through the Ebersdorf G. B. 1742 (Evangelisches Gesangbuch in einen hinlänglichen Auszug der Alten, Neuern und Neuesten Lieder, &c.), and in recent times through Knapp's Ec. L. S., 1837-1865. Comparatively few are found in non-Moravian English hymnbooks prior to 1840, save in the versions made by John Wesley. The translations made by the English Moravians have been very little used by others, circa 1741, to the Herrnhut G. B., as No. 1426, in 27 st. of 8 l. In the Brüder G. B., 1778, No. 603. Tr. as:—

Lord, when Thou saidst, So let it be. This is a tr., by C. G. Clemens, of st. iii., as No. 156 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789 (1849, No. 190). Included in the Cong. H. Bk., 1836, and in Dr. Martineau's Hys., 1840 and 1873.

ix. Heiliger, heiliger, heiliger Herr Zebaoth. Eternal Life. Heaven Anticipated. The Rev. J. T. Müller, of Herrnhut, informs me that this was written in 1723 on the occasion of the birthday (Oct. 6) of Zinzendorf's grandmother, H. C. von Gersdorf. Knapp, 1846, p. 193, dates it Oct. 18, 1723. 1st pub. as No. 1078 (2) in the 2nd ed., circa 1728, of the Sammlung in 7 st. of 7 l., entitled, Closing Hymn. In the Brüder G. B., 1778, st. ii., iii., beginning "Hätten wir," are included as st. i., ii., of No. 1739. Tr. as:—

Had we nought, had we nought. This is a tr. of st. ii., iii., by W. O. Keley, as No. 1189 in the 1808 Suppl. to the Moravian H. Bk., 1801 (1849, No. 1186), and repeated in J. A. Latrobe's Ps. & Hys., 1841, No. 475.

x. Ich bin ein kleines Kindlein. Children. This is No. 1022 in the 3rd ed., 1731, of the Sammlung, in 13 st. of 4 l. In the Brüder G. B., 1778, No. 1214, and in the Hist. Nachricht thereto (1835, p. 188) marked as a catechetical hymn for children, and dated 1723. Knapp, 1845, p. 40, dates it June, 1723, and alters it to "Ich bin ein Kindlein, arm und klein." It is a simple and beautiful hymn, and is contained in a number of recent German non-Moravian collections, e.g. in the Berlin G. L. S., ed. 1863, No. 1408. Tr. as:—

1. Saviour, who didst from Heaven come down. This is a free tr. of st. ii., iii., v., made by James Bullivant Tomalin in 1860, and contributed to Lord Selborne's Bk. of Praise, ed. 1866, Appz., No. 27, with the note at p. 500, "I am indebted for this to the kindness of the translator." Repeated in S. D. Major's Bk. of Praise for Home & School, 1869, and in America in the Bapt. Service of Song, 1871, &c. In M. W. Stryker's Christian Chorals, 1885, and Church Song, 1889, it is altered, beginning, "O Saviour, Who from Heav'n came down."

2. I am a little child you see. By C. Kinchen, as No. 49 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1742. This form is followed in the ed. of 1886, No. 1038, and in the Bible H. Bk., 1846. In the Moravian H. Bk., 1789, it begins with st. ii., "Thou, gracious Saviour, for my good;" and this form altered to, "My Saviour dear, Thou for my good," is in Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825.

xi. Kommt, Sünder, und blicket dem ewigen Sohne. Repentance or Lent. Mr. Müller informs me that this was written in Aug. 1736, at Bernau, near Berlin, while Zinzendorf was journeying between Berlin and Königsberg. Knapp, 1845, p. 130, dates it Nov. 22, 1738. 1st pub. in Appz. viii., circa 1739, to the Herrnhut G. B., as No. 1308, in 9 st. of 4 l. In the Brüder G. B., 1778, No. 321. Tr. as:—

Sinners! come, the Saviour see. This a good and full tr. by C. Kinchen, as No. 120, in the Moravian H. Bk., 1742 (1886, No. 259). Of this st. i., ii. are included in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866. Other forms are (1) "Are you formed a creature new" (st. vi.). In the Moravian H. Bk., 1769 (1886, No. 1280), Montgomery's Christian Psalmist, 1825, &c. (2) "Rise, go forth to meet the Lamb" (st. viii. alt.). In J. A. Latrobe's Ps. & Hys., 1852, No. 457.

xii. Kron' und Lohn behertzter Ringer. The Beatitudes. Founded on St. Matt. v. 3-12. In his Teutsche Gedichte, 1735, p. 41, dated, Sept. 7, 1722 (his marriage day), and entitled, "Thoughts on my own marriage." 1st pub. as No. 700 in the Sammlung, 1725, in 16 st. of 12 l. In Knapp, 1845, p. 30. In the Brüder G. B., 1778, No. 513, beginning, "Jesu, der du uns erworben." Tr. as:—

Jesu! Lord so great and glorious. This, omitting st. xiv., xv., is No. 226 in pt. ii. of the Moravian H. Bk., 1754 (1886, No. 799, as "Jesus, Lord most great and glorious"). The versions of st. i., ix., xvi., from the Moravian H. Bk., 1789, were included in the Dalston Hospital H. Bk., 1848.

xiii. Naht heran, ihr lieben Glieder. Holy Communion. Written in 1731 (Knapp, 1845, p. 212). 1st pub. in the 3rd ed., 1731, of the Sammlung as No. 1416 in 16 st. of 4 l. Also in the Brüder G. B., 1778, No. 1148. Tr. as:—

1. Friends in Jesus, now draw near. This is a free tr., omitting st. v., vi., viii., x., xiv., by Miss Borthwick in H. L. L. 4th ser., 1862, p. 57 (1884 sp. 220), the German being quoted as "Kommt herein, ihr lieben Glieder." This tr. is repeated in full in Lyra Eucharistica, 1863, p. 34, and abridged in G. S. Jellicoe's Coll. 1867, Windle, No. 480, and Harland, 1876, No. 451.

2. Come, approach to Jesu's table. This is No. 556 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789 (1849, No. 965).

xiv. O du Hüter Ephraim. Supplication for Grace. In his Teutsche Gedichte, 1735, p. 158, dated 1728, entitled, "On his wife's 28th birthday" (she was b. Nov. 7, 1700, see p. 769, ii.), and with the note, "This poem was written for the birthday festival of the Countess, was sung by a company or coterie of friends, each member of which was indicated according to their circumstances at the time." It had previously appeared, without the first stanza, and this form, which begins, "Herz der göttlichen Natur," is noted at p. 517, i.

xv. Rath, Kraft, und Held, und Wunderbar. Christmas. Founded on Is. ix. 6. In his Teutsche Gedichte, 1735, p. 25, in 9 st. of 6 l., entitled, "Christmas Thoughts," and dated 1721; and in the Herrnhut G. B., 1735, No. 827. In Knapp, 1845, p. 21. In the Brüder G. B., 1778, No. 488, it begins with st. vi., "Mein alles! mehr als alle Welt." Tr. as:—

My all things more than earth and sky. This is a tr. of st. vi., by C. G. Clemens, as No. 306 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789. In 1801 altered to "My all in all, my faithful Friend;" and to this in 1826, trs. of st. ii., vii.-ix., by P. Latrobe, were added (1886, No. 399). From this form a cento in 5 st. of 4 l., beginning, "O Lord! Thou art my rock, my guide," was included in Dr. Martineau's Hys., 1840.

xvi. Ruht aus von eurer Mühe. Christian Church. Written in 1737 (Knapp, 1845, p. 232, as Du gestern und auch heute). 1st pub. in Appz. vi., circa 1737, to the Herrnhut G. B., as No. 1183, in 8 st. of 8 l., entitled, "Hymn of the witnesses." In the Brüder G. B., 1778, st. iv. is given as No. 1042. Tr. as:—

O Jesus Christ, most holy. This is a tr. of st. iv. by C. G. Clemens, as No. 487 in the Moravian H. Bk., 1789 (1849, No. 807; 1886, No. 795, beginning, "Lord Jesus Christ") Included in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866.

xvii. Seligs Volk der Zeugenwolk. This form is tr. as "Oh, faithful God! with deep and sad emotion." By Mrs. Findlater, in H. L. L., 1862, p. 45 (1884, p. 211). [See also Appendix.] [J. M.]

Zion stands by hills surrounded. T. Kelly. [The Security of the Church.] 1st pub. in the 2nd ed. of his Hymns, &c., 1806, in 5 st. of 6 l. (ed. 1853, No. 136). It is in C. U. in its full form, and also in centos, as:—

1. Every human tie may perish. This cento, beginning with st. ii., is given in a few American collections.

2. On the Rock of Ages founded. In the 1874 Supplement to the New Cong., No. 1216, in st. i., ii., iv., v. rewritten.

3. Zion stands with hills surrounded. This slightly altered text is in a few American hymn-books.

Taking the original text and these centos together, it is found that the use of this hymn is somewhat extensive. It is based on Ps. cxxv., 2, and is a vigorous hymn on the Security of the Church of Christ. [J. J.]

Ζοφερὰς τρικυμίας. St. Anatolius [Christ Stilling the Tempest.] The Very Rev. S. G. Hatherly, in his ed. of Dr. Neale's Hys. of the Eastern Church, 1882 (4th ed.) says:—

"These Stichera are not in use in the Church Service. They are probably taken by Dr. Neale from the work of some German antiquarian. Sundays of the First Tone are the 1st after Easter, and the 2nd, 10th, 18th and every eighth following Sunday after Pentecost until the Sunday next before Easter."

It is more probable, however, that Dr. Neale got his text from the "dateless Constantinopolitan book" from whence he said he got his "Art thou weary" (see p. 632, ii.) than that he secured it "from the work of some German antiquarian." Dr. Neale's tr., "Fierce was the wild billow," was pub. in his Hys. of the Eastern Church, 1862, in 3 st. of 8 l., and headed "Stichera for a Sunday of the First Tone." It was included in the Parish H. Bk., 1863; and subsequently in numerous collections in G. Britain and America. In some hymnals it reads, "Fierce the wild billow was," and in others "Fierce was the Galilee;" but Neale's text is that which is most extensively known. [J. J.]

Zwick, Johann, s. of Conrad Zwick, Rathsherr at Constanz, was b. at Constanz, circa 1496. He studied law at the Universities of Basel, Freiburg, Paris, and Padua (where he graduated LL.D.), and was for some time a tutor in law at Freiburg and at Basel. In 1518 he entered the priesthood, and in 1522 was appointed parish priest of Riedlingen on the Upper Danube. Being accused of Lutheran tendencies, he was forbidden in 1523 to officiate, and in 1525 his living was formally taken from him. He returned to Constanz, and was appointed by the Council in 1527 as one of the town preachers. Here he laboured unweariedly, caring specially for the children, the poor, and the refugees, till 1542. In Aug., 1542, the people of Bischofszell, in Thurgau, having lost their pastor by the pestilence, besought Constanz to send them a preacher; and Zwick, proceeding there, preached and visited the sick till he himself fell a victim to the pestilence, and d. there Oct. 23, 1542 (Koch, ii., 76; Herzog's Real-Encyklopädie, xvii. 578, &c.).

Zwick was one of the leaders of the Swiss Reformation. He ranks next to Blaurer as the most important of the early hymn-writers of the Reformed Church. His hymns are collected in Wackernagel, iii., Nos. 672-696. The best appeared in the Nüw gsangbüchle von vil schönen Psalmen und geistlichen Liedern, pub. at Zurich, 1536 (2nd ed. 1540 is the earliest now extant), of which he was the chief editor, and which was the first hymn-book of the Reformed Church.

The only hymn by Zwick which has passed into English is:—

Auf diesen Tag so denken wir. Ascension. This probably appeared in the Nüw gsangbüchle, Zurich, 1536; and is certainly in the 2nd ed. of 1540, from which it is quoted in Wackernagel, iii. p. 608, in 5 st. of 7 l., with "Alleluia." It is also in (2) the Strassburg Psalmen und geistliche Lieder, 1537, f. 99b, and in (3) S. Salming's (J. Aberlin's?) Iber gants Psalter, &c. (Zürich?), 1537, f. 146 [Brit. Mus.]. In each case it is entitled "Another hymn on the Ascension of Christ," while in 1540 the first line is given as "Uff disen tag so denckend wir," in 1537 (2) as "Uf disen tag so dencken wir," and in 1537 (3) as "Auff disen tag so denckē wir." It is the finest of Zwick's hymns, and its spirit of joyful faith, its conciseness, and its beauty of form, have kept it in use among the Lutherans as well as among the Reformed. It is No. 153 in the Unv. L. S., 1851. The trs. are:—

1. Raise your devotion, mortal tongues. This is noted under Wegelin, J. (q. v.).

2. To-day our Lord went up on high. By Miss Winkworth, omitting st. iii., in her Lyra Ger., 2nd Ser., 1858, p. 46. Repeated in Schaff's Christ in Song, 1869 and 1870, and the Schaff-Gilman Lib. of Rel. Poetry, 1881.

3. Aloft to heaven, we songs of praise. This is a free tr., in 4 st. of 6 l., by Dr. G. Walker, in his Hys. from German, 1860, p. 30. [J. M.]

Zyma vetus expurgetur. Adam of St. Victor. [Easter.] Gautier, in his ed. of Adam's Oeuvres poetiques, 1881, p. 42, gives this from a Gradual of St. Victor before 1239 (Bibl. Nat. Paris, No. 14452), a Paris Gradual of the 13th cent. (B. N. No. 15615), and a Missal of St. Genevieve, c. 1239. It is also found in an early 14th cent. Paris Missal in the British Museum (Add. 16905, f. 146 b); in a Sarum Missal, c. 1370, and a York Missal, c. 1390, both in the Bodleian; in a St. Gall ms. No. 383, of the 13th or 14th cent., &c. The printed text is given with full notes in Trench, ed. 1864, p. 165; also in Daniel ii., p. 69; Kehrein, No. 91; D. S. Wragham's The Liturgical Poetry of Adam of St. Victor, 1881, i. p. 80, and others. Of this grand sequence Clichtoveus says with accuracy:—

"The wonderful mysteries of the Resurrection of our Lord are here set forth, as foreshadowed in the Old Testament by many types, and through the goodness of God explained more clearly to us in the New. And of a truth this prose is almost divine, embracing much in few words, and all distinctly taken from the Sacred Scriptures."

In this eulogy Abp. Trench agrees. The explanation of the Scriptural allusions is given by Abp. Trench, Dr. Neale in his Med. Hys., and Mr. Wrangham in his Liturgical Poetry of Adam of St. Victor. In the Sarum use this was the Sequence on Monday in Easter Week; Paris on the Tuesday; York on the Friday; St. Victor and St. Genevieve on the octave of Easter. [J. M.]

The trs. of this Sequence include :—

1. Purge we out the ancient leaven. By J. M. Neale, in his Mediaeval Hys., &c., 1851, p. 88, in 13 st. of 6 l., the text used being that in Daniel ii., 69. Interesting notes are added explanatory of various and in some cases obscure references in the sequence to figures applied by the early Fathers to Christ and His holy work; and also of the typical teaching of certain historical events recorded referred to in the sequence.

1. Purge out the leaven. This is the Plampire, made for the Sarum use in 1872, in two parts, the first stanza to be sung at the beginning of the Mass, the second at the beginning of the Canon. This rendering is in the Sarum use, and the obscure p. Plampire tr. from the

Other trs. are :—

1. Let the old leaven be purged out of the Sarum Sequence from the Sarum use.
2. Purge the old leaven in his Sequence.
3. Purge the old leaven in 1871.
4. Purge away the leaven in 1861.

APPENDIX.

THE ten years which have elapsed since the first pages of this Dictionary were sent to press have seen many changes and developments in hymnological history and research. Old statements and conclusions have been retested, and in some instances overthrown, and new hymnbooks and hymnological works have been published. Many hymn writers have passed away, and new authors have come to the front. These causes, together with the late arrival of a few leading articles have necessitated this Appendix, which we now give in two parts: Part I. containing these articles, and Part II. those of less importance, together with notes on, corrections of, and additions to the annotations already in the Dictionary. Each Part is arranged in alphabetical order.

Young, Edward Mallet.

American Hymnody, pp. 57-61. The interest displayed in hymnological studies, and in hymnbook compiling in America since this article was in type, has been great, and has resulted in works of exceptional quality and hymnological importance. The best and most complete hymnbooks which have been brought under our notice are:—

1. Evangelical Lutheran Hymnal. Pub. by Order of the Ev. Lutheran Joint Synod of Ohio and other States. Columbus, Ohio, 1880. This has 468 hymns, a large proportion of which are trs. from the German.
2. Hymn-Book of the Evangelical Association. Cleveland, Ohio, 1881.
3. The Church Book. Hymns and Tunes for the Use of Christian Worship. Prepared by Leonard Woolsey Bacon. New York, 1883. It has 522 hymns, two special doxologies, a tune set to each hymn, and good indices. The 170 authors and translators are fairly representative of the Christian Church; the selection of hymns is, from a literary point of view, good; and the theology is decidedly Evangelical.
4. Laudes Domini. A Selection of Spiritual Songs, Ancient and Modern. The Century Co., N.Y., 1884 (1st ed. 1878). This new edition contains 1168 hymns, a few psalms in prose, the "Te Deum" and other hymns from the Prayer Book, doxologies, tunes, and 6 indices, including authors and translators, with short biographical notes. The known authors and translators are about 322. These represent a good proportion of the best writers, both Ancient and Modern. The tone of the book is bright and joyous, and its literary standard is, on the whole, excellent. Amongst the American hymn-books of the same ecclesiastical and doctrinal character, we know few to equal it as a popular manual for divine worship.

5. Hymns of the Faith, with Psalms, for the Use of Congregations. Edited by G. Harris, D.D., W. J. Tucker, D.D., and E. K. Gleason, M.A., Boston and N. Y., 1887. The editors inform us that "the order of topical arrangement is determined by the Apostles' Creed, which has suggested the title of the book, and has also determined the proportion of its various parts." They also say that "it is not a revision of some existing book with better tunes of the modern school introduced here and there, but is a fresh work from beginning to end." To accomplish the desired end upwards of 280 authors and translators are requisitioned representing most branches of the Christian Church. The selection and arrangement of the hymns, from a non-episcopal standpoint, are excellent. The "Selection of Psalms" from the Authorized Version, and the indices are of the usual character. This is a valuable collection.

6. Songs of Pilgrimage. A Hymnal for the Churches of Christ. By H. L. Hastings. Boston, 1888. This complete edition contains 1533 hymns by over 400 authors and translators, and gathered from about 20 nationalities. It is furnished with a long introduction and several indices. Tunes also accompany the hymns. Of the hymns some 460 are original or re-written hymns by the Compiler, a proportion by one hand, and that by no means the best, sufficient in itself to render the book a failure. The collection is huge, cumbersome, and uninviting.

7. Church Song for the Uses of the House of God. Prepared by Melancthon Woolsey Stryker. N. Y., 1889. This contains 684 hymns by nearly 310 authors and translators. The hymns are arranged mainly in the order of subjects, and are taken to a great extent from well known writers. It is a sound, solid book, with a strong dash of the editor's personality.

The historical and critical works published since we went to press, include:—

1. Hymn Studies. An Illustrated and Annotated edition of the Hymnal of the Methodist Episcopal Church. By Rev. Charles S. Nutt. N. Y., 1884. In this the hymns are printed as in the Hymnal, and the Notes, although very short, are carefully written, and generally very accurate. As an annotated hymnal it is very valuable.

2. The Poets of the Church. A series of Biographical Sketches of Hymn-Writers, with Notes on their Hymns. By Blaise F. Hatfield, D.D. N. Y., 1884. There are about 300 biographical sketches, with short notes, all well-written, and, on the whole, accurate in detail.

3. English Hymns. Their Authors and History. By Samuel Willoughby Duffield. 2nd ed., revised and corrected, N. Y., 1884. This is mainly a biographical and critical hand-book to Dr. Robinson's Laudes Domini (noted above). It is a very readable and reliable work.

4. Baptist Hymn-Writers and their Hymns. By Henry S. Burroughs, D.D. Portland, Maine, 1885. This is a most exhaustive work on the Baptist hymn-writers from the beginning of the Baptist movement to the present time. All nations where Baptists have been located are included. The work is very complete in its range, and is well done. It is strictly denominational, and, as such, is unique of its kind.

5. The Latin Hymn-Writers and their Hymns. By the late Samuel Willoughby Duffield. Edited and completed by Prof. R. E. Thompson, D.D. N. Y., 1885. This is the most complete and popular account of Latin hymn-writers and their hymns which has been published to date (1888) in the English language. Some of its most important statements and conclusions are, however, certainly most erroneous and misleading. This arose mainly from the fact that Mr. Duffield was unable to consult the MSS. in the English, French, and German libraries. He was also too dogmatic and self-opinionated to be an accurate and discriminating critic.

The position thus taken by America in hymnological work during the past ten years is exceedingly creditable to her hymnological students, and surpasses every other English-speaking country. [J. J.]

Butler, Henry Montagu, D.D., was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, and graduated B.A. as Senior Classic in 1835, and became a Fellow of his college in 1835. Taking Holy Orders in 1839, he became Head Master of Harrow School in 1859. This position he held until 1885, when he was preferred to the Deanery of Gloucester. He held the deanery for a short time only, and became Master of Trinity College, Cambridge, on the death of Dr. W. H. Thompson in 1888. Dr. Butler has also held the important appointments of Hon. Chaplain to the Queen; Examining Chaplain to Archbishops Tait and Benson; Select Preacher at Oxford, 1882; and Presb. of Holborn in St. Paul's Cathedral. Dr. Butler edited the 3rd ed. of Hymns for the Chapel of Harrow School, 1865, and the 4th ed., 1881. (Public School H. Bks., pp. 937-939, where add 4th ed., 1881.) To the Harrow H. Bk. Dr. Butler contributed:—

1. Art thou the Healer that should come. St. John Baptist.
2. Ask and ye surely shall receive. Prayer. Last st. by J. Montgomery.
3. Jesus died for us and rose again. Death and Burial.
4. Lovest thou Me? the risen Saviour cried. St. Peter.
5. O merciful and holy. Founder's Day.
6. Rejoice to-day with one accord. Founder's Day.
7. The night of sorrow hath passed. Good Friday.
8. Where shall we find our nightless saint? St. Paul.

Of these Nos. 2 and 3 were given in the 3rd ed. of the Harrow H. Bk., 1865, and the rest were added in 1881. Nos. 8, 5, 6 and 8 are also in Hymns for the Use of Sherborne School, 1888, Nos. 5 and 6 being much altered. Dr.

Butler's hymns are very lyrical and spirited and are admirably suited to their purpose. [J. J.]

Dutch Hymnody. The Dutch Reformed Church, as the national form of religion in Holland is called, is a Calvinistic body, maintaining a Presbyterian form of government, and has grown up side by side with the rise of the Dutch Republic. Calvinism was a plant of early growth in the Netherlands, where the soil had long been prepared for it by the worldliness of the Church, and the consequent prevalence of Waldensian and Hussite doctrines. Walter French tr. of the Scriptures was turned into Dutch rhyme and eagerly caught up by the people. There were also a number of half-Latin, half-Dutch hymns of the kind introduced by Peter of Dordrecht, about the year 1440, for the spread of Hussite opinions. A collection of those was printed at Copen (Keempen) in 1550 with the title Sionische psalmen ende velerleide liederen in de nederlandsche tale. Thus the change from Latin hymns to those in the vernacular was very gradual in Holland, as in Germany.

1. Psalter.—1. The spread of Calvinism rather than of Lutheran doctrines in Holland raised a strong opposition to original hymns, and led to the introduction of metrical psalms. The feeling against hymns grew so strong that it was resolved by three synods that only those should be sung which were found in Holy Scripture. There was no lack of reasons to meet the taste for metrical psalms. As early as 1539 a collection was pub. at Antwerp, by Willem van Zuylen van Nyevelt, and set to music by Gerhardenus Mox, under the title Souterliedekens (Psalter songs). This was so eagerly received that a 2nd ed. was issued the next year; and five other eds. appeared between 1558 and 1568. Those psalms were sung a most of the Reformed congregations in Holland, and by the Dutch protestant refugees in England.

2. In 1565 Lucas d'Heere, the artist-poet of Ghent and friend of William the Silent, translated 36 psalms from the French of Marot and Beza; and in 1566 appeared two versions of the whole psalter—one by Cithove, the other by Dathen.

3. Johannes Cithove was a Ghentish noble who took refuge in England, where he was an elder of a Dutch congregation in London. There he pub. in 1561, 25 psalms, which were reprinted at Embree in 1567, and republished the next year with the addition of part of Ps. 119. Soon after, 39 psalms with the Magnificat and Benedictus, appeared without name of place or printer; and in 1561 a selection of 100 of his psalm-versions was pub. by the well-known English printer, John Daye. Finally Cithove verified the remaining 50 psalms; and the whole collection was then pub. with a preface under the title De Psalter Davidis in Nederlandscher sangwijze in welcke der gheynen Christi, London by John Daye. 12 Sept. 1566. This version, which like that of d'Heere was set to the tunes of Marot's French Psalter, was adopted by the Dutch congregations in England, but was never much used in the Netherlands, where it was anticipated by Datheen's version, the preface to which is dated 25th March, 1566.

4. Peter Datheen was a Flandrian monk who renounced his vows and became an ardent preacher of Calvinism. His version of the Psalms was made from that of Marot. It is in the most rugged verse, displays but little poetical ability, and bears evident marks of great haste in its production. It was eagerly received, first by Datheen's own congregation at Frankenthal, and then by other rapidly spreading reformed congregations in the Netherlands. When it appeared, Datheen was preaching with a violent, stormy eloquence in West Flanders and Zeeland, where immense crowds gathered to hear sermons and to sing psalms in the open air. This was the first great popular phase of the Netherland rebellion, and it helped to popularise Datheen's collection, which was exclusively authorised by a synod at Wezel in 1568. This authorisation was renewed by later synods, especially by that of Dort, in 1578, under the presidency of Datheen himself, at which a resolution was passed that only these psalms should be sung in churches, to the exclusion of hymns. Another resolution of the same synod against the use of organs is a further proof of the stern Calvinism of that assembly. About the same time the Dutch congregations in London and at Sandwich urged their superintendents to substitute Datheen's version for that of Uitenhove. This was done with the result that Datheen's version became the authorised psalmody of the whole Dutch Reformed Church.

5. A formidable rival appeared, however, in 1580. This was a metrical psalter by the renowned Philip van Marnix van St. Aldegonde, whom Mr. Motley styles "poet, orator, hymn-book maker, burgo-master, lawyer, polemical divine, soldier." St. Aldegonde, while deprecating the use of hymns other than those of Holy Scripture, added to his psalter metrical versions of the Songs of Moses, Deborah, and Jonah, the Magnificat, Nunc Dimittis and Gloria in Excelsis, the Commandments, Creed, and the Lord's Prayer. He was greatly assisted in this work by Bonaventura Vulcanius, tutor to his son, and afterwards professor of Greek, at Leyden. Attempts were made by the synods of Middelburg (1581), and the Hague (1586), to substitute in public worship this new and improved version for that of Datheen, but were defeated by the ultra-Calvinistic party, supported by the influence of the Earl of Leicester. The clergy especially were opposed to any change, and a final attempt was defeated at the great synod of Dort in 1619. Another century and a half was to elapse before good taste triumphed over Datheen's halting verse.

6. During the 17th cent. many poets and poetasters attempted to improve upon Datheen's version with varying success. A Psalter pub. in 1713 for the use of an Anabaptist community at Haarlem has, in addition to the psalms and a few hymns, a free metrical version of the added psalm in the LXX. "by David when he fought against Goliath." This collection displays considerable poetical ability, and the preface states that Datheen's psalms had been abandoned by all the religious communities in Holland, except the State Church. Besides those already mentioned, Van Abkoude's Naam Register van Nederduytsche Boeken (1745) contains a list (by no means exhaustive) of 32 metrical psalters pub. up to that time, and many of them had passed through more than one edition.

7. In 1696 the attention of the synod of Friesland was drawn to a revised version of Datheen's Psalter, made by A. Trommins, minister at Groningen (Zedige verbetering van den rijm van Datheens over de 150 psalmen Davids, Amsterdam, 1695). The necessity of improving the psalmody being almost universally admitted, the Synod drew up in 1701 a scheme, with the co-operation of the theological faculty at the university, for a new Selection of Psalms from existing versions. This scheme however fell to the ground until 1754, when the presbytery of the Hague presented to the Synod of South Holland a proposal to amend certain expressions in Datheen's psalms. Considerable discussion ensued, and lasted throughout Holland for some years, but finally it was agreed by all the Synods that a new selection should be made from three existing versions, and a commission was appointed in 1772 for this purpose. The states of each province nominated a minister from each provincial synod (nine in all) and the States-General sent two political commissioners. The commissioners met at the Hague, in January, 1773, and finished their labours in July. The versions to which their selection was limited were those of Hendrik Ghijsen, 1686; Johannes Eusebius Voet, 1762, and that of a literary society, called Laus Deo Salus Populo, 1761. Ghijsen's version was not original, but a compilation from 17 preceding psalters, and was entitled Den Hoonigraat der psalmdichten (Amsterdam, 12<sup>mo</sup>, 1686). Voet's version had been pub. at the Hague, in 1764, and that of the society Laus Deo, at Amsterdam, in 1761. The compilers had practically therefore a range of 19 psalters, extending over a period of more than 100 years, from which to select, and they succeeded in compiling a fairly representative and satisfactory Metrical Psalter, which is to Datheen's version what Tate and Brady is to Sternhold and Hopkins. They appended the usual metrical versions of the commandments, Magnificat, Benedictus, Nunc Dimittis, two rhymes of the Creed, prayer before sermon, a grace, and morning and evening hymns, the last named being a free rendering of the hymn Christe, Qui lux es et dies.

8. The new version was gradually introduced throughout the provinces, and was on the whole well received, though in some places it had to encounter much prejudice and opposition, and its enforced use after 1775 even led to open riots in the province of Zeeland. The commissioners had also ventured to suggest that the psalms might be sung faster, but one old-fashioned precentor staunchly protested that he could not conscientiously sing one verse in less than twelve minutes! The new version was adopted by the Dutch congregation in London, and introduced into the foreign possessions. It is now in general use throughout the Dutch Reformed Church, though the Separatist (Dopper) congregations in South Africa until quite recently still clung to the time honoured doggerel of Datheen. We may note that there is a reprint of Datheen's psalms published in 12mo. at Goninghem, 1865, with the spelling modernised and archaisms explained in the footnotes.

ii. Hymn Books.—Although original hymns were excluded from the public worship of the Dutch Reformed Church, certain paraphrases or versified portions of the Scripture were retained from the first in addition to the psalms. These were originally the songs of Moses, Isaiah, Hezekiah, and of the Three Children, and the evangelical canticles; but later the O. T. canticles were omitted, and metrical versions of the Creed, Lord's Prayer, Commandments, and Morning and Evening hymns were inserted. The oldest Souterliedekens had 12 such hymns; St. Aldegonde's Psalter had more; even Datheen's had 7, only 5 of which were from the Scriptures, while one was a direct tr. in Old Low Dutch of the hymn "Christe, Qui lux es et dies." But these were evidently intended more for private than for public use, since hymns were regarded with suspicion as savouring of Roman or Arminian doctrines.

2. The want of suitable hymns was gradually however making itself felt, and this feeling was strengthened, by the adoption, among Dutch Lutherans, of trs. from the rich store of German hymnody. A resolution of a Synod at Utrecht, in 1612, had permitted hymns upon the life of our Lord to be sung in public worship, and a collection of 58 such hymns was issued (Lofzangen der Christelijke feestdagen. Utrecht, 1615, 8vo.). But this attempt of common sense to assert itself over prejudice was promptly suppressed by the resolution of the Synod of Dort (1619), which prohibited the use of any but Datheen's psalms. Hymns were however sung at festivals by several congregations in different parts of Holland, and the Synods of Drenthe and Friesland (circa 1638) recommended their use. To meet the want of suitable hymns, especially in private or family devotions, Willem Sluiter, minister of Ebergen in Gelderland, pub. in 1659, his Psalmen, Gezangen, en Geestelijke Lieder, and composed, in 1661, 10 books of Gezangen which were pub. after his death. His books spread rapidly, and soon formed together with the Bible and psalm-book the whole religious library of the country people, and were generally used in family worship.

3. The first religious bodies in Holland to authorise the use of hymns in public worship were dissenters from the Dutch Reformed establishment. The Anabaptist Psalter of 1713 contained an Appendix of 12 hymns for Christmas, Easter, Ascension, Whitsunday, as also Holy Baptism and the Holy Communion. A hymnal for the use of a separatist congregation at Werkendam was compiled about 1750 by Jacob Groenewegen, and ran through 8 eds. before 1799; and a bulky collection of Mennonite hymns dates from about the same period.

4. The Psalter revision committee of 1773 had discussed the desirability of compiling a hymnal, but took no further steps in that direction. Meanwhile the feeling in favour of hymns was spreading among the educated classes, and even among the clergy, whose tastes were being elevated by the use of the improved version of the psalms. The poet Van Alphen in the notes to his Cantatas pub. in 1783 strongly urged "the need in public worship, as well as in private religious assemblies, of hymns in which poetry and music might be combined to meet the wants, the circumstances, and the taste of the day." This feeling found expression at the provincial synod of North Holland in 1796, which invited the co-operation of the other provinces. In the meantime Engelbert, Minister of Hoorn, and A. Rutgers, Minister of Haarlem, were asked to give the subject their attention. During the next seven years the matter was discussed with much warmth by the various synods: * Van Alphen contributing towards the discussion a specimen hymn-book of 66 original compositions (Proeve van Liederen en Gezangen voor de openbare Godsdienst. 's Gravenhage 1801, 8vo.), and finally in 1803 a committee of eighteen ministers and elders was appointed by the nine provincial synods to compile a hymn-book for use in public worship in addition to the metrical psalms. The commission held its first meeting at the Hague, on the 27th Sept., 1803, and its last, there also, on the 12th June, 1805. During the interval two other contributions towards the collection appeared, one by Ahasuerus van den Berg, minister of Arnhem and president of the commission, who had also been on the psalm commission of 1773 (Proeve van Geestelijke Oden en Liederen. Utrecht: 1804, 8vo.); the other by Rhijnvis Feith, ex-elder of Swolle, and a member of the commission (Proeve van eenige Gezangen voor den openbaren godsdienst. Amsterdam, 1804, 2 vols. 8vo.). The hymn-book appeared in Sept., 1805 (192 hymns with tunes), as:—

"Evangelische Gezangen, om nevens het boek der Psalmen bij den openbaren Godsdienst in de Nederlandsche Hervormde Gemeenten gebruikt te worden: op uitdrukkelijken last van alle de Synoden der voornoemde Gemeenten bijeen verzameld en in orde gebracht in de Jaren 1803, 1804, en 1805. Te Amsterdam, bij Johannes Allart, MDCCCVI. (8vo.)

The compilers in a very interesting prefatory dedication to the Dutch reformed congregations in the Fatherland, regret that the national poets had done so little for sacred poetry, but express their obligations to the poetical works of Van Lodensteyn,† Vollenhoven, Sluiter, and Schutte, as well as to those of Van Alphen and other living poets. Many of the hymns were original compositions or trs. from the German by members of the commission. Van den Berg contributed 9 original hymns, including a metrical version of the Te Deum, and 20 trs., much altered and abbreviated. Feith was the author of 28 hymns and 4 trs. Ten hymns are derived from Van Alphen's Proeve, and three from Stichtelijke Poëzij, the joint work of Van Alphen and Van de Kastele, ex-elder of the Hague, and a member of both commissions. Abraham Rutgers adapted one or two hymns from his cantata De hoop der zaligheid, besides contributing some trs. from the German.

* A circumstance occurred during this time which served to lessen the Dutch prejudice against hymns. Their co-religionists, the Walloons, who had hitherto used only Conrart's French metrical Psalter, now adopted a hymnal, the title of which was Cantiques pour la culte publique recueillis et imprimés par ordre du Synod Wallon. The compilers were Rau, Gerard, and P. D. Huet.

† Jodocus van Lodensteyn, Minister at Utrecht (d. 1677), published Uitspanningen in 1676, see p. 694. L. Vollenhoven was a contemporary of Sluiter.

The Gezangboek was formally adopted by resolution of all the provincial Synods on the 1st January, 1807, and is now, together with the metrical psalms, the authorized hymnal of the Dutch Reformed Church.* Like the revised psalter, it had at first to encounter opposition and prejudice, especially in Friesland, but it gradually made its way, and even in private use has entirely superseded all other hymnals, Willem Sluiter's not excepted. Its language, though sometimes stiff and antiquated, is sober and devout, and it contains many beautiful hymns, especially among those which have been tr. from the German.

5. In 1847 the general synod of the Dutch Reformed Church in Holland resolved that an Appendix should be issued, and the work of compilation was entrusted to the standing committee for superintending the publication of the hymn-book. Several successive committees were engaged upon it, the principal share of the work being undertaken by Dr. N. Beets, minister of Utrecht, and Professor Ter Haar of that University, and a considerable number of hymns, translated and original, was collected. In 1865 a synodical committee was appointed to revise the collection and arrange appropriate tunes to the hymns, and in July, 1866, the Appendix was issued as:—Vervolgbundel op de Evangelische Gezangen.

As the authorised hymnal of the largest Dutch speaking religious body, the Evangelische Gezangen has naturally exercised a very considerable influence over all later Dutch hymnals, most of which have borrowed largely from it. This is especially the case with regard to the Dutch speaking population of South Africa, where there are no less than eight Dutch hymnals in use among different missionary bodies, all of them largely indebted to what may be called the mother hymnal, that of the Dutch Reformed Church. Of sixty-seven hymns which are found in not fewer than five out of these eight hymnals, and may thus be said to have received the hall-mark of almost general approval, twenty-six are from this source. Hence such hymns as Op bergen en in dalen; Jesus neemt al zondaars aan; Juich aarde, juicht alom den Heer (Ps. 100, which may almost be called the Cape national hymn), God enkel licht, and others, are familiar as household words in every part of South Africa and in every Dutch speaking congregation of Christians, white or coloured, from Cape L'Agulhas to the Zambezi.

iii. Evangelical Lutheran Hymns.—There is one other Dutch hymnal which demands a brief notice. It is that of the Dutch speaking Lutherans. The Reformed or Calvinistic Church of Holland was most intolerant of any dissent, and those congregations which had embraced the Lutheran confession of faith existed only on sufferance, and were not permitted to build themselves Churches, until 1632. Hence the Lutherans adapted their form of worship as far as possible to that of the Calvinists, abandoning the use of the crucifix, altar lights, &c., and even singing metrical psalms, though in a version of their own. In time however hymnals were adopted by the Lutheran congregations of Amsterdam, of Rotterdam, and of the Hague. But besides the inconvenience of having three distinct hymnals, these collections were very meagre in general hymns. Thus of 165 hymns in the Amsterdam collection, 80 were appropriate to festivals only, while many of the Hague hymns were antiquated in form and expression, and needed recasting. The first regularly organized Lutheran Synod in Holland met in 1819, and here it was resolved that a new hymnal should be compiled for general use, which was to include the best hymns in the three existing collections, hymns from the collections of other protestant bodies, and new hymns to be specially composed by the first Dutch poets of the day. The carrying out of this scheme was entrusted to a committee of seven, who met at Amsterdam in 1820, though the result of their labours did not appear until six years afterwards as:—Christelijke Gezangen voor de Evangelische Lutherische Gemeenten in het koninkrijk der Nederlanden, Amsterdam, 1826, 8vo.

It contained 376 hymns, comprising 125 hymns and 25 psalms from the three old hymnals, 44 from the Dutch Reformed Book, 20 from other collections, and 162 new compositions. The tunes were for the most part the familiar old German chorales with a few new tunes by the musical editor, Mr. J. W. Wilms. Strange to say the collection did not include "the Marseillaise of the reformation, Ein feste Burg;" and many other classical German hymns were unrepresented. To supply these and other deficiencies, an Appendix was added by a synodical commission, in 1850, containing 64 hymns.

Though this book contains some undoubtedly fine hymns, the intricacy of its metres, the length and number of verses (instances occurring of 15, 18, and even 28 verse hymns) combined with the rigid and somewhat antiquated character of the collection as a whole, will prevent its taking a place in the first rank of Dutch hymnody, but it is useful to refer to for the purpose of comparison with other trs. of the same German originals.

iv. Various.—It must suffice only to mention here Uitgezochte Lieder, the modern Dutch Baptist hymnal, containing several good hymns, and the Opwekkingsliederen van Sankey, trs. of Moody and Sankey's Sacred Songs & Solos, pub. at Amsterdam by M. S. Bromet. Of a higher order of merit are Dr. R. Benneke Jansonius's trs. of some of the best Latin hymns and sequencers (Gezangen der Kath. Kerk, Hague, 1860), though for metrical reasons not well adapted for congregational use.

v. Conclusion.—In conclusion, it is worthy of remark how very few Dutch hymns are original compositions. This may be attributed partly to the fact of there being so large a store of noble hymns at hand in the cognate German language, which readily lend themselves to translation into Dutch; partly perhaps to the lack of religious enthusiasm and fervour among the Dutch in modern times. There do not seem to be more than about 3000 Dutch hymns extant, and of this number, at least two-thirds, and these the best known and most popular, will be found to be translations. Nor, if we except the obsolete Willem Sluiter, is there any one writer whose name stands out pre-eminently as the hymnodist of Holland. At the same time it must be admitted that in the majority of cases the tra. are so admirably rendered that few persons would suspect them of not being original hymns. [J. A. H.]

* It was not introduced into the Dutch Reformed Church in South Africa until 1814.

England Hymnody, Church of, pp. 331-343. Since these pages went to press the following collections and hymnological works have been published:—

1. Supplemental Hymns to Hymns Ancient and Modern, 1889. This is an addition of 105 hymns made to strengthen some of the weak points in the former edition. The book with the Supplement, is as a whole much as it was before, except that it is greater in bulk and more modern in character.

2. The Office Hymn Book, 1889. This is designed as an independent Appendix to the 1875 ed. of H. & A. M., and seems to have been compiled by some one who was not satisfied with the official Supplement of the Compilers. It is in two Parts. Part I. is set forth as "Consisting chiefly of Modern Hymns, and of Ancient Hymns not translated into their original Metres." Part II. contains The Hymns to be used at Mattins and Evensong Daily throughout the Year, and consists entirely of hymns tr. from the Latin, the total additions being 175 hymns.

3. The Hymnal Companion to the Book of Common Prayer, 1890. This is the 1875 ed. of the Hym. Comp. recast and enlarged. Several of the older hymns not commonly used in Public Worship have been omitted, and others of a more modern and popular type have been substituted. Of these additions those by Bp. Bickersteth, the editor, are very beautiful and of much value. The Introduction has been rewritten, and the notes to the hymns corrected. Of its kind, and from its theological standpoint, as an Evangelical hymn-book it is in poetic grace, literary excellence, and lyric beauty, the finest collection in the Anglican Church.

4. Songs of the Church, 1890 (Musical ed. 1891). By J. B. Lister, M.A., Vicar of Hayton, near York.

The hymnological and critical works on hymn-writers and hymns published during this period include:—

1. Christian Hymns and Hymn-Writers. A Course of Lectures by J. E. Prescott, D.D., Archdeacon and Canon of Carlisle, &c., 1883. This is a weak book; there is no original research, and the result is, from a hymnological point of view, most disappointing.

2. Anglican Hymnody. Being an Account of the 325 Standard Hymns of the Highest Merit according to the Verdict of the whole Anglican Church. By Rev. James King, M.A., 1886. In this work Mr. King has begun by borrowing the whole idea and design of the work from the April and May numbers of the Churchman's Shilling Magazine, 1874; has filled in the body of the book with information gathered from Miller's Singers and Songs of the Church; Biggs's Annotated Hymns Ancient and Modern, and his English Hymnology, and a few additional well known works; and concludes without any acknowledgment of his indebtedness to any one.

3. A Historical Companion to Hymns Ancient and Modern; containing the Greek and Latin; the German, Italian, French, Danish, and Welsh Hymns; the first lines of the English Hymns; the Names of all Authors and Translators: Notes and Dates. Edited by the Rev. Robert Maude Moorsom, M.A., 1889. This work is on the same lines as the annotated edition of H. A. & M. by L. C. Biggs, and includes the Supplement of 1889. It is by no means an accurate work, and some of its surmises are very curious, as for instance, the quotation of a Greek Canon from the Office for Christmas Day as possibly the basis of C. Wesley's "Hark, the herald angels sing." Notwithstanding these weak points the book is very readable.

This does not indicate a notable era in the hymnological history of this Church of England, although it is the fullest résumé we can present. [J. J.]

Here is the spring where waters flow. [Holy Scripture.] On p. 362, i. six stanzas are given from a poem on The New Jerusalem dated circa 1660, beginning "Jerusalem, my happy home"; and the last three stanzas of the six are set forth as the original of the lines prefixed to some editions of the English Bible which were pub. "in the early part of the 17th cent. and beginning:—'Here is the spring whence waters flow.'" Since that article was stereotyped we have found the same lines in a hymn pub. 85 years before the date given at p. 362, i.

The lines are printed on the page facing the Titlepage of an Edition of the Bible pub. by C. Barker, in London, in 1575, and read, together with the various references to Holy Scripture, as follows:—

"Of the incomparable treasure of the holy Scriptures with a prayer for the true use of the same—

Graunt this, O heavenly Father, for Jesus Christ's sake. Amen."

We have seen these lines, including the prayer, attributed to Beza. If he had been the author, we should expect to find them in an edition of the English Bible printed at Geneva at or about the same date as the above. In the Brit. Mus. there is a copy printed at Geneva by John Crispin in 1569; but the lines are not therein. Not having any reliable evidence either for Beza or for any other writer, we must therefore give these lines and the prayer as Anon.

The peculiarity to be noticed in the fact that st. i-iii., as above, are also in the broad-sheet named on p. 362, i. in a slightly different form, we cannot explain. We can only suggest that there is a possible original not yet discovered from which both pieces may have been taken. [J. J.]

Hermannus Contractus, so called because of his crippled condition, is also known as Hermann of Vöhringen, Hermann of Reichsau, and Hermann der Gebrechliche. He was the s. of the Count of Vöhringen in Swabia.

and was b. on July 18, 1013. He entered the school of St. Gall, circa 1020, and soon developed, although so young, an intense interest in his studies. It is said of him that he rapidly mastered Latin, Greek, and Arabic. History, music, mathematics, philosophy, and theology engaged his attention, and in each study he attained marked success. Some go so far as to say with confidence that he tr. Aristotle's Poetics and Rhetoric from the Arabic, but the statement is disputed by others. At thirty years of age he removed from St. Gall to the monastery of Reichenau, where he remained to his death, Sept. 24, 1054. His name is associated with several hymns of historical importance, and notably the following, which are annotated in this Dictionary:—

1. Alma Redemptoris Mater quae perva coeli, p. 51, il.
2. Rex omnipotens die bodierna, p. 958, il., 967, il., 968, i.
3. Sancti Spiritus adsit nobis gratia, p. 967, il., 993, i.
4. Salve Regina, p. 991, il.
5. Veni Sancte spiritus, Et emitte, p. 1213, i., il.
6. Veni Sancte spiritus: Reple, p. 1214, il.
7. Victimae Paschali, p. 1222, i., il.

The conclusions arrived at in the annotations of these hymns concerning their respective authorship will be found somewhat adverse to Hermannus's claims with regard to Nos. 2 and 4, and positively against him with respect to Nos. 3, 5 and 7. Some of these conclusions will be found to be utterly opposed to those of Duffield on the same hymns in his Latin Hymn-Writers, &c., 1889, pp. 149-168. This difference of opinion arises mainly out of the fact that the mss. at St. Gall and at the Brit. Mus. were not examined by Duffield, and are much older and more important than any of those with which he was acquainted. [J. J.]

Horder, William Garrett, was b. at Salisbury, and educated at the City of London School. In 1862 he entered Cheshunt College as a student for the Congregational Ministry. On leaving College in 1866 he undertook the pastorate of a Congregational Church at St. Helen's, Lancashire. In 1869 he removed to Torquay, and in 1873 to Wood Green, London, where he still resides. Mr. Horder has compiled—

(1) The Book of Praise for Children, 1875; (2) The Poet's Bible, New Testament 1881, Old Testament 1883; (3) Congregational Hymns: A Hymnal for the Free Churches, 1884. The first of these was incorporated in 1881 in The Book of Praise for Children, pub. by the Congregational Union under the editorship of the Rev. G. S. Barrett. With this latter book Mr. Horder had no association beyond the handing over of the former for the use of the Union. From Mr. Horder's ed. of this collection (the first) a 2d. was pub. in 1883 "For the Use of Jewish Children." The Poet's Bible is a valuable collection of poetry for the use of students and preachers. The Congregational Hymns is referred to elsewhere (p. 260, il. 10). In addition Mr. Horder has published the following original works:—(1) Intimations of Immortality, 1883; (2) The Hymn Lover: An Account of the rise and growth of English Hymnody, 1889; (3) The Silent Voice and Other Discourses, 1890.

The Hymn Lover is practically a handbook to Mr. Horder's Cong. Hymns. As in that collection the hymns are gathered from all ages, nations, and churches, opportunity is afforded for the discussion of each epoch of hymn-writing and for the grouping together of interesting particulars concerning hymn-writers and their work. This opportunity

Mr. Horder has availed himself of with great skill and judgment; and although the outcome is not severely technical, the result is all the more attractive for the general reader. Although hymnologically it is not a scientific production, practically and within its range, it is the most useful and attractive work we have on its special subject. The reproduction therein of specimen hymns of each epoch, is a new and valuable addition to this special kind of work. [J. J.]

Hrabanus (Rabanus) Maurus, s. of one Ruthard, was b. probably at Mainz, about 776. At an early age he was sent to the Monastery of Fulda to receive a religious education. In 801 he was ordained Deacon, and the following year he went to the monastic school of St. Martin at Tours to study under Alcuin, a celebrated teacher of that time, who gave to Hrabanus the name of Maurus to which Hrabanus added Magentius. On his return to Fulda in 804 he became the head of the school connected with the Monastery. Towards him Ratgar the abbot showed great unkindness, which arose mainly from the fact that Ratgar demanded the students to build additions to the monastery, whilst Hrabanus required them at the same time for study. Hrabanus had to retire for a season, but Ratgar's deposition by Ludwig the Pious, in 817, opened up the way for his return, and the reopening of the school. In the meantime, in 814, he had been raised to the Priesthood. Exil, who succeeded Ratgar as abbot, died in 822, and Hrabanus was appointed in his stead. This post he held for some time, until driven forth by some of the community. In 847, on the death of Archbishop Otgar, Ludwig the younger, with whom Hrabanus had sided in his demand for German independence as against the imperialism of his elder brother Lothar, rewarded him with the Archbishopric of Mainz, then the metropolitan see of Germany. He held this appointment to his death on Feb. 4, 856. He was buried first in St. Alban's, Mainz, and then, during the early days of the Reformation, in St. Maurice, Halle, possibly because of the opposition he is known to have made to the doctrine of Transubstantiation. With German historians Hrabanus is regarded as the father of the modern system of education in that country. His prose works were somewhat numerous, but the hymns with which his name is associated are few. We have the "Christe sanctorum decus Angelorum," p. 229, il.; "Tibi Christe, splendor Patris," p. 1170, il.; and the "Veni Creator Spiritus," p. 1208, l.; but recent research convinces us that the ascription in each case is very doubtful; and none are received as by Hrabanus in Professor Dümmler's ed. of the Carmina of Hrabanus in the Poetae Latini aevi Carolini, vol. ii. 1884. Dümmler omits them even from the "hymns of uncertain origin." [J. J.]

Innocent III., Pope, was a member of the celebrated Conti family, which gave nine Popes to the chair of St. Peter. He was b. at Anagni, circa 1160, and was educated at Rome, Paris, and Bologna. On his return to Rome, through his powerful family influence he became a Canon of St. Peter's, a sub-deacon before he was thirty, and Cardinal Deacon in 1190, and as such was known as Cardinal Lothario. During the Pontificate of Celestine III., having little to do, he wrote his De Contemptu Mundi. On the death of Celestine III. on Jan. 8, 1198, he was ordained Priest, consecrated Bishop, and enthroned as Pope within the few days between that date and Feb. 22, of the same year when he began his Pontifical reign, being at the time about thirty-eight years of age. His reign is well marked in ecclesiastical history, although it was comparatively short. He d. at Perugia, July 16, 1216. In hymnody his name is associated with the grand Sequence the "Stabat mater dolorosa" (p. 1081, l.); and the glorious "Veni Sancte Spiritus, Et emitte" (p. 1212, ll.) In each case, however, there are many reasons to doubt his authorship, or, at least, to accept the ascription with caution. See details as indicated above. [J. J.]

Italian Hymnody.—Although Italy has been renowned for centuries past as a land of music and song, it has been chiefly in the celebration of secular themes that her lyro has been employed. Sacred hymnody, at least since the times of the Renaissance, has been comparatively little cultivated. It is proposed in the present article to give: I. A brief sketch of Hymnody in the Italian language from the 13th century to the 19th; and II. An account of its present condition (i.) in the Roman Catholic Church, (ii.) in Protestant communities.

I. Hymnody in the Italian language from the 13th century to the 19th.

1. "It is now," says Prof. Bartoli, in the Encyclo. Britannica, 9th ed., vol. xiii., p. 498, "an established historical fact that there existed no writing in the Italian language before the 13th century." But in the early part of that century lived St. Francis of Assisi (b. 1182, d. 1225), founder of the Franciscan order, and to him have been attributed several short religious poems in the Italian of that period. One, in particular, is famous, known as the "Canticum Solis," or more fully, "Canticum de le creature comunemente de lo frate Sole." True, its authenticity has been the subject of considerable controversy, but it is now admitted that the general sense and many of the expressions are those of St. Francis, though in the lapse of ages the original structure may have been changed into a style more modern and ornate. The following is the text as now given:—

"Altissimo onnipotente bon' Signore, tu se lo laudato la gloria, lo honore, e ogni benedictione. A te solo confanno e nullo homo e degno de nominarti.

Laudato sia Dio mio Signore, con tutte le creature, specialmente messer lo Frate Sole, il quale giorno e illumina noi per lui. E ello e bello e radiante con grande splendore; de te, Signore, porta significazione.

"Laudato sia mio Signore, per Suora Luna e per le stelle; il quale in cielo le hai formate chiare e belle.

"Laudato sia mio Signore, per Frate Vento, e per l'Aire e Nuvoles e sereno e ogni tempo, per lo quale dai a tutte creature sustentamento.

"Laudato sia mio Signore per Suora Acqua, la quale e molto utile, e humile, e pretiosa, e casta.

"Laudato sia mio Signore, per Frate Fuoco, per lo quale tu allumi la notte; e ello e bello e giocondo, e robustissimo, e forte.

"Laudato sia mio Signore, per nostra Madre Terra, la quale ne sostenta, governa e produce diversi frutti, e coloriti fiori, e herbe.

"Laudato sia mio Signore, per quelli che perdonano per lo tue amore, e sostengono infirmitade e tribulatione. Beati que li che sostegneranno in pace, che de te, Altissimo, saranno incoronati."

It is said that this hymn used to be chanted by the saint and his companions, and that in his last illness another stanza was added, giving thanks for "our Sister, the Death of the body." [v. Stephen's Essays in Eccles. Biography, Art. St. Francis; Les Poetes Franciscains en Italie, par O. F. Ozanam, Paris, 1852.]

2. From A.D. 1250 onward, the development of literature in the vernacular was rapid. In the cities of northern Italy the people had been accustomed to listen in the piazzas to the songs of the jongleurs. About this time Giacomo of Verona, and Bonveino of Riva, composed religious poems in the Veronese dialect, which were sung or chanted to similar groups of hearers. Their themes were the terrors of the Babilonia Infernale, and the blessedness of the Gerusalemme Celeste. In form, their poems consisted of verses of 13 syllables, arranged in stanzas of four lines, all lines in the same stanza ending in the same rhyme.

3. In the latter half of the 13th century appeared in Italy that extraordinary manifestation of the ascetic spirit, the processions of the Flagellants. Vast bodies of men, women, and even children, girded with ropes and scourging themselves with whips till the blood flowed freely, passed from city to city, with hymns and prayers, and calling on the people everywhere to repent. Their hymns or lauds were in the Umbrian dialect, in verses of 9 syllables, and were sung in dialogue.

Towards the end of the century arose in Tuscany a school of lyric poetry represented by Dante (b. 1265, d. 1321) in his Canzoni, and in the next generation by Petrarch (b. 1304, d. 1374) in his sonnets. But the subject of these compositions was for the most part earthly love, and nothing which these poets wrote resembled what we now mean by hymns.

4. The chief religious poet of the period, leaving out of view Dante's great epic, was Jacopo dei Benedetti, commonly called Jacopone (b. before 1250, d. 1306, p. 575, ll.). He is usually regarded as the author of the well-known Latin poem, the "Stabat Mater dolorosa," as well as of its companion piece, not so familiarly known, the "Stabat Mater speciosa." He wrote in Italian 211 poetical pieces, which have been arranged in seven books. Some are mere theological dissertations in verse; others are satires, but others approach more nearly the nature of hymns, being short compositions written to popularise a sacred thought or celebrate a festival. "Jacopone," says Prof. Bartoli, "was a mystic, who from his hermit's cell looked forth upon the world, denouncing the immoralities of the age and especially the malpractices of popes Celestine V. and Boniface VIII." Cast into prison for his faithful testimony, his spirit was still unconquered. In his dungeon he composed songs extolling the Divine Love in a striking and original manner. These were sung throughout the 14th and 15th centuries by the pious members of the religious orders, such as the Minimi, the Jesuates, and the lay schools of the Laudesi, or singers of God's praise.

5. Passing to the 15th century we come to Maffei Belcari (b. 1410, d. 1484), a native of Florence, a warm-hearted Christian man and the author both of numerous Laude and of Biblical dramas. The latter were more admired than the Laude. Nevertheless, these hymns of praise, being simple in style, full of feeling, and adapted to popular melodies, became extensively known and were widely used.

6. Belcari had scarcely passed away when there appeared in Florence the famous Dominican monk, Girolamo Savonarola (b. 1454, d. 1498). He not only from the pulpit denounced with prophetic earnestness the sins and vices of the time, but also sought to avail himself in the interests of morality and religion of the power of sacred song. Lorenzo de Medici had written certain vile productions, called Canti Carnascialeschi ("Carnival Songs"), which were sung by the young nobles and populace during the Carnival, and Savonarola, to counteract their influence, composed songs of a different order but similar in form and metre, and capable of being sung to the same tunes. His biographer Villari, however, acknowledges that but little true poetry is to be found in them, only "a temperate tone of decorum and good sense." At an earlier period Savonarola had written certain Canzoni on the Ruin of the World, the Ruin of the Church, and other subjects; but they are poems rather than hymns. Also, he appended to his treatise on the Love of Jesus Christ some Laude e Contemplazioni infiammate ("Exciting Hymns of Praise and Contemplation"), in which he extols the mercy and goodness of the Saviour, and expresses an ardent desire to become one with Christ, being uplifted on the same cross, fixed to it by the same nails, and wearing the same crown of thorns. These hymns, however, are said by Italian scholars to be roughly executed, and could never have been used in public worship.

7. Better than Savonarola's are the lyrics of Girolamo Benivieni (about A.D. 1500). A specimen cited by Villari shows that occasionally he was extremely fanciful, almost passing the bounds of common sense, but a competent judge says of his productions, that they are "sometimes sweet and always warm with religious feeling." Another says that he paraphrased the psalms in a simple, happy, vigorous style, and that some of his hymns belong to the finest lyrical productions of Italy in the 15th century.

8. One other name may be mentioned belonging to this period, that of the highly accomplished Vittoria Colonna, the Marchesa Pescara (b. 1490, d. 1547), a great friend of Michel Angelo. Among other poems she published (about 1540) some of a religious character, called Rime Spirituali. These are described as "the productions of a delicate and sensitive imitativeness rather than of vigorous and original genius," and there is no evidence that they were ever used as hymns in worship.

9. The latter part of the 16th century was the commencement of a long season of decline in Italian literature, and for nearly 200 years there appeared no religious poet of eminence. Nevertheless, in the years 1688 and 1708 there were published two collections of hymns which claim a brief notice. The first was entitled: Corona di sacre Canzoni, o Laude Spirituali di piu devoti Autori (A Chaplet of Sacred Songs, or Spiritual Hymns of Praise, by several devout authors). The names of the authors are not stated, but the editor was Matteo Coferati, a priest of Florence. Permission to print the 1st ed. was given by the Grand Duke of Tuscany, Nov. 30, 1687. A 2nd ed., revised and enlarged, was printed at Florence in 1689, by Jacopo Carlieri. It contains about 330 hymns. There is no attempt at orderly arrangement, so that from a hymn on the Resurrection of Christ we pass to one on the Nativity, and a composition, whose subject is the Vanity of the World, is followed by one on the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin. Melodies accompany the hymns.

The other book, printed at Florence in 1703, comprises 212 hymns, all composed by Bernardo Adimari, a priest of the Oratory of S. Filippo Neri. This work consists of three parts. The 1st contains hymns suitable for use at any time; the 2nd, hymns for the fixed prescribed Festivals and for those of the Blessed Virgin; and the 3rd, for the Sundays in Lent and the movable Festivals. To all these hymns melodies are attached, and the following sentence from the preface both shows that they were intended for public use, and throws an interesting light on the usage of those days in regard to sacred song:—"Signor G. M. Casini has not only given the airs to these Little Songs, as may here be seen, but has besides affixed music arranged for four voices, it being the custom in many places for one stanza to be sung by the choir and the other by the people." It may be added that another Florentine poet with the surname of Adimari lived about this time, the Marquis Ludovico Adimari (b. 1644, d. 1708), author of Satires and Sonnets, and prose works of a religious character. Not improbably he was an elder brother of Bernardo Adimari.

10. The middle of the 18th century saw an improvement in Italian literature. Not only did secular poetry revive, as represented by Alfieri, Monti, and others, but the celebrated Doctor and Saint Alfonso Maria de Liguori, distinguished especially for his writings on casuistry and theology, also composed hymns and spiritual songs known to this day throughout Italy. He was b. near Naples in 1696, d. in 1787. Of the special character of his hymns we shall say more when we come to speak of the present condition of hymnody in the Roman Catholic Church of Italy.

11. Another poet of this period composed one fine hymn used in the worship of both R. Catholics and Protestants. This was Metastasio (i.e. Pietro Trupassi, b. at Rome in 1698, d. 1782), creator of the modern Italian opera. The subject of his hymn is "the omnipresence and omniscience of God," and the first stanza is as follows:—

"Dovunque il guardo giro, Immenso Dio Ti vedo;
Nell'opre Tue T'ammiro,
Ti riconosco in me.
La terra, il mar, le sfere
Parlan del Tuo potere;
Tu sei per tutto, e noi
Tutti viviamo in Te.

12. In the first quarter of the 19th century we meet with a hymn-writer in Alessandro Manzoni, author of tragedies and other poems, and of a work of fiction, I Promessi Sposi ("The Betrothed"), which has been translated into most European languages. He was b. at Milan in 1788, his mother being a daughter of the celebrated Beccaria. In 1815 he published a small volume of Inni Sacri ("Sacred Hymns"), their subjects being "The Nativity," "The Passion," "The Resurrection," and "The Name of Mary." A few years later he pub. one on "Pentecost." Prof. Bartoli says of these hymns that they have "gleams of genius, especially when the author describes the human affections." Comprising 16 or 18 stanzas each, they are too long for use in ordinary public worship; but a selection of 5 stanzas from the hymn on the "Nativity" is found in two of the Protestant hymn-books mentioned below. The first stanza is as follows:—

"Ecco il Figlio unigenito,
 Che in grembo ad un Figlio
 Le averse fure tremasse
 Al nuovo del suo ciglio;
 A fure la mano El porge,
 Che si ravviva, e sorge
 Ove l'ardore s'accese."

Also, eight stanzas from the hymn on "Pentecost" are in the collection edited by Rev. T. W. S. Jones, of Naples (v. infra). One stanza in particular seems to us beautifully descriptive of the effects of the Holy Spirit's presence in the Church:—

"Come la luce rapida
 Dove di cosa in cosa,
 E i color vari suocia,
 Dovunque si riposa:
 Tal risiede nell'anima
 La luce dello Spirito;
 L'Ambro, il Paro, il Siro,
 In suo sermone l'odi."

13. Luigi Carrer, of Venice (b. 1806, d. 1850), and Francesco Dall'Ogare (b. 1808, d. about 1876), two Italian poets who in their writings chiefly gave expression to intense patriotic aspirations, also wrote hymns, which however we have not met with in any collection intended for use in worship.

14. With a mention of another poet of the patriotic school, Giuseppe Giusti, we may close this part of our article. Giusti (b. 1809, d. 1865) was the greatest Italian satirist of this century, but in a Roman Catholic Hymnal described below, La Lira Cattolica, we find a beautiful little song of his, entitled "A Mother's Love." He died of consumption at a comparatively early age. The following touching lines, in the translation of W. D. Howells's Modern Italian Poets, are said to be the last which he wrote:—

"For the spirit confused With mingling and with sorrow, Let me, my Saviour, borrow The light of faith from Thee,
 O lift from it the burden Which here it dwells before Thee,
 With sighs and with weeping I commend myself to Thee;
 My faded life, Thou knowest, Little by little is wasted
 Like wax before the fire, Like snow-wreaths in the sun,
 And for the soul that panteth For its refuge in Thy bosom, Break, Thou, the time, my Saviour, That hinder it from Thee."

II. Italian Hymnody at the present time

1. In the Roman Catholic Church.

1. A very competent authority, an ecclesiastic in high position in Rome and a writer for the press, informs us that the Roman Catholic Church has never considered among by the people in the vulgar tongue as liturgical, the language of the Church being Latin. In Germany and the Slavonic countries popular singing has a certain historical value as regards either the words or music, and on this account its use there is not uncommon, and has been commended by synods and councils. These, however, have required that the words of new hymns should be approved by proper authority, and not even in these countries is singing in the language of the people permitted in the celebration of the solemn Mass. If such singing has sometimes occurred in country churches, it has been sanctioned by provincial councils.

2. But in Italy, our informant tells us, popular singing has no historic importance as regards either words or melodies. The people take part in the worship by singing in Latin the Litanies, the Te Deum, &c., and other similar portions of the service, and in many places, especially in the country, the people sing in Latin, and with the Gregorian melody (although somewhat barbarously) the Credo, the Sanctus, &c., of the solemn Mass.

3. But in extra-liturgical services, e.g. the daily devotion of the month of May, in popular missions, or in the exercises before and after preaching in congregations of young people and especially of boys, they are accustomed to sing some strophes in Italian. This, however, has no sanction from public authority. The Church does not oppose such singing, but she does not consider it an official matter in which she ought to interfere with her authority.

4. Among hymns and verses of this kind, those most frequently used in the Devotions above-mentioned are the compositions of S. Alfonso Maria de' Liguori (see § 1.9). The English reader may refer to a volume published in 1863, with the title Hymns and Verses on Spiritual Subjects: being the Sacred Poetry of S. Alphonsus Maria Liguori, translated from the Italiano and edited by Robert J. Ogles (London, Burns and Lambert). The hymns there given are 49 in number; but the last four, though commonly inserted among the poetry of St. Alfonso, were not composed by him. The translator has divided Liguori's hymns into 8 classes: (1) Devotional, relating to the Lord Jesus Christ or to the Blessed Virgin Mary; (2) Ascetical; (3) Mystical; Their character may be inferred from some of the titles:—

"To the Infant Jesus," "On the Sacred Heart of Jesus," "To the Instruments of the Passion of Jesus," "Mary our Hope," "Our Mother Mary," "The Heart of Sorrow," "Stanzas for the Evening Meditation," "The Soul gives itself to Jesus," "How amiable is the Will of God," "The soul conversed of the Society of God," "Dialogues between Jesus and the loving Soul," "The loving Soul in Meditation."

These hymns abound in utterances of intense devotion; much of the imagery is taken from the Song of Solomon, and although her and there are striking thoughts and beautiful turns of language, the expression of emotion is often so warm and passionate as to seem unreal to our colder English temperament. It is said that, like some of the Canti of Savonarola, these compositions of St. Alfonso were written for the most part for the use of the people, and intended to replace the profane and pernicious love songs of which the Neapolitans were so fond.

5. In northern Italy a collection of hymns and songs is popular, entitled La Lira Cattolica; raccolta di Sacre Lodi scelte e poste in musica per cura del Cav. Ab. Francesco Fà di Bruno. The 1st ed. appeared in 1854. The 4th is before us, pub. at Turin in 1886. These compositions are used in extra-liturgical services, and are also often sung by peasants at their work in the fields. The Roman ecclesiastic, who is our authority for the statements previously made as to Roman Catholic worship, speaks rather slightly of this collection, and we can well imagine that, by the more cultivated of the Italians, it is regarded very much as I. Sankey's Sacred Songs and Solos are by many persons in Great Britain. It includes a few hymns by poets of the first rank, but the majority are of a lighter and more popular character, often interspersed with choruses. The names of the authors of some of these latter are E. Bizio, S. Zambaldi, Spaccapietra, and C. C. Berta; but, as the editor of the collection is now deceased, we have been unable to obtain further particulars.

The collection comprises 123 pieces, in 8 sections. The first 24 relate to the worship of God, the Holy Trinity, Jesus Christ from His birth to His ascension to heaven, and to the Eucharist. Then follow 32 in honour of Mary under her various attributes. Twenty others are in honour of certain other Saints, Virgins and Martyrs. The fourth section contains 22 hymns on different subjects, adapted to animate the soul of the Christian; and the book closes with a number of hymns of an instructive and moral character suited to the young, together with translations into Italian of the "Dies Irae," "Stabat Mater," and the "Te Deum."

6. In the years 1817 and 1818 there were pub. at Florence two vols. (now bound in one), with the following title:—Inni Sacri e Sequenze del Breviario e Messale Romano tradotti in versi lirici Toscani dal sacerdote Arcangelo Lastri Fiorentino con varie dissertazioni per illustrazione dei medesimi. These translations from the Roman Breviary and Missal are often very free and paraphrastic, but the accompanying notes and dissertations are interesting and instructive. The work is adapted for private rather than public use.

7. The last remark holds good in regard to another book, Il Salterio del Pellegrino, per D. Luigi Tosti Casinese (Palermo, 6th ed., 1860). The contents of this little vol. are not really hymns in metre and rhyme, but devout meditations in the style of the Psalms of the Bible, and for this reason are called "Psalms."

8. It may suffice simply to name Laudes Mariane, by Francesco Martello, and Il Salterio Mariano, by Troiani Saverio. These works have no special merit, and like the preceding have no Church authority.

9. In closing this section, we may add that although the Roman Catholic Church in Italy does not appear to favour the singing of hymns in the vernacular in public worship, several of her Pontiffs and Bishops during the present century have distinctly encouraged such singing in private. In the preface to La Lira Cattolica (§ 5), are quotations from official announcements by Popes Pius VII. and Pius IX., and by six Italian Archbishops, granting indulgences of 40, 80, or 100 days, and even of a year, to those who shall practise this pious exercise with a contrite heart. The object is stated to be "to excite the faithful to the singing of spiritual hymns of praise, and to hinder as much as possible the singing of dangerous profane songs."

ii. Among the Protestants of Italy.

1. The principal Protestant communities in Italy at the present time are the following:—(1) The Waldensians, descendants, ecclesiastically, of the Waldenses of Piedmont; (2) The Free Italian Church ("Chiesa Libera"); (3) The Mission Congregations of the Methodist Episcopal Church of America; (4) The Mission Congregations of the Wesleyan Methodists, in North and South Italy; (5) The Baptists, who have stations in Rome, Turin, Leghorn, Venice and other places; some supported by the Baptists of England, others by the Baptists (Southern Convention) of the U. S. of America; (6) The Brethren ("I Fratelli"), represented in Great Britain by G. Müller, of Bristol (see Plymouth Brethren Hymnody), having in Italy about 50 small congregations; (7) Missions unconnected with any Denominational Society, as those of Rev. E. Clarke at Spezzia, and Count Pappengouth at Naples. For the use of these communities the following books have been prepared:—

(1) Salmi e Cantici ("Psalms and Canticles"), pub. by the Florence Tract Society, comprising 180 hymns with appropriate music. The hymns are by more than 20 authors, whose names are mentioned below. We recognize 18 or 17 as trs. from the English or German, principally the former, e.g., Ken's evening hymn; Wesley's "Soldiers of Christ, arise"; Doddridge's "Bless with us on every hand"; T. B. Taylor's "I'm but a stranger here." But the greater part are originals. This book is used by the Waldensian Church, the Free Italian Church, the Methodist Episcopalians, and some Baptist congregations. Indeed, at the present time it is more widely used than any other Protestant hymnal.

(2) Inni Sacri per uso delle chiese, delle scuole, e delle famiglie Evangeliche Italiane. Napoli. This book was first prepared in 1870 for the use of the Wesleyan congregations, by the Rev. T. W. S. Jones, superintendent of the mission in South Italy. In 1881 it was re-edited by him and considerably enlarged, and now contains 384 hymns, together with the Te Deum, and other anthems. Mr. Jones informs us that a new edition, to be still further enlarged, is now (1888) in preparation. The hymns are by about 25 different authors, but the far greater number are by Mr. Jones and Sig. Pretoro (v. infra).

(3) Salmi, Inni e Canzoni Spirituali, by T. P. Rossetti. Firenze, 1878. This is a collection of 345 hymns, including 18 trs. by Rossetti from I. Sankey's Sacred Songs and Solos, 246 by Rossetti himself, and 61 by Mapet, Reia, Ferretti and others. Of T. P. Rossetti's own hymns 60 were pub. in 1867. The complete collection of his hymns was issued in 1867, and a 2nd ed. with additions from other authors, in 1874. The book described above is called the 3rd ed. The collection is used by the "Brethren," and at Rev. E. Clarke's Mission at Spezzia, and many of the hymns are found in other collections.

(4) Inni e Canzoni Spirituali cantati dal Sig. Sankey, e volgarizzati da T. P. Rossetti. Con supplemento di altri scrittori. Firenze, 1883. A translation of 23 of the English and American hymns which have been popularized by I. Sankey, such as "The Prodigal Child," "The Ninety and Nine," "I hear Thy Welcome Voice," and "Jesus of Nazareth passeth by." All translated into Italian by T. P. Rossetti, and in the book before us accompanied with music.

(5) L'Arpa Evangelica, ossia Raccolta d'Inni e Canzoni per Principi ("The Gospel Harp, or Collection of Hymns and Songs for Children"), 8th ed., Firenze, 1882.

necessary to the hymn, &c.," read thus before passing to the printed form of the text:—

Since the notices here given were electrotyped four other mss. in the Brit. Mus. have been examined. Three of these (Add. 16,975, f. 219 b., of circa 1300; the Reg. 7, A. vi., f. 108, of the 14th cent.; and the Reg. 2, A. iz., f. 86, of the 14th cent.) present nearly the same text as that in Laud Misc. 668, and confirm the belief that the 42 stanza form of the text is the original. The fourth ms. is also of the 14th cent. (Reg. 7, D. xvii., f. 179 b), but it presents an interpolated and corrupt text, in 53 stanzas, viz.:—1-42, 43, 45-48, 50 (12, 48, 50 being greatly altered); and also 5 stanzas not found in any other ms. yet examined. These additional stanzas are:

52. Quem diu differt dolere.
53. Hunc affectum cum sentio.
54. In his plerumque gaudeo.
55. Tu meorum solatium.
56. Ostende Patri vulnera.

It will thus be seen that st. 43, 45, 48, 50, 52-56 are all at least as early as the 14th cent., though there does not appear to be any reason to regard them as really by St. Bernard; while st. 44, 49, 51, have not yet been found in mss. earlier than the 15th cent. [J. M.]

We must note also the following additional trs. :—

i. From the Full Form.

From E. Caswall's tr. there are also the following in

C. U. :—

1. O Jesu, Light of all below.
2. O Jesu, Lord, hear thou the sighs.
3. O Jesu, in mercy, hear the sighs.
4. Jesu, my soul hath in Thy love.

ii. From the Sarum Use.

1. Jesu dulcis memoria.

Chambers's tr. first appeared in his Order of Household Devotion, 1854, p. 370.

2. Jesu, auctor clementiae.

(1) Jesu, of mercy source alone. In the Antiphoner and Grail, 1880.

(2) Chambers's tr. first appeared in his Order of Household Devotion, 1854, p. 371.

iii. From the Roman Breviary Use.

1. Jesu dulcis memoria.

(1) Primer, 1706, p. 533; Evening Office, 1748, p. 50; F. C. Husenbeth, 1841, p. 73; P. Trappes, 1865, p. 30.

2. Jesu, Rex admirabilis.

(1) O Jesu! King of wondrous might. Office H. Bk., 18-9. This is partly from Neale.

3. Jesu, decus angelicum.

(1) Jesu, delight of angel-hosts. Office H. Bk., 1880.

iv. From the Paris Breviary Use.

This form of the text appeared in the Paris Brev. in 1680.

1. Jesu dulcedo cordium.

(1) Jesu, Thy sweetness to the heart. D. T. Morgan, 1880, p. 211.

v. Additional Centos.

1. O Jesu! to my soul most dear. In J. A. Johnston's

English Hyl., 1856.

2. Jesu! most high, most wonderful. A. T. Russell in his Ps. & Hys., 1851.

3. O Jesu! Thou of heaven the joy. A. T. Russell, 1851.

4. Jesus, our fainting spirits cry. By R. P. Dunn in the American Sabbath H. Bk., 1858. In some collections, including the Meth. Episco. Hyl., 1874, it begins with st. ii., "We sinners, Lord, with earnest heart."

From Nutter's Hymn Studies, 1884, p. 162, we find that in Dr. S. L. Caldwell's Memorial of Dr. Dunn, this

tr. begins "Jesus. Whose name the angel-host," and that the Sabbath H. Bk. text begins with st. ii. of the full form.

5. Jesu, Thou sweetness, pure and blest. This hymn in the East Grinstead St. Margaret's Hyl., 1875, is a cento from "Jesu," dulcis memoria, p. 586, ii., beginning with st. xxi., "Jesu, summa benignitas." The first stanza of the tr. is st. iv. of "Jesu: the very thought is sweet," by Dr. Neale (p. 537, ii.), and the rest, also by Neale, are new. This is a distinct cento from Kennedy, 1863, No. 1474, which begins with the same stanza (p. 586, i.).

6. Thou! Hope of all the lowly. By H. M. Macgill in his Songs of the Christian Creed and Life, 1876.

7. More glorious than the sun to see. This is in the St. Margaret's Hyl. [East Grinstead], 1875. Of this, st. ii., is from Neale's tr., 1862, and the rest are new, also by him.

8. O Jesu, King of wondrous might. In the St. Margaret's Hyl., 1875. This is by Neale, st. i., being from his 1862 tr., and the rest new.

9. Jesus, in thought alone to greet. By G. S. Hodges in his The County Palatine, 1876.

10. Jesus, to think of Thee. By J. Wallace, in his Hys. of the Church, 1874.

11. O Jesus: name to mem'ry dear. D. French, 1839, p. 2.

12. J. D. Chambers, in his Encheiridion, 1860, pp. 163-174, gives a set of versions from the centos in the "Hours de aeterna sapientia," noted at p. 586, ii. These are part of his version of the Sarum Encheiridion, 1828, f. cxxiii., "Hours of the Most Sweet Name of Jesus." These centos number eight in all. [J. J.]

Ken. T., p. 493, l. Since this article was electrotyped the following details concerning Bp. Ken's three hymns have come to light:—In a Catalogue of the S. P. C. K., pub. in 1707, there appears an entry of a tract entitled, Three Hymns for Morning, Evening, and Midnight, by the Author of the Manual of Prayers for Winchester Scholars. A copy of this hitherto unknown tract has lately come into the hands of Mr. W. T. Brooke, and by him has been passed on to the Brit. Mus. Lib. It is bound up in a volume with two other pamphlets, of which the respective titles are:

(1) An Exposition on the Church Catechism, or the Practice of Divine Love. Revised. Compos'd for the Diocese of Bath and Wells. Printed for Charles Browne, at the Gate of the West end of St. Paul's Churchyard, pp. 82; (2) Directions for Prayer for the Dioceses of Bath and Wells. Price 2d. pp. 16; (3) A Morning, Evening, and Midnight Hymn by the Author of the Manual of Prayers for Winchester Scholars. Nos. 2 and 3 have no title, but on the last page of No. 3 is "London. Printed at the Gun, at the West End of St. Paul's Church."

The text of this tract of the "Three Hymns" agrees absolutely with that of 1709, except that in the 10th stanza of the Morning Hymn it reads "not rise again," as in 1705. We may therefore conclude that Ken's revisions, with this exception, were made between 1705 and 1707, the date of the S. P. C. K. Catalogue.

We may add that another cento from Ken's Midnight Hymn is "Blest Jesu! Thou, on heaven intent," in Rice's Hys., 1870.

The Life of Bp. Ken by the late Dean Plumpton was pub. in 1888, in 2 vols. It is by far the best and most exhaustive life of the Bishop, and is worthy of the author's great reputation. [G. A. C.]

O Lord, Thy heavenly grace impart. [Self Consecration.] This hymn is found in Mrs. Lucy Wilson's Memoirs of John Frederic Oberlin. London, 1829, p. 254. It is there printed as part of the account of a service in Waldbach church on June 11, 1820, the description being given from the journal of Mrs. Steinkopff, who, with her husband, Dr. Steinkopff, secretary of the British and Foreign Bible Society, was then visiting the Ban de la Roche. After describing the service, and the sermon on Isaiah liii. 11, she adds:—

"When he had finished, he read some verses of a hymn expressive of entire devotedness to God. 'My dear friends," said he, "may these be the feelings of our heart, and as such let us sing them." They then sang them de bon cœur. The following is a translation:—

"O Lord, Thy heavenly grace impart,
And fix my frail inconstant heart;
Henceforth my chief desire shall be,
To dedicate myself to Thee:
To Thee, my God, to Thee!"

Then follow three other stanzas.

Fifty years later the Rev. Daniel Wilson, Vicar of Islington, in a letter of Sept. 15, 1870, to the Rev. James Bonar, of Greenock, regarding this hymn of his wife's, remarked:—

"It was written originally by Oberlin in German. Mrs. Wilson wrote Oberlin's Life. Mr. Steinkopf I think first translated it into English, and then Mrs. Wilson put it into verse."

In the Life however there is nothing to show that the hymn was of Oberlin's own composition. Moreover at p. 257 it is said that the Sunday services at Waldbach were in French, and that the German service was on Friday. As it happens June 11, 1820, was a Sunday, and there is no reason to suppose that the custom was broken, or that either the service as a whole, or this hymn in particular, was in German. No German hymn at all resembling it has yet been discovered. It is indeed true that in Oberlin's Schriften, vol. i., Stuttgart, 1843, p. 242, there is a German hymn, the first stanza of which is:—

"Zeuch Herr, mein unbeständig Hers
Durch deine Gnade himmelwärts.
Mein einzig Nehmen lass es sein,
Zu werden ganz, O Jesu, dein,
Nur dein, mein Gott, nur dein."

The hymn, however, like the rest of the Leben, is simply a tr. from the English Life by Mrs. Wilson, and is not an original German hymn.

We have also failed to find a French original, either in Oberlin's hymn-book mentioned at p. 303, L., or elsewhere. Still Mrs. Steinkopf's account, given above, makes it beyond doubt that Mrs. Wilson's English hymn does in some way reproduce (probably very freely) a hymn used at Waldbach, and makes it almost certain that the hymn was in French, but gives no clue to its authorship.

Mrs. Wilson's hymn has enjoyed considerable popularity, and has generally been given in full and unaltered, as in Thring's Coll., 1880-82, and the Free Church H. Bk., 1882. In H. V. Elliott's Ps. & Hys., 1835, it was reduced to L. M., and so in the American Sabbath H. Bk., 1858, and others in America. Further altered versions are:—

1. Jesus, Thy heavenly grace impart. In Bickersteth's Christian Psalms, 1833, and others.

2. O God, Thy heavenly grace impart. In the Hys. for Holy Trinity, Westminster, 1854, No. 79.

[J. M.]

Old Version, Hymns of the (pp. 857-866). In the article on the Old Version the main object was to trace out the origin and development of Sternhold & Hopkins, and the authors of the psalm-versions given in that Psalter. The Hymns therein, the Licence to Print, and the Authority to Use both the Psalms and the Hymns formed but a small part of the scope of the article.

In citing the various editions of Sternhold & Hopkins, on pp. 857-866, several hymns are referred to as forming an integral part of those editions. These include translations of a few ancient hymns; metrical versions of the Creeds, the Lord's Prayer, the Ten Commandments, and the Song of the Three Children; and original hymns on various subjects as "The Lamentation of a Sinner," the "Complaint of a Sinner," a "Thanksgiving after the receiving of the Lord's Supper," and others. In tracing out the history of these hymns we shall begin with the Partial Psalter of 1561 and the Complete Psalter of 1562. Sternhold & Hopkins, known to many as the Old Version, had an eventful history, as the following Schedule will show. In this Schedule we note (1) the Library in which each Psalter referred to is found; (2) the Date of each Psalter; (3) its Title; (4) the Use to be made of it by the People; (5) the Licence and Authority for this Use; (6) the Imprint and Privilege; and (7) Sundry remarks arising out of the foregoing facts.

Before giving the Schedule in detail, we subjoin the titlepages of the four editions of the Psalter which mark the successive stages of its history.

of the people together, in Churches, before and after Morning and Evening prayer: as also before and after the Sermon." Its acceptance was universal, and continuous.

The opening lines of the psalm-versions of this Psalter are given on pp. 866-66. We now give the Hymns.

Old Version Hymns in the Psalter of 1561.

[Signed Robert Windom.]
- (17) No heading.
Preserue vs Lorde by thy deare worde.

The above represent these hymns as they stood in the 1561 Psalter, the headings only being modernized, except in the case of No. 16, which is as in the original.

From 1561 to 1566 additional Hymns were given to the above, and in 1566 (the first for Public Use) the Psalter included the above and those following also:—

- (18) The humble suit of a Sinner. (Signed M.)
O Lord, of whom I do depend.
- (19) Before Morning Prayer. (Signed T. Be.)
Prayle the Lord O ye Gentiles all.
- (20) Before Evening Prayer. (Signed T. Be.)
Behold now geue heere such as be.
- (21) Complaint of a Sinner.
Where rightuousnesse doth fay.
- (22) The Lamentation.
O Lorde in thee I all my trust.
- (23) The Song of the Three Children.
O all ye workes of God the Lorde.

In a Cambridge ed. of the Psalter of 1662 the same hymns are retained. Later the number gradually grew less until they numbered about fourteen.

Of these hymns that which is historically of the most importance is the "Thanksgiving after the receiuing of the Lord's Supper":—

The Lord be thanked for His gifts. This was the first metrical hymn written for, and adopted by the English Reformers for use at the Celebration of Holy Communion. It was first printed, so far as yet known, in the incomplete 1561 Psalter of Sternhold and Hopkins (as set forth above), p. 228, in 81 st. of 4 l., and in this manner:—

A. A thanks geuing after the receiuing of the Lorde's Supper.

Q. Sing this as the euzzell Psalms.
The Lord be thanked for his giftes,
And mercy euermore:
That he doth shew unto his saints
To him be laude therefore.

The same form of this hymn was always retained. It passed the ordeal with the Psalter, and thereby attained, in common with the other Hymns named above, an authority co-equal and co-extensive with the Psalter itself. It must also be noted that it is an original hymn, and not a Metrical rendering of the Prose tr. of the "Gloria in Excelsis" in the Office for Holy Communion in the Book of Common Prayer.

The length of this hymn is somewhat formidable, and in these latter days its 124 lines would be regarded as a tax upon the patience of the congregation. When it is known however that it was sung by those who had communicated, and those who were waiting to communicate, whilst another portion of the people were communicating, that the congregation sat during the time it was being sung, that it could be curtailed if the communicants were few in number, and that its object was, as George Wither says in defence of his hymn of 200 lines for the same purpose (Hys. and Songs of the Church, 1623; to meet the "custom among us that during the time of administrating the Holy Sacrament of the Lord's Supper there is some Psalm or Hymn sung, the better to keep the thoughts of the communicants from wandering," its length is understood and accounted for. The practice of sitting during the singing of hymns in the Church of England prevailed in various counties to 1840. In several collections of Ps. & Hys. dating from 1830 to 1840 the duty of standing during the singing of the hymns, as against the practice of sitting, was strongly set forth in the Prefaces thereto. [England. Hymnody. Church of, p. 236, ii.] From this it is evident that sitting to sing at the Holy Communion had extended to other parts of divine worship.

The history of the hymns for Holy Communion in the New Version of Tate and Brady, which superseded this hymn in Public Use in the Church, is given at pp. 301-2. [J. J.]

Psalters, Versions in English, pp. 926-932. Since this article was stereotyped we have received the following additions to the list of Psalters and Partial Versions of the Psalms from Mr. W. L. Taylor, of Peterhead, N.B., whose collection of Psalters is very complete.

1. 1570. Edward Roger. Booke of very godly Psalmes and Prayers. . . Indicated to the Lady Latice, Vicountesse of Hereforde. Black Letter. London. W. Griffiths, 1570.

2. 1581. Anthonic Gilbie. The Psalmes of David Truly opened and explained by Paraphrase according to the right sense of euerie Psalm set fourth in Latin by Theodore Beza, and Englished by Anthonic Gilbie. London. Heurt Denham, 1581.

3. 1604. The Psalmes of King David, paraphrased and turned into English Verse according to the Common metre. London. Thomas Garthwaite, 1604.

a whole. Including double renderings it contained in all 155 versions. Of these at least 37 passed into the hymn-books of the 16th cent., and some kept their place till late in the 17th. None have been tr. into English.

2. In the Reformed Church a more prominent place was given to Psalm versions than in the Lutheran, as the following details will show:—

In the Constantz Nüss gangbüchle of 1536-40, out of 150 pieces 67 were Psalm-versions; in the Strassburg Kirchenampt of 1521-25 out of 30 there were 22; while the Strassburg Psalmen of 1530 contained Psalms only. In the Strassburg Psalmen of 1537 hymns were again added, while in pt. II., Strassburg, 1538, entitled Psalter, das seindt alle Psalmen Davids [Munich]. The copy is incomplete, with only Ps. 1-113; versions of all the Psalms were included, many being taken from J. Aberlin and J. Dachser (see below). Both parts, as united in 1539, contained 186 Psalm-versions and 90 hymns. In the succeeding eds. of 1546-60 the number of Psalm-versions was greatly reduced. During this period detached Psalms were versified by T. and A. Blaurer, W. Meusel, W. Dachstein, M. Greitter, L. Oelr, and others. Besides the Strassburg Psalter of 1538 another complete version appeared as:—

4. Der gantz Psalter Davids . . . zur Kirchübung, Augsburg, 1538 [Munich]. This is mainly by Jacob Dachser, sometime pastor in Augsburg. The versions are poor, and few of them passed into the hymn-books save of Strassburg and Augsburg.

3. Among the minor sects the only Psalm-versions whose productions passed into the hymn-books of the Evangelical church were J. Aberlin (see below) and A. Reissner. The complete versions were:—

5. Der gantz Psalter . . . durch vil berühmter für-bändiger Dichter un Posten. 1537 (Zürich?) (B. M.) Edited by Joachim Aberlin, of Garmerschwiler in Württemberg, who supplied renderings of Psalms not previously versified by others. A number of his versions are in No. 6 below, but few are found elsewhere, save in the Strassburg hymn-books.

Among the Enthusiasts a complete version appeared as:—

6. Der new gesang psalter. 1538 (Ulm?) (Berlin). This is based on the Constant G. B., 1536, takes 42 versions from Dachser, and 68 from Aberlin, and includes 13 by Sigmund Salming, of Augsburg. Edited by Salming or jointly with Aberlin.

ii. 1561-1617.

During this period a considerable number of detached Psalm-versions appeared; with at least 20 complete versions, one of which, that by Lobwasser, long dominated in the Reformed Church. In the Lutheran Church versions of all the Psalms, collected from various sources, principally from Johann Magdeburg (see below), were included as part of the Kirchē-Gesäng, pub. at Frankfurt-am-Main in 1569. Versions of individual Psalms were made by N. Herman, C. Fuger, B. Ringwaldt, N. Selnecker, L. Helmbold, C. Schneegass, J. Fischart, D. Wolder, W. Ammonius, J. Mühlmann, and others. In the Bohemian Brethren's Kirchengesang of 1566 a number of Psalm-versions by J. Jelecky, P. Heibert, C. Sirutachko and M. Polycarp were included (see p. 156, ii.).

The more important complete versions of this period were:—

7. Der Psalter Davids gesangsweise, in Deutsche Reimen versetzt. Frankfurt-am-Main, 1565 [Hamburg]. By Johann Magdeburg, diaconus of the St. Katherine's church at Hamburg. Of these versions 20 were included in the Frankfurt Kirchē-Gesäng of 1569, and 20 in the Frankfurt Psalmen und Gesänge, 1603.

8. Der Psalter dess Könighen Propheten Davids, in deutsche reymen verständtlich und deutlich gebracht. Leipzig, 1573 [Hamburg]. By Ambrosius Lobwasser (p. 683, ii.). Lobwasser was of the Lutheran and not of the Reformed Church. He not only wrote the tunes of the French Psalter, including them in four-part harmony, but literally tr. the Marot-Beza versions. He had written his version in 1566 and shown it to Duke Albrecht of Prussia, but from various reasons it was not then printed, and the Duke's death in 1568 still further delayed its appearance. Employed at first only for private edification this version gradually came into universal use in the Reformed Church, e.g. in Basel, 1606; Hesse Cassel, 1608; St. Gall, 1619; Bern, 1620; Zürich, 1641, &c. This dominant position it retained till the appearance of Jorissen's version in 1798, and it was in recent times still used in some parts of Switzerland. It was as warmly opposed as it was warmly welcomed, and was stigmatised by the Lutherans as Calvinistic, as mere rhymers' work, as obscuring the Evangelical spirit of the Psalms, &c., and thus Becker's version of 1692 was published in opposition. To the ed. of Lobwasser pub. at Herborn in 1593, and in most later eds. there was added an appendix of Kiliche Psalmen und geistliche Lieder. Of the melodies many passed into use among the Lutherans, and also a few of the Psalm-versions. The only one tr. into English is that of Ps. cxlvi. (see p. 683, ii.).

9. Der Psalter Davids gesangsweise, auff die in Lutherischen Kirchen gewöhnliche Melodien eingerichtet. Leipzig, 1602 (Berlin). By Cornelius Becker (p. 121, i.). This was written as in a genuine Lutheran spirit and to Lutheran tunes, in order to counteract the influence of Lobwasser's version. It soon obtained popularity, and was set to four-part music by Seth Calvisius (Leipzig, 1605, &c.), and by Heinrich Schütz (Freiburg in Saxony, 1628). The complete Psalter was adopted as part of the Weissenfels G. B., 1714, and a large proportion in the Dresden G. B., 1676. A few versions, such as those of Ps. xliii., cxvii., cxli., are still in use in Germany, and the first of these has passed into English (p. 121, i.).

10. Himliche Cantorey, Das ist, Der Psalter Davids, Gesangsweise, auff gemeine bekante Melodien, nach dem Teutschen Text und Version D. Luther's übergesetzt. Hamburg, 1604 [Hamburg]. By Franciscus Algemann, a lawyer, and in 1599 Landfiscal in the Dürky of Brunswick. Completed in 1599, and thereafter set to music in four parts by the Hamburg organists Jacob and Jerome Pratorius, David Scheidele and Joachim Dreker. Only a few of these versions came into German use. The 2nd ed., Heinrichstadt, 1610 (Berlin), was entitled Cithara Davidica.

Other versions of this period were:—

11. Die Psalmen Davids in Teutsche gesangsreymen. Heideberg, 1572 [B. M. and Berlin]. By Paul Scheele or Melius, afterwards chief librarian at Heidelberg, where he d. in 1602. It is a version of Ps. i.-li. in the Marot-Beza metres.

12. Der Psalter des heiligen Königes und Propheten Davids: in kurze einfeltige Deutsche Reimen versetzt. Magdeburg, 1574 [Celle]. By Georgius Henningsen, preacher at St. George's church in Hannover, who d. 1590.

13. Præteritum. Das ist, Die ainshundert un fünfzig Psalmen des heiligen Propheten Davids. Augsburg, 1574 [Berlin]. By Gregorius Sinderreiter, preacher at St. George's church in Augsburg.

14. Gedichte. Das fünfft und letzt Buch . . . begriffend: Den gantzen Psalter des Könighen Propheten Davids. Nürnberg, 1579 [Wittenbittel]. By Hans Sachs. Apparently written after 1561.

15. Dauids Himliche Harpffen von neuem auf-gesungen. Nürnberg, 1581 [Weiningerode]. This copy has lost its title. It is a revision by Sinderreiter of his work of 1574, and is in great measure a new version.

16. Der gantz Psalter Davids . . . gesangsweise gefasset. Frankfurt-am-Main and Strassburg, 1582 [Berlin]. By Cyriacus Spangenberg, sometime town and court preacher at Mansfeld, d. 1604 at Strassburg. There is a version of each Psalm by himself (except Ps. xc., where he gives a version by his father), and a few by other hands.

17. Der Psalter Davids . . . in deutsche Vers oder Rythmos vertiert. Leipzig, 1583. By Nicolaus Hess of Naumburg.

18. Psalmen des Könighen Propheten Davids auff die Prantzeische Reimen und Art gestellt. Speier, 1588 [Munich]. By Philipp the Younger, Baron of Winnenberg and Beilestein. Written about 1584.

19. Der Psalter gesangsweise, inn verständliche Deutsche Reim. Breslau, 1591. By Joachim Sartorius, Cantor at Schweidnitz in Silesia.

20. Der Psalter gedichtweise. Liegnitz, 1601. By Marcus Buntzel, Burgess at Liegnitz in Silesia.

21. Der Psalter Davids. Magdeburg, 1603 [Gotha]. By Elias Noricus, or Nürnberg, of Quedlinburg.

22. Des Könighen Propheten Davids Psalter von reimen klaren und gantzen Iambis. Tübingen, 1604

52. Die Psalmen Davids, nach den mehrentheils bekannten Gesang-Melodien Reim-weiss übersetzt. Stuttgart, 1700 [Berlin]. By Michael Müller (p. 778, l.).
53. Die cl. Psalmen in deutsche Reime gebracht. Danzig, 1713 [Berlin]. By Ernst Lange (p. 687, li.) in the Marot-Beza metres.
54. Die auf lutherische Melodien in deutsche Lieder übersetzten cl. Psalmen Davids. Danzig, 1720 [Wernigerode]. Also, by Ernst Lange. Only a few of these came into German C. U.

Other versions of this period were:—

55. Die alte Zions-Harfe des höchstseligen Königs Propheten und Poeten Davids Ehre. Nürnberg, 1693 [B. M. and Wernigerode]. By Christoph Adam Negelein, sometime merchant in Nürnberg, and then court-poet at Vienna (d. 1701).
56. Die Psalmen Davids, oder 150. Göttlich-Prechtische Harfen-Lieder. Cassel, 1695 [Leipzig]. By Caspar Baum, who in 1679 became collector of the Paedagogium at Cassel (d. 1702).
57. Geistliche gerührte Harfe Davids. Stuttgart, 1703. By Johann Wolfgang Jäger, b. 1647, d. April 20, 1737, at Tübingen, as titular Abbot of Adelberg, and General Superintendent of Württemberg.
58. Davidisches Gesang-Buch. N. P. 1712 [Göttingen]. By Johann Paul Schönburg.
59. Übersetzung derer heiligen Psalmen Davids. Hamburg, 1715 [Göttingen]. By Johann Otto Dörkop, b. at Glückstadt, 1664, finally Kammerath to the King of Denmark, d. 1712 at Hamburg.
60. Psalmen Davids... in Teutsche Verse gebracht. Zelle (Celle), 1719 [Göttingen]. By J. Gerup, i.e. Joachim Grupe, who in 1692 was Amtmann at Harburg, and d. 1729.
61. Melodias sacratissimae; das ist Die heilige Psalmen des hocherleuchteten Königs und Propheten Davids. Zelle, 1722 [Göttingen]. By David Christian Danielis, in 1737, pastor at Ahlden, near Celle.
62. Die nach den gewöhnlichsten Kirchen-Gedungen eingerichtete Psalmen Davids. Nürnberg, 1723 [Göttingen]. By Anna Elisabeth von Schönburg, married 1704 to G. F. Behaim, Baron von Schwarzbach, d. 1716 at Hirschfelde, near Zittau.
63. Der Teutsch-Ningende David. Strassburg, 1726 [Berlin]. By Georg Heinrich Möller, sometime pastor at Tränheim near Strassburg.
64. Psalmen Davids. Bremen, 1737 [Göttingen]. By Johann Schöne, L.L.D.
65. Oden Davids, oder poetische Uebersetzung der Psalmen. Halle, 1746 [Wernigerode]. By Samuel Gotthold Lange, who in 1737 became pastor at Laubingen, near Halle, and d. 1781.
66. Biblisches Vergnügen in Gott. Hamburg, vols. i., ii., 1746; iii.,—v., 1752 [B. M. and Wernigerode]. By Conrad Friedrich Stresow, who in 1752 became chief pastor and probst at Burg on the Island of Fehmarn, and d. 1788.
67. Evangelischer Lieder-Psalter. Stuttgart, 1747 [B. M. and Berlin]. By C. C. L. von Pfeil (p. 693, l.) on the principle of New Testament interpretation. By double versions the numbers 212 to all.
68. Psalmen David. Halberstadt, 1751 [Wernigerode]. By Daniel Wolleb, court preacher at Halberstadt, where he d. 1763.

vi. 1755-1816.

During this period the tendency was to write moral hymns rather than to attempt Psalm-versions. Among the Lutherans the only Psalm-version that need be noted, besides those by Cramer and Lehman (see below), is S. G. Bürde's Ps. cxxvi. (see p. 104, i.). In the Reformed Church there now appeared a tendency to set as the version of Lohwasser. The version substituted for Lohwasser in the Alt-Dessau G. B., 1766, is mainly from J. A. Cramer, but partly supplied by the editor, Simon Ludwig Eberhard de Marées (since 1760 court preacher and superintendent of the Reformed Church at Dessau, d. 1820). 11 of whose renderings are repeated in the Anhalt-Dessau G. B., 1830. Later on the version by Jorissen (see below) came into favour. The principal versions of this period are:—

69. Poetische Uebersetzung der Psalmen. Leipzig, vol. i., 1755; ii., 1759; iii., 1763; iv., 1764 [Wernigerode, complete ed. 1763-64 in the B. M.]. By J. A. Cramer (p. 267, li.). These versions are very free, and were not originally intended for church use. A considerable number passed into the hymn-books of the period, e.g. the Alt-Dessau G. B., 1766, Lüneburg, 1767, Schleswig-Holstein, 1780, &c. A few are found in recent collections, e.g. in the Schaffhausen G. B. of 1841.

70. David Psalter vor das Israel nach dem Geiste. Rothenburg on the Tauber, 1762 [Wernigerode]. By Johann Adam Lehman, after 1762 Lutheran superintendent at Rothenburg, where he d. 1788. There are 192 versions on the principle of New Testament interpretation, several of which are included in the Württemberg G. B., 1843.

71. Versuch einer freieren Uebersetzung der Psalmen, um sie für christliche Gemeine brauchbarer zu machen. Danzig, 1783 [B. M.]. By Samuel Ludwig Majewski, in 1781 pastor of the Reformed Church of St. Peter, Paul at Danzig, where he d. 1801. He included many of these versions in the Psalmen und Lieder zum Gebrauch der evangelisch-reformirten Gemeinde zu Danzig, which he edited in 1785.

72. Neue Bereinigung der Psalmen, bestimmt für die reformirten deutschen Gemeinen im Grafen Haag und Amsterdam. Weesl, 1798 [Wernigerode]. By Matthias Jorissen, in 1781 preacher to the (in man) congregation at The Hague, d. 1823. This was written to replace Lohwasser's version, did so in the Rhine Land as early as 1806, forms part of the Elberfeld Reformed G. B., 1853, and is the basis of the versions in the Schaffhausen G. B., 1841. A number are included in Knapp's Er. L. S., in Dr. Schaff's Deutsches G. B., 1869 and 1874, and others.

Other versions of this period were:—

73. Die Psalmen Davids in deutscher Poesie. Hildburghausen, 1761 [Berlin]. By Johann Matthäus Stoll, sometime pastor at Albrechts, near Suhl (d. 1793).
74. Die Psalmen in neuen Liedern. Breslau, 1762 [B. M.]. By Johann Georg Rutha, sometime pastor at Michelsau, near Briesg in Silesia.
75. Evangelische Nachahmungen der Psalmen Davids. Copenhagen, 1769 [B. M. and Hamburg]. By J. A. Cramer (see No. 69). Free versions of Ps. i.-xxx., on the principle of New Testament interpretation.
76. Geistliche Lieder und Lobgesänge in Nachahmungen der Psalmen Davids. Mannheim, 1770 [Berlin]. By Georg Friedrich Ludwig Möller, in 1764 pastor of the Reformed Church at Odenbach, near Meisenheim, Rhenish Prussia. The last 31 Psalms.
77. Poetische Versuche über die Psalmen. Bützow and Wismar, 1771 [B. M.]. By E. F. von Engel, with preface dated at Lange in Mecklenburg. Of Ps. 1-41.
78. Die Psalmen Davids in gebundener Rede. Frankfurt and Leipzig, 5 pts., 1773-74. By Christian Friedrich Flacher, sometime cashier of the lotteries in the principality of Anspach, d. 1783.
79. Die Psalmen Davids in Liedern. Weissenburg, pt. i., 1775; ii., 1778; iii., 1779 [pt. i. in Berlin]. By Johann Friedrich Schützinger, in 1762 diaconus at Weissenburg, near Nürnberg (d. 1783).
80. Versuch einer poetischen Uebersetzung einiger Psalmen. Leipzig, 1779. By Karl Benedict Suttinger, who in 1764 became rector of the school at Lübben in Saxony, and d. there 1830.
81. Poetische Uebersetzung der Psalmen Davids. Königsberg, 1782 [Wernigerode]. By Wilhelm Lau, sometime assistant pastor at Deutsch-Thierau near Königsberg (d. 1782).
82. Versuch einer poetischen Umschreibung sämtlicher Psalmen. Frankfurt-am-Main, 1783. By Siegmund Heinrich Gildenfalk, elsewhere described as "Fürst, Hessen-Darmstadtisches Ober-Landkommissar," d. 1787.
83. Poetische Uebersetzung der Psalmen, nach ihrer Inhalt geordnet. Hannover, 1784 [B. M. and Wernigerode]. By Johann Georg Brandes, described as Judge (Gerichts-Schlichter).
84. Psalmen. Herborn, 1787 [Berlin]. By Wilhelm Heinrich Seel, for 23 years chief pastor at Dillenburg in Nassau (d. 1793).
85. Die Psalmen dem König David und andere heilige Sänger nachgeungen. Winterthur, 1793 [Wernigerode]. By E. W. von Wobeser (p. 769, li.).
86. Christliche Umschreibungen der Psalmen. Nürnberg, 1798 [Wernigerode]. By Christian Friedrich Buchrucker, in 1793 pastor at Klein-Weissach, near Neustadt on the Aisch, Bavaria.

vii. 1817-1890.

During this period versions of individual Psalms were made by F. H. C. de la Motte Fouqué, J. F. von Meyer, E. R. Stier, C. J. P. Spitta, J. P. Lange, J. C. R. Sturm, and others. Versions, more or less complete, ap-

Debersetzung. Basel, 1868. By Dr. Christ. Johann Riggensbach, sometime professor of Theology at Basel, d. 1890.

III. Roman Catholic Versions.

An account of German Psalters would be incomplete without some mention of the Roman Catholic versions. Very little information is however available regarding these, and, excepting those by Ulenberg, they do not seem to possess much intrinsic value or to have exercised any great influence on the development of German Roman Catholic Hymnody. In the ordinary services of the Church the Psalter continued to be used in the Latin Vulgate version. The German Roman Catholic hymn-books, from the earliest (Michael Vehe's Neue Gesangbüchlein, Leipzig, 1537) onwards, as a rule contained a certain proportion of Psalm-versions, but no complete rhymed German version of the Psalms appears to have been authorised for use in any diocese in Germany. The only complete, or approximately complete, rhyming versions made by private individuals, that it has been possible to trace, are the following:—

121. Der gantz Psalter Davids, nach der gemeinen alten Kirchlichen Lateinischen Edition auff vers und Reimweis gar freulich verständig und geschicklich gestellt. Cologne, 1574 [Augsburg]. By Rutger Edingius. A few of these passed into the early R. C. hymn-books.

122. Die Psalmen Davids in allerlei Teutsche gesangreimen bracht. Cologne, 1582 (H. M. and Berlin). By Caspar Ulenberg, then R. C. pastor at Kalswerth (d. at Cologne 1617). This is one of the best 16th cent. versions, and many passed into the R. C. hymn-books.

123. Der Psalter Davids. Dresden, 1599 (Berlin). By Vitus Abel Endter, elsewhere described as "of Carlsbad, in the service of the Elector of Saxony."

124. Seelen Lustgart: das ist der gantz Psalter. St. Gall, 1610 [Augsburg]. By Melchior Guldin.

125. Die Psalmen des küniglichen Propheten Davids: In Teutsche Reymen und Melodeyen verfasst. Mainz, 1658. This work has also a second title, beginning Kayserlicher Psalter, darmit Die Psalmen Davids, &c., dated Frankfurt-am-Main, 1659. [Göttingen.] No name of author is given.

126. Harppfen Davids mit teutschen Saiten bespannet . . . Gesangsweis eingerichtet. Augsburg, 1669 (H. M. and Wernigerode). In the preface it is said to be for the use of the Austrian, Bavarian, and Swabian ladies. The colophon describes it as "by one of the Society of Jesus."

127. Der schöne Psalmen-Brunn des küniglichen Propheten Davids in hochteutsche Reymen gesangsweise geflossen. Frankfurt-am-Main, 1673. By Johann Philipp, Baron von Schönborn, who d. 1673, as Bishop of Würzburg.

128. Das Buch der Psalmen in gebundener Schreibart. Kempten, 1772 [Augsburg]. By P. Camillus a Praemont.

129. Die Psalmen und biblische Gesänge in deutsche Verse. Augsburg, 1787 [Augsburg]. By F. K. Kienle.

130. Die Psalmen lyrisch übersetzt. Hildesheim, 1787, &c. By Joseph Anton Cramer, b. 1737, sometime Jesuit professor at Hildesheim, where he d. 1794.

131. Die Psalmen . . . in gereimten Versen. Augsburg, 1819 [Augsburg]. By Franz Joseph Wetznierl, in 1806 preacher at Regensburg cathedral (d. 1820). See also p. 656, i.

132. Psalmen und Gesänge der heiligen Schrift. Freiburg, 1817 [Wernigerode]. By Marx Fidel Jäck, in 1808 R. C. pastor at Triberg in the Black Forest.

133. Psalterium: oder Aus-Bei-Freis-Gebets des Psalmen Davids in gereimten Versen. Landshut, 1832 [Munich]. By Simon Buchfeller b. 1798, sometime Pfarr-Vicar at Alt-Oetting in Bavaria.

134. Das Buch der Psalmen in gereimten Versmassen übersetzt. Munich, 1863 (B. M.) By Heinrich Hayd, described as p. d. and Kaplan.

135. Die Psalmen metrisch übersetzt. Vienna, 1864 (H. M. and Augsburg). By Dr. Adolf Brecher, with preface dated Olmütz, Oct. 1863.

The above article, though doubtless imperfect, contains an approximately complete list of versions of the Psalter in German rhymed verse, and is much fuller than anything which has yet appeared in Germany. For kind help in its compilation thanks are especially due to Professors Dr. Oscar von Gebhardt, Berlin; Dr. Eduard Jacobs, Wernigerode; Dr. Laubmann, director of the Royal Library at Munich; Dr. J. Franke, Göttingen; Dr. Dibel of the Town Library, Augsburg; Pastor Dr. Kraft, Elberfeld; Pastor Carl Bertheau, p. d., Hamburg; Seminarlehrer Wilhelm Biele, Lüneburg; and M. Felix Boret, Grandchamps, Neuchâtel.

Among the non-rhyming versions may be mentioned those by Moses Mendelssohn (Berlin, 1783); F. T. von Schönfeld (Vienna and Leipzig, 1788); J. V. F. Zobel (Augsburg, 1790); J. R. Schärer (Bern, 1812); M. Lindemann (Hamburg, 1812); G. F. Hillmer (Breslau, 1817); F. W. Goldwitzer (Sulzbach, 1827); J. B. König (Augsburg, 1830-31); Ferdinand Stereeder (Linz, 1859); Wilhelm Piath (Hamburg, 1866); Gustav Hekel (Innsbruck, 1883. This is vol. III. of his Dichtungen der Hebräer); while most of the recent German commentaries on the Psalms contain a version according to the parallelisms of the Hebrew.

We may add that some collections of hymns have appeared under titles which conveyed the erroneous impression that they consisted of Psalm versions, e.g., the Psalmodia Evangelica (Wolfebüttel, 1627) of Albert Liders (Göttingen); the Herzliche Psalter (Breslau, 1662) of David von Schweinitz (B. M.); the Graffenbergische Psalter und Harfenlust (Altenstein, 1673-75) of Johann Müller (Hist. and Antiq. Society at Stettin); and the Davidischer Harfenspiel (Nürnberg, 1762) of N. E. Zobel (Royal Library, Hanover).

After this article had been finally arranged the interesting work of Dr. O. Wetzelstein entitled Die religiöse Lyrik der Deutschen im 19 Jahrhundert (Neustrelitz, 1891) came to hand. There at pp. 310, 311 is a long note on recent German versions of the Psalms. Those not noted above are the versions by Hermann Bräunow, photographer in Danzig (Psalmen Davids in Liedern, 1884); by Wilhelm Preger (Psalmbüchlein, Rothenburg on the Tauber, 1886; 2nd ed. Gütersloh, 1888, as Stimmen aus dem Heiligtum); and Professor Dr. Watterich (Die Psalmen metrisch übersetzt, Baden Baden, 1890). [J. M.]

Te Deum laudamus, pp. 1119-1234. The following additions to this article must be noted:—

1. At the end of § i. Authorities, 1119, ii. read:—

There is an interesting article [by Dom G. Morin] in the Revue Benedictine for April 1890, pub. at Maredsous, Belgium, "L'Auteur du Te Deum." Morin attributes the introduction of the hymn (verses 1-21) into N. Italy to Abundius Bp. of Como (423-464) and Niketas Bp. of Aquileia (454-485), and hence explains the titles which attribute the hymn to them as authors.

2. At the end of § vi. Versions, i. Old German, p. 1127, ii. read:—

The Icelandic Post-reformation Graduale (in use up to the end of the last century) contains a version in a sort of rough rhyme, beginning

Herra Gud þig heidrum vier
Herra Gud vier þokrum þier
Þig Fadir Elifje
Vegsamar allt Jardiðke.

The literal translation of verse 16 is "The Virgin's womb hast thou not despised: thus mankind is loosed through the Grace." The copy quoted is Editio xix. anno 1779, pp. 251-256.

3. At the end of § vii. Liturgical Use 7. (4) (Rubrics of the Roman Brev.) p. 1130, i. read:—

Dom G. Morin sums up the case of present usage thus: "Aujourd'hui . . . comme chacun le sait dans la liturgie romaine on ne chante régulièrement le Te Deum aux Matines que si l'on doit chanter le Gloria in excelsis à la Messe." i.e. p. 155 note.

4. Read on from p. 1130, ii. immediately before § viii. Musical Settings, as follows:—

bodied in full at p. 119, and therein it is said that the compiler of the Raccolta was a Roman priest of the name of Telosephoema Galli, who d. in 1845. There is no evidence to show that he composed the "Viva! viva! Gesù." [J. J.]

Young, Edward Mallet, M.A. s. of Sir G. Young, Bart., was b. Jan. 24, 1839, and educated at Eton and Trinity College, Cambridge; B.A. first class Classical Honours, 1863, and Fellow of Trinity College, 1865-78. He became Assistant Master at Harrow School in 1865, and Head Master of Sherborne School in 1878. He entered Holy Orders in 1869, and was Select Preacher at Cambridge in 1876-79, and Hon. Canon in Salisbury Cathedral 1891. In 1888 he edited Hymns for the Use of Sherborne School, an excellent collection for its special purpose, and to it he contributed:—

1. Abide in Me and I in you. Union with Christ.
2. Beneath the fig-tree's silent shade. St. Bartholomew.
3. Captain of our salvation take. Ember days. This is C. Wesley's hymn rewritten and adapted for Public Schools (see p. 304, ii.).
4. O merciful and holy. This is the altered form of Dr. Butler's hymn noted on p. 1308, l. 5.
5. We praise Thy grace, O Saviour. This is an altered form of Bp. How's hymn noted at p. 540, ii., 28.
6. When to dark Moriah's side. Easter Eve. [J. J.]

APPENDIX—PART II.

A

A blessing on our pastor's head. J. Montgomery. [For Ministers.] Written Dec. 26, 1840, for the Jubilee of the Rev. W. Jay of Bath, in 6 st. of 4 l. (M. Mus.) In 1863 it was included in Montgomery's Orig. Hym. It is sometimes given as "A blessing on Thy servant's head," as in the Prim. Meth. Hym., 1867.

A Patre Unigenitus, p. 2, l. Another tr. is, "The Father's sole-begotten Son," by T. B. Follock in the 1849 ed. of H. A. & M.

Aberdeen Breviary. [See p. 171, ii.]

Abide with me, fast falls the eventide, p. 7, l. A cento from this hymn, beginning "Swift to its close ebbs out life's little day," is in Laudes Domini, N. Y., 1834.

Ach! treuer Gott, p. 10, ii. This hymn is found in the Berlin ed. of Crüger's Praxis, &c. 1663, No. 373.

Ach, uns wird das Herz so leer, p. 10, ii. This hymn was written in the spring of 1829.

Ad laudes Salvatoris, p. 12, ii. We have found this in a ms. of circa 1199 in the Bodleian (Liturg. Misc., 341, f. 56).

Ad nuptias Agni Patris, G. de la Brunetiere. [Common of Holy Women.] Appeared in the Paris Brev. 1680, Aest. p. lxx. and again in the 1736 ed. of the same as by "G. Ep. 8." It is also in other French Brevs. and Newman, 1838-66. Tr. as:—

1. To the Lamb's festival. By I. Williams in the British Mag. Oct. 1834, and again in his Hym. Tr. from the Parisian Brev. 1839, p. 327. Also in Skinner's Daily Ser. Hym. 1864, and the St. Margaret's Hym. (East Grinstead) 1875.

2. To share the Lamb's high marriage rites. By J. D. Chambers, 1866, p. 47. The opening stanza of this tr. is noted at p. 322, ii. 3, as part of a cento in the Hymnary, 1872.

Ad perennis vitæ fons, p. 13, l. 4. Du Méril's text is from a ms. of the 10th cent. in the Bibl. Nat. Paris (Lat. 10587). The poem is also in the St. Gall ms. 573, of the 9th or 10th cent. Note also that Neale's tr. (No. 2 at p. 13, l.) in his Jays and Glories of Paradise, 1865, which was based on Wackerbarth's tr., 1843, "At the Fount of life eternal," has yielded a second cento to the People's Hym. 1867, and the St. Margaret's Hym. (East Grinstead): as, "Where the sacred Body lieth." This cento has alterations by Dr. Littledale. From Dr. Neale's text direct the cento, "There no waxing moon, nor waning" in the St. Margaret's Hym., 1875, is taken.

Ad regias Agni dapes, p. 14, l. "Once the angel started back." This in the American Episco. Hym. 1871, begins with st. iii. of Bp. J. Williams's tr. 1845.

Ad templa nos rurus vocat, p. 14, l. "When first the world sprang forth," in Kennedy, 1863, is based upon E. Caswall's tr. beginning with st. iii.

Adam of St. Victor, p. 15, ii. A 2nd and greatly improved ed. of his Œuvres Poétiques by L. Gautier was pub. at Paris in 1831.

Ades Pater supreme, p. 19, l. This is in a ms. of the 5th cent. in the Bibl. Nat. Paris (Lat. 8084, f. 16)

Another tr. of the cento Ades Pater is "Father, Most High, be with us." In the 1839 ed. of H. A. & M., by the Compilers.

Adeste, Coelitus chori, p. 19, ii. This hymn was given in the Tunnicliffe Brev., 1696, p. 422, as "Promissus on festat dies."

Adeste Adules, p. 20, l. In the Evening Office of the Church in Latin and English, Lond. 1760, this hymn consists of sts. i., ii., vii., viii. of the text as on p. 20. Concerning the trs. ii must be noted:—

1. That to Canon Oakeley's tr. as in the Altar Hym., 1884, No. 7, Mr. W. T. Brooke added a tr. of st. iii. vi. as on p. 20, thus producing a tr. of the full text.

2. The tr. No. 7, "Come hither, ye faithful," is attributed, in the Pennsylvania Luth. Church Bk., 1869, to "C. P. Krauth."

3. "Come, all ye faithful," in the R. C. Hym. for the Year, 1867, is a slightly altered form of Neale's tr. (No. 9), which dates 1834.

Adeste sancti plurimo, Claude de Santeuil. [Octave of All Saints.] In the Paris Brev., 1680, Hiemalis, p. 278. Also in the Paris Brev., 1736, and other French Brevs., and in his brother, J. B. de Santeuil's Hymni Sacri et Novi, 1689, p. 178, with the note "Non mihi vindico hos hymnos." Tr. as "Now, while before your relics," by E. Caswall, 1858, p. 369, and 1873, p. 330; the R. C. Parochial H. Bk., 1840, and others. Another tr. is by I. Williams in British Mag., Jan. 1836, and in his Hym. Tr. from the Par. Brev., 1839, p. 268.

Adeste sancta Trinitas, p. 22, l. Also tr. as "Be near us, Holy Trinity," in H. A. & M., 1839, by the Compilers.

Adoro te devote, p. 23, ii. Additional trs. are:—

1. With all the power (powers) my poor heart bath. By B. Crashaw in his Steps to the Temple, 2nd ed. 1649, p. 74. Repeated in J. Austin's Devotions, 1668, and in the Pennsylvania Luth. Church Bk., 1869, No. 338.

2. Devoutly we adore Thee, Deity unseen. This in the Altar Hym., 1884, is Neale's tr. slightly altered.

3. O loving Pelican, O Jesus, my sweet Lord. Anon. in the R. C. Parochial H. Bk., 1840.

4. Hoole's tr. noted on p. 23, ii. 7, should read "Thee I adore, the Truth concealed."

5. O blest memorial of our dying Lord. This in Laudes Domini, N. Y., 1834, begins with st. ii. of Bp. Woodford's tr.

6. Lord, in thankful love adoring. One stanza only from the "Adoro te," with an original doxology in the Savoy Hymnary, N. D.

Adas superne Spiritus, p. 23, ii. This hymn we find is based upon the "Veni sancte Spiritus Et," (p. 1212, ii.), and is found in the Paris Brev., ed. 1423, but not in that of 1736. Concerning the trs. ii must be noted that No. 3, attributed to H. Bonar, is really a tr. by him of the Veni superne Spiritus, Pater benigne.

Adas tenebras primas, p. 23, ii. We have found this hymn in a Nicaraguan Hymnarium of the 11th cent. in the Brit. Mus. (Add. 30651, f. 165).

Aeterna Christi munera, Et, p. 24, l. The original of the transcript by Junius has been found in the Bodleian. It dates circa 990. (Junius, 26 f. 116.) It is also in a 7th cent. ms. at St. Gall, No. 454; and later ms. elsewhere.

AETERNA COELI GLORIA. p. 35, li. From E. Caswell's tr. (No. 2) the verse in the Hymn for the Year, 1867, begins almost in "The star that led us in the north"; and that in Hymn of Songs of Praise, N. Y., 1914, with st. a. "Jesus, be near us when we wake".

AETERNA REGNABIT. p. 36, li. We have found this verse in several mss. in addition to those named at p. 37, li. The most important of these are the Bern ms., No. 383, circa 900; and No. 455 of the 14th cent. The Immunable book, in 12 st., is in a 16th cent. ms. in the Brit. Mus.; add. 10165, c. 1595.

AETERNA REGNABIT. p. 37, li. Since this article was in type I. Haffner has pub. a 2nd ed. of his work on Adam of St. Victor (1891) in which he corrects his first impression that this hymn was by Adam. He states the fact, says it has been lately attributed to Adam; and is unworthy of him. The earliest ms. which ascribes it is a 16th cent. MS. written before 1520, in which it begins, "Aeterna Regnabit." (Bibl. Nat., Paris, Lat. 14418.)

AGNOSTIC OMNIS SACRILEGII. p. 30, l. We have found this in a 16th cent. ms. in the Brit. Mus. (add. 24103 E. 128). It is also in a 16th cent. ms. at St. Gall, No. 190; and in others of a later date. In F. Lant's ed. of Fortunatus's opera Poetica, 1901, p. 204, it is given among the pieces falsely ascribed to Fortunatus.

AGNA DEI. p. 30, l. This is found in a ms. of the 11th cent. in the Bibl. Nat. Paris (Lat. 4133); and in another circa 1200, in the Bodleian (Lat. Mus. c. l. 122). From the German tr. "O Lamm Gottes unsterblich" p. 21, l. additional st. into English include—
1. O Lamb of God, unpolluted, whose life. By W. W. Atterbury (from Knapp) in his Christian Church, 1865.
2. O Lamb of God, Who blesting. By T. G. Purser, noted on p. 31, l. in the Centenary Hymn, 1900.

AGNUS DEI. p. 31, l. He was crucified at Wittenberg in 1516 as, "Jeanne Boudier de Eisleben, n.e. of Leipzig." Another tr. of his hymn, "Ich ruf zu dir," is "O Thou I need my cry, Lord Jesus," in the Monks' H. B., 1908.

AGNI: why should bitter tears be shed. (Devoti and Devot.) This hymn in the American Unionist Hymn of the April, 1864, is attributed to "G. B. Burleigh".

AGNI: wretched souls who strive in vain. p. 32, l. The following are from this hymn, (1) "My soul no more shall strive in vain"; and (2) "May [New] I resolve with all my heart".

AGNUS DEI. p. 31, l. The author of Letters from the Dead to the Living and Moral Letters, the 2nd ed. of which was pub. at Edinburgh, 1712.

AGNI, MARION PAUL. p. 32, li. See d. Jan. 20, 1888. Abett, Louise May. b. Nov. 29, 1862, d. at Concord, March 5, 1906. She pub. Little Rose, Little Flower, etc., and also wrote a few hymns for children.

AGNI, MARION PAUL. p. 32, li. This hymn is in a ms. of the 15th cent. in the Bibl. Nat. Paris (Lat. 9884, f. 11); in an old ms. at Trier, (now l. p. 32); and several of the 15th cent. and later dates.

ALEXANDER, CECIL F. see Humphreys. p. 38, li. Additional hymns to those already noted in this Dictionary are in—
1. Christ has ascended up again. (1882.) Adoration.
2. His are the thousand sparkling rivers. (1875.) Seven Hymns on the Cross (19th Word).
3. How good is the Almighty God. (1848.) God, the Father.
4. In all the rich man's garden. (1883.) Stutter Hymn.
5. It was early in the morning. (1885.) Sister Hymn.
6. So be it, Lord; the prayers are prayed. (1849.) Prayer in God.
7. Now you never in the twilight? (1893.) Epiphany.
8. Still bright and like death Jordan flow. (1883.) Epiphany of our Lord.
9. The angels stand around Thy throne. (1848.) Adoration to the Word of God.
10. The saints of God are holy men. (1848.) Communion of saints.
11. There is one Way and only one. (1875.) St. Philip and James.
12. Up in heaven, up in heaven. (1848.) Adoration.
13. We are little Christian children. (1848.) Only Praise.
14. We were washed in holy water. (1848.) Only Praise.
15. Where of old the Jewish mothers. (1883.) Christ's Motherhood to Address.

16. Within the Churchyard side by side. (Devoti).

Of the above hymns those dated 1864 are Alexander's Hymn for Little Children; those from Seven Hymns are his; and those dated 1875 are of H. A. & M.

Several new hymns by Mrs. Alexander of the 1861 1/2 cent. Appendix to the Irish Church Hymn, W. L., p. 39, st. a. As the hymns are all signed in his Augustus 2, he is not enumerated here.

ALEXANDER, HENRY. p. 39, li. The following hymns by Dean Alexander are in C. U.—
1. Herald in the wilderness.
2. Let the Church of God rejoice.
3. Jude, (1844, but not in his Ps. & Hymns).
4. Not in anything we do, O heavenly Father.
5. O Thou that O Lamb divine dost lead.

(1844.)
6. O why on death so bent? Cont. (1844.)
7. O all our business men may wear to Day. (1867.)

8. Our year of grace is passing to a close the Year. (1867.)

9. Saviour, why Father's promise we would keep. (1844.)

10. Since we kept the Saviour's birth. Trinity. (1863.)

11. Thus that art the Father's Word. (1844.)

12. Thus on that wondrous journey, journey. (1867.)

13. Thus, O Christ, hast made our communion. (1844.)

14. When in the Lord Jehovah's name. Schools. (1844.)

All these hymns are in Dean Alexander's Hymn, 1867, and the others are those of their names as far as we have been able to trace the author of his works at p. 39, li. also to additional Index of Authors and Translators.

AMEN, PRONATOR, VICTOR. p. 35, l. The Dr. Todd edited one of the 11th cent. in the Trinit. Hymn. Another st. at Millen (M. 23, 41) of the 16th cent. (Chavallier's Epiphany, 1897).

AM I A SOLDIER OF THE CROSS? p. 38, li. Antiphona of this hymn we have found in a

It is a portion of "Do I believe what Jesus saith?" that the hymn in its full form appeared in Watts's Hys. & S. Songs, 1709; and that the portion beginning "Am I a soldier of the Cross?" subsequently appeared in his Sermons, 1721-24. The facts are (1) both hymns appeared in the Sermons, &c., 1721-24, "Do I believe, &c." for ser. 30, and "Am I a soldier, &c." for ser. 31; and (2) the two were united as one hymn, and included in the Hys. and S. Songs, Bk. I., No. 37, Pt. II. sometime in the present century. We find it in T. Nelson's ed. of Watts, 1844, and others, but in no edition before 1800.

Ambrose, William (Amyra), was b. at Bangor, Aug. 10, 1813, and d. at Portmadoc, where he held a pastoral charge, Oct. 31, 1873.

And are there countries far away. Ann Gilbert, n.e. Taylor. [Missions.] In Hys. for Infant Minds, 35th ed., 1844. See Taylor, Ann and Jane, p. 1116, i.

Andersen, Hans Christian, s. of poor parents, was b. at Odense, Denmark, April 2, 1805, and died Aug. 4, 1875. He is well known as a poet, and a writer for children. His Christmas Carol, "Child Jesus comes from heavenly height," tr. from the Danish, is in The Evang. Hym., N. Y., 1880.

Anderson, Maria Frances, n.e. Hill, p. 67, i., is the daughter of Thomas F. Hill, of Exeter, England, and a Baptist. She pub. in 1853 Jessie Carey, and in 1861, The Baptists in Sweden.

Angel-voices ever singing, p. 68, ii. This hymn was written for the opening of an organ in Wingates Church, Lancashire, 1861.

Anglo-Saxon Hymns. [See p. 943, ii. § II.]

Anima Christi sanctifica me, p. 76, i. This is found in a ms. in the Bodleian, Roll, 113, (at f. 12 b.), circa 1399, in a hand of the first half of the 15th cent. E. A. Iayman's tr. (No. 5) should read "Spirit of Christ, &c.," and No. 6 is 1862 and reads "Soul . . . my sanctification."

Anketell, John, M.A., was b. at New Haven, Connecticut, U.S.A., March 4, 1838, and educated at Yale College, and the University of Halle-Wittenberg, Prussian Saxony. He was ordained deacon of the American Episcopal Church in 1860, and priest in 1860. He founded St. John's (American) Episcopal Church in Dresden in 1869. Subsequently he became Professor of Hebrew and Greek Exegesis in the Seabury Divinity School. Mr. Anketell pub. in 1889 Gospel and Epistle Hymns for the Christian Year, N.Y. He has also tr. about 120 hymns from the German, Greek, Latin, Hebrew, French, Spanish, Danish, Italian, and Syriac, which were pub. in the Church Review, N. Y., 1876 and later, and in other periodicals. A few of those from the Latin are noted in Duffield's Latin Hymn-Writers, &c., 1889. Mr. Anketell's original hymns number about 180. Both these and his trs. are worthy of notice.

Antiphon, p. 73, l. (III. 2). The seven greater Antiphons are found in an 11th cent. ms. in the Brit. Mus. (Hart, 2061, f. 10); and in a ms. of the 11th cent. in the Bodleian (Liturg. Misc, 366, f. 53b). The metrical form "Veni, veni Emmanuel" (p. 74, l. 4) has not yet been traced earlier than the Psalterium Cant. Catholicon, Cologne, 1722, p. 209. From Dr. Neale's tr. (5) "O come, come Thou, Emmanuel," in Choppe's Hym., 1862, is taken. J. D. Chambers's tr. of the same text 1st appeared in his Order of Household Devotion, &c., 1854, p. 240. H. N. Trzenham has also a tr. of "O sapientia," in his Sentences of Kierke, 1864, p. 181.

Apparebit repentina dies, p. 76, i. This is found in the Bern ms. 455 of the 10th cent.

Apparuit benignitas, p. 76, i. The tr. here attributed to Dr. Neale was really by the late Rev. B. Webb, (p. 1245, i.), as we learnt from him, and not by Dr. Neale. No. 64, in J. A. Johnston's Anglican Hym., 1856 and 1861, "O height, O breadth, O depth of love," is based upon Webb's tr., as is also "O love divine, to guilty men," in Philadelphia Presb. Sol., 1861.

Appleton, F. F. In the American Unitarian Hys. of the Spirit, 1864, two hymns are attributed to this author: (1) "The past yet lives in all its truth, O God." (Past and Present); (2) "Thirsting for a living spring," (Seeking Good). The latter is also in the Unitarian Hk. of Hys., 1846, but anonymous.

Arminian Bible Christians. [Methodist Hymnody § vi.]

Armstrong, John, D.D., eldest s. of Dr. Armstrong, a physician, was b. at Wearmouth, Aug. 22, 1813, and educated at Charterhouse, and Lincoln College, Oxford, s. a. 1836. Taking Holy Orders in 1837, he was Curate of Alford, 1837; Priest-vicar of Exeter Cathedral, 1841; Rector of St. Paul's, Exeter, 1843; Vicar of Tidenham, 1845; and Bishop of Grahamstown, 1853. He d. May 16, 1856. His Memoirs, by T. T. Carter, were pub. in 1857. He pub. The Pastor in his Closet, in 1847. In it appeared his hymn "O Thou Who makest souls to shine," (Ember Days) in 3 st. of 4 l. It is given in the S. P. C. K. Church Hys. 1871; Thrings's coll., 1882, &c. Arndt, E. M., p. 60, No. 10. "Und klingst du" was written in 1836, and 1st pub. in his Gedächte, 1840, p. 570.

Art thou fainting in the tempest? J. M. Neale. [St. Peter or St. John.] This appeared in his posthumous Sequences, Hys., and other Ecclesiastical Verses, 1866, p. 20, in 11 st. of 6 l., with the heading, "Follow thou Me. A Sequence for the festival of St. Peter or St. John," and the following note: "It need hardly be said that the main thought of the following sequence is taken from the sublime conclusion of St. Augustine's Commentary on St. John's Gospel. The English reader may need to be informed that the Vulgate translation of our Lord's saying omits the if, and simply runs thus: 'I will that be tarry till I come . . . follow thou Me.' From this original Sequence two centos have come into C. U.: (1) "Art thou fainting in the tempest?" and (2) "These the Two Lives: one, the fleeting."

As through a glass we dimly see. A cento from J. Fawcett's "Thy way, O God, is in the sea," p. 573, ii., in the Leeds H. Bk., 1853.

Ashworth, Thomas Alfred, is the author of the following hymns in Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1840 and 1873:—

1. Christian warrior, faint not, fear not. Courage Enjoined.
2. O terrible in judgment, hear. Death anticipated with Fear.
3. Praise, blessed Gospel, glorious news for man. Blessings of the Gospel. In the American Hys. of the Spirit, 1864, it reads, "O blessed Gospel, glorious news for man."

Concerning Mr. Ashworth we have no definite information.

At even ere the sun was set, p. 66, ii. An abbreviated form of this is in M. W. Stryker's Church Song, 1889, as "O Saviour Christ, our woes dispel."

At Thy feet, our God and Father, p. 69, ii. This hymn was pub. in the Family Treasury, 1861.

Auber, Harriet, p. 90, ii. The following versions of psalms from her Spirit of the Ps., 1829, are also in C. U.:—

1. Great God, wert Thou extreme to mark. Ps. cxix. "Thy servants in the temple watched," begins with st. ii. of this.
2. How blest are they who daily prove. Ps. xlii.
3. How blest the children of the Lord. Altered from Ps. cxiii.
4. Jehovah, great and awful name. Part of Ps. lxxviii.
5. O Thou Whom heaven's bright host revere. Ps. lxxviii.
6. Praise the Lord, our mighty King. Ps. cxviii.
7. Spirit of peace, Who as a [celestial] Dove. Ps. cxviii.
8. Thou by Whose strength the mountains stand. Ps. lxxv.
9. To heaven our longing eyes we raise. Ps. cxviii.
10. Vainly through night's weary hours. Ps. cxviii. Sometimes "Vainly through the night the ranger."
11. While all the golden harps above. Easter.

Audi, benignus Conditor, p. 91, i. This is found in a Rheinau ms. of the 10th cent. (see Daniel, iv. 121), the Bern ms., No. 455, of the 10th cent. and in several of the 11th cent. in addition to those named on p. 91, i. ii. We may add that this is one of the eight hymns which the Benedictine editors assign to St. Gregory.

Augustinian Breviary, p. 179, i.

Aurea luce et decore rosea, p. 93, i. ii. This is also in the Bern ms. 455 of the 10th cent.; and other mss. of the 11th cent. not noted on p. 93.

Aurora jam spargit solium, p. 93, ii. This is found in the St. Gall ms., No. 20, of the 10th cent. and also in several mss. of the 11th not cited on p. 93, ii. It must be noted (1) that the tr. in Hymn. Anglic., 1844, begins, "From forth the glorious eye of morn," (2) and that, mislaid by the Campbell mss., we have given his tr.

"The morn had spread its crimson rays" to this hymn in verse. It is really a st. of "Aurora coturni purpurei." p. 94, U.

Aurora lucis dum novus. p. 94, U. This appeared in the Christian, 1848, p. 429.

Ave Christi Corpus verum. p. 94, U. Another st. is "Hail! True Flesh Christ our Saviour," by Mrs. E. H. Mitchell in the Altar, 1844.

Ave plena gratia. p. 94, U. This appeared in the Pure Heart, 1761, p. 527.

Ave Rex qui descendisti. (Holy Communion.) This is printed by Jones, No. 364, as a Sequence for Corpus Christi from two Brethren met. now at Kilmarnock, No. 26, of the 14th cent., and No. 134 of the 15th cent. Each half stanza begins with the word, "Ave." Fr. as "Hail! O King, Who suffer wounds by Thy hands, in Thy Blood." Evangelical, 1843, p. 118, and in the Altar, 1844.

Ave verum corpus saltem. p. 94, U. Also in a st. of circa 1360 in the Bohemian Liturgy, 164, f. 2, 3.

Awake, arise, and hail the morn. (Christmas.) This was given anonymously in J. Dobell's New Ser., 1808, No. 29, in st. of 4 l. In the Songs for the Sanctuary, N. Y., 1846, it is altered to "Wake, O my soul, and hail the morn."

Awake, [say] our drowsy souls. p. 103, U. This is to Miss Scott's st. [No. 29.]

The dates given above are, 1787 and 1800, Rippon's Set.; and 1817 Beddome's Hymns.

Befehl du deine Wege, p. 125, li. Appeared in Crüger's Praxis, Berlin, 1853, No. 322.

Behold me, unprotected stand. This in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, begins with st. ll. of Bp. Mant's "To God my earnest voice I raise," p. 712, li.

Behold! the Son of God appears. [Passiontide.] This hymn was given, anonymously, in the Hap. New Set., 1828, No. 63, in 7 st. of 4 l., and has been repeated in the Hap. Hymnal, 1879, No. 171, with slight alterations, and the omission of st. v.

Behold Thy temple, God of Grace. [Opening of a Place of Worship.] This hymn appears in the Prim. Mch. Hyl., 1887, and in Dorricott and Collins's Lytic Studies, 1889. It is attributed to Dr. Hay Palmer. We have failed to find it in any work by Dr. Palmer; it is not in any of the prominent American hymn-books, and it is unworthy of that hymn-writer.

Bei dir Jesu, p. 122, li. Written in 1826.

Bell, Charles D., p. 123, l. Another hymn by Dr. Bell, in his 1884 Appr. to the Hy. Comp., is "Lord, at Thy throne we bend" [Divine Worship].

Beneath Thy mighty hand, O God. P. Doddridge. [Humility.] Written March 4, 1739, and included in his posthumous Hymns, 1758, No. 339.

Bennett, Albert Arnold, b. at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, April 16th, 1849, entered the Baptist ministry in 1875, engaged in work at home until 1879, and then went as a missionary to Japan. The Japanese H. Bk., commenced by Dr. N. Brown (see Missions, Foreign, p. 743, l., 2), was finished by Mr. Bennett in 1886. He also pub. A Coll. of Hys. in 1886 for the use of the First Baptist church in Yokohama, to which he contributed 12 hymns.

Bernstein, Christian Andreas, p. 126, li. In Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., and others, "O patient, spotless One" is an altered form of a part of the Moravian H. Bk. tr. of "Mein Vater," noted on p. 126, li. (8). Another cento beginning with the same first line is in the Lady Huntingdon H. Bk., 1784, and later editions.

Berridge, John, p. 120, l. The 1842 ed. of his Song's has an elaborate preface by J. C. Philpot, the editor. From this collection the following additional hymns are in C. U. :—

1. I seek my dying Saviour dear. Sealed by Christ.
2. Lord Jesus, Who didst once appear. Holy Matrimony. An altered form of "Since Jesus freely did appear," p. 1059, l.
3. Soon as faith the Lord can see. None but Jesus.

Bertram, Robert Aitken, p. 128, l. He d. Nov. 14, 1886.

Besnault, Abbé Sebastian, p. 128, li. He d. April 29, 1724. Most of his hymns appeared in the Jews Brev. of 1726.

Bethune, George Washington, p. 126, li. Other hymns from his Lays of Love and Faith, 1847, are in C. U. :—

1. 'Tis He, 'tis He, I know Him now. Easter.
2. Up'n the well by Sychar's gate. Resignation.

3. Yes, bear them to their rest. Evening. "Hymn to Night, suggested by the Has-relief of Thorwaldsen."

Bible Christians. [See Methodist Hymnody, p. 731.]

Bickersteth, Edward Henry, p. 141, li. Bp. Bickersteth's 1890 ed. of his Hy. Comp. is noted on p. 1312, l., and several of his own hymns and trs., which appear therein for the first time, are annotated in this Appendix. One of these, "All-merciful Almighty Lord," for the Goss. of St. Paul, was written for the 1890 edition of H. Comp. [See also Index of Authors, &c.]

Bird, Charles S., p. 922, li. Seven of his hymns are in Mrs. Fuller Maitland's Hys. for Private Devotion, 1827, and two additional in the ed. of 1883. [See Calquhoun, Frances S., p. 1687, l.]

Black, Mary Anna, née Manning, elder daughter of John Manning, J.P. of Nottingham, was b. at Nottingham, Oct. 16th, 1855, married to Mr. Arthur Black, Sept. 1879, and d. Feb. 21, 1882. Before her marriage Mrs. Black wrote a number of hymns under the pseudonym of "May Manning" for the anniversaries of a village school in which she was interested. One of these, "There's a fold, both safe and happy" (Heaven), was written, shortly after the death of a sister, in 1878, and included in W. R. Stevenson's School Hymnal, 1880.

Blacker, Maxwell Julius, M.A., s. of V. Blacker of Marylebone, b. May 27, 1822, educated at Nerton Coll., Oxford, ordained in 1848, held several curacies, including that of St. Barnabas, Piccadilly, and d. June 11, 1884.

Blake, William, poet and painter, b. 1757, and d. 1827. Pub. Songs of Innocence in 1789, in which appeared a poem in 9 st. of 4 l. beginning "Can I see another's woe" (Sympathy), and headed "On Another's Sorrow." (See also The Poems of William Blake, &c., Lond., W. Pickering, 1874, p. 105.) This poem is repeated in Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1853, and others.

Blieb bei dem, p. 146, li. Written in the Spring of 1828.

Blessed angels, high in heaven. [Care for others.] Adorn. in Dr. Hastings's American Church Melodies, 1858, No. 399, in 6 st. of 4 l. Full text in the Hap. Praise Bk., N. Y., 1871.

Bless be the God of Providence. [Divine Providence.] One of 12 hymns included in the enlarged edition of Lady Huntingdon's Coll., 1808. It is in a few collections for children, including the last ed. of the S. N. U. H. Bk. Its authorship is unknown.

Blest hour, when righteous souls shall meet. This in the American Sabbath H. Bk., 1858, is an altered form of P. Houghton's hymn noted on p. 1196, li.

Blest Spirit, now on us descend. [Before Sermon.] This hymn appeared in an anonymous Suppl. to the 1796 ed. of Lady Huntingdon's Coll., No. 34. In 1808 it was incorporated in the authorized Suppl. to the same book. It is in 3 st. of 5 l. Its authorship is unknown.

Bliss, Philip, p. 161, l. "Sowing the seed by the daylight fair" is in the Family Treasury, Edinburgh, 1861, pt. 1, p. 94. It is said to be by Miss Emily Sullivan Oakley; b. at Albany, N. York, Oct. 6, 1829, d. May 11, 1883. Note also that Bliss's hymn, No. 43, on p. 150, li., should read, "Sing them over again to me."

Blomfield, Dorothy F., was b. at 3 Finabury Circus, Oct. 4, 1858. Miss Blomfield is the eldest daughter of the late Rev. F. G. Blomfield, sometime Rector of St. Andrew's Undershaft, London, and granddaughter of the late Dr. Blomfield, Bishop of London. Her very beautiful hymn for Holy Matrimony, "O perfect Love, all human thought transcending," was written for her sister's marriage in 1883, and was intended to be sung to Strength and Stay, in H. A. & M., No. 12. Subsequently it was set as an anthem by J. Barnby for the marriage of the Duke of Fife with the Princess Louise of Wales, on July 27, 1889. In 1889 it was included in the Suppl. Hys. to H. A. & M., and in 1890 in the Hy. Companion.

Boaden, Edward, was b. at Helston, in Cornwall, in 1827. It was originally intended that he should follow the legal profession. Early religious impressions and convictions however led him to devote himself to the ministry in connection with what is now known as the Methodist Free Church. Beginning his duties at Gosport in 1849, he has successively filled some of the most important positions of the denomination, including that of President (1871). Since 1861 he has been Chapel Secretary to the Connexion. His hymns in C. U. are:—

1. Behold, O Lord our God. (1887.) Temperance.
2. God of Light, in mercy bending. (1860.) Missions.
3. Here, Lord, assembled in Thy name. (1889.) Temperance.

4. Now at the night's return we raise. Evening, Rugby School H. Bk., 1876, and others.

5. Thou the Christ for ever one. Mission to the Jews. In the 1889 Suppl. Hys. to H. A. & M.

Brooks, C. T. (p. 194, l.). He d. at Newport, Rhode Island, June 14, 1883.

Brother, will you alight the message? In Longfellow and Johnson's American Unitarian Hk. of Hymns, &c., 1846, is Jonathan Allen's "Sinners, will you scorn the message?" (see p. 50, l.) altered and abbreviated.

Brown, James Baldwin, LL.D., p. 184, ii.; b. June 6, 1790; d. Nov. 23, 1843.

Brown, Nathas, D.D., b. in New Ipswich, New Hampshire, June 23, 1807, entered the Baptist ministry in 1832, and began his work as a missionary in Burma in 1833, where he translated the New Testament, finishing it in 1848. He returned to America in 1855. He proceeded to Japan in 1872, completed his tr. of the New Testament, the first tr. in Japanese, in 1879, and d. at Yokohama, Jan. 1, 1886. He tr. several English hymns for use in Burma (see Missions, Foreign, 7, 746, ii., and also, later, for use in Japan, p. 743, l.).

Brown, Thomas Edward, M.A., was educated at Christ Church, Oxford, where he graduated in first-class honours in 1853, and became a Fellow of Oriel College in 1854. He entered Holy Orders in 1855, and became 2nd Master at Clifton College in 1864. For his hymns tr. from the German see Index of Authors, &c.

Brunetière, Guillaume de la, was the s. of Anton de la Brunetière, Lord du Plessis de Geste, and is the person referred to by Miller (Singers and Songs, 1869, p. 143), and also sometimes in this Dictionary, as Guillaume du Plessis de Geste. He was educated at the University of Paris, and received from it the degree of D.D. For 16 years he was Vicar General at Paris prior to his consecration as Bishop of Saintes, on Nov. 30, 1877. He d. May 2, 1902. His hymns are in the Paris Brev., 1880; the Cluniac Brev., 1886; the Paris Brev., 1906; and other French Brevs. In the Paris Brev. of 1906 his hymns are signed, "G. Ep. S.," i.e. William, Bp. of Saintes. [J. M.]

Brunnquell aller Güter, p. 169, l. Appeared in Cüßer's Praxis, 5th ed., Berlin, 1833.

Bulfinch, Stephen Greenleaf, p. 191, ii. Several of this author's hymns, not noted in this Dictionary, were given in Longfellow and Johnson's Book of Hys., 1846-8. Additional hymns by him in English C. U. are:—

1. Bountiful Saviour! 'twas not Thine. The Compassion of Christ. From his Contemplations of the Saviour, &c., 1832. In Order's Cong. Hys., 1884, it reads "Most gracious Saviour! 'twas not Thine."

2. We gather to the sacred board. Holy Communion. This in Order is from Bulfinch's Communion Thoughts, 2nd ed., 1852.

Bullock, William, p. 192, l. He was b. in 1798.

Bunting, William Maclear, p. 193, ii. Of his hymns named here, Nos. 1-4, and 6, were in Lefschild's Orig. Hys., 1842; as also, "We love to call creation Thine," (Missions). The hymn, "Rights cannot change the heart," in the American Meth. Episco. Hymnal, 1878, begins with st. iii. of No. 4, "Father, our child we place." His hymn, No. 9, "O God, how often hath Thine ear," was written at the age of 18, and was 1st pub. in the Methodist Magazine for Jan., 1824.

Burdsall, Richard, for many years a Wesleyan minister, was b. in 1735, and d. in 1824. To his Memoirs, pub. at York, N.D., is appended a hymn, beginning, "Now Christ He is risen, the serpent's head is bruised." The hymn "The voice of free grace cries—'Escape to the mountain,'" begins with st. ii. of this hymn, but with alterations. In some American hymnals, including Hatfield's Church H. Bk., 1872, Burdsall's two stanzas are expanded into five, but by whom we cannot say.

Burkitt, William, b. July 26, 1840; was for some time Vicar of Dedham, Essex, and d. Oct. 24, 1903. Author of A Help and Guide to Christian Families, 1893; an annotated edition of the Bible, &c. See "Jerusalem, my happy home," p. 532, ii. (iii.).

Burns, James Drummond, p. 197, l. Additional hymns in C. U. are:—

1. Not Lord, unto that mount of dread. Safety in Christ. From V. of Prophecy, 2nd ed., 1858, p. 266.

2. O Thou whose tender [sacred] feet have trod. Resignation. From V. of Prophecy, 1st ed., 1854, p. 27.

3. Thou, Lord, art love, and everywhere. Divine Love. From V. of Prophecy, 2nd ed., 1858, p. 275.

Burton, H. In I. D. Sankar's Sacred Songs and Solos, 1878, the hymn, "Come, for the feast is spread,"

(The Gospel Invitation), and "Look away to Jesus" (Looking unto Jesus) are attributed to the "Rev. H. Burton."

Busbell, William Done, M.A., was b. in 1836, and educated at Cheltenham, and St. John's College, Cambridge; M.A. in honours 1861. He was for some time a Fellow of his College, and became an Assistant Master at Harrow in 1866, having taken Holy Orders in 1864. His hymn for Trinity, "Where art Thou, Lord? with anxious eye," was contributed to the 1880 ed. of Hys. for the use of Sherborne School.

Butler, Mary. The following hymns in Mrs. Brock's Children's H. Bk., 1881: "Looking upwards every day" (Onwards), and "O help me, Lord, this day to be" (Morning), are signed with this name. Beyond this we have no information.

Butler, Nathaniel, D.D., author of "How sweet when worn with cares of life" (Heaven anticipated), in the Christian Melodist, 1849, was b. at Waterville, Maine, Oct. 19, 1821; entered the Baptist ministry in 1845, and has since held several pastorates in various parts of the States.

Butterworth, Henakiah, was b. at Warren, Rhode Island, Dec. 22, 1839. He wrote The Story of the Hymns, American Tract Society, 1875. He is the author of "O Church of Christ, our blest abode" (The Church) in Root's cantata, Under the Palms, and of "Jesus, I Thee believe" (Jesus All in All) in the cantata Faith Triumphant.

Butterworth, J. H., p. 198, ii. He was b. in 1815; returned from Cannes in 1874; and d. at South Hampstead, April 8, 1890.

By faith I see [view] my Saviour dying. [Yves Mevry.] This is No. 199 in J. Stamp's Christian's Spiritual Song Book, 1845, in 6 st. of 9 l. As given in the Hys. and Songs of Praise, N. Y., 1874, No. 520, st. i., ii., and iv., are from Stamp altered, and st. iii. is by another hand. Daniel Sedgwick has marked this hymn as by "A. T. W.," but gives no authority for the ascription. In Stamp it is given anonymously.

Caddell, Cecilia Mary, p. 200, i. Nine of her hymns, including "Behold the hills of the Field," appeared in H. Formby's Catholic Hys., 1853, with the signature "C. M. C."

Cantemus cuncti, p. 203, ii. This is found in several mss. additional to those cited on p. 203, ii., including the Einsiedeln ms. 121, p. 463, of the end of the 11th cent., and the ms. Lat. 9448, circa 1060, in the Bibl. Nat., Paris.

Carey, William, D.D., the first Baptist Missionary in India, was b. at Paulerspury, Northamptonshire, in 1762, educated for the Baptist ministry, and left England for India in 1793. He was for some time at Mudnapally, Bengal. Because of the hostile attitude of the East Indian Company towards missions, he with his companion John Fountain (p. 394, ii.) removed to Serampore, and placed himself under Dutch protection in 1799, and joined Joshua Marshman, then recently arrived in India. He was sometime professor of Sanskrit in Calcutta. He d. at Serampore in 1834. He was the first to compose Christian hymns in Bengali, several of which are in C. U. in India. See Missions, Foreign, p. 746, ii.

ceaseless praise be to the Father. [Holy Trinity.] This hymn in the Songs for the Sanctuary, N. Y., 1863, is signed "R. W. P."

Codant justis signa luctus, p. 215, ii. The tr.: "Far be sorrow, tears and sighing," as in Kennedy, 1863, and the Hymnody, 1872, is repeated in an altered form in the 1889 ed. of H. A. & M., and is given as tr. by the Compilers. The facts are these:—st. i. is word for word from Kennedy; st. ii., Kennedy rewritten; and st. iii., new. The actual ascription is, Neale, 1861; Kennedy, 1863; Compilers of H. A. & M., 1889.

Chadwick, Joseph William, M.A., b. in 1841, and educated at Queen's College, Oxford, B.A. 1863. After holding several Curacies he became in 1871 Vicar of Westgate Common, Wakefield. He d. Feb. 13, 1882.

Chaldeans. [See Syriac Hymnody, pp. 1111-12.]

Hymn. p. xxviii., and in the Paris Brev., 1736, Hymn. p. xliii., it begins "Festis lacta sument æthera cantibus." In Newman, 1838-65 it reads "O vos cum citharis dulces sonantibus." Tr. by J. D. Chambers, 1866, p. 60, from the Paris Brev., as "Let now the joyous air." In the Altar Hyl., 1884.

Coelestis ales nuntiat, p. 240, i. We find that this hymn was included in the Cluniac Brev., 1666, p. 243, where it begins, "Supernus ales nuntiat."

Coelestis formam gloriæ, p. 240, ii. The Sarum office for the Transfiguration was printed separately in 1483.

Coelestis O Jerusalem, p. 240, ii. This is in the Paris Brev., 1822, Ant., p. 474. The altered form of I. Williams's tr. in the Hymnary, 1872, "Jerusalem the heavenly," is from Chope's Hyl., 1862, with alterations. In Chope it begins, "Jerusalem! blest city."

Coelestium Joseph decus, p. 241, i. In Chevalier's Repertorium Hymnologicum, 1899, pt. i., p. 212, this is cited as being in Brev. Monasticum, 1880, and the Carmelite Brev., 1872. It is also in the Rom. Brev. printed at Antwerp in 1697. E. Caswall's tr. (p. 241, i.), appeared in his Lyra Catholica, 1849, p. 136.

Coele quos eadem gloria consecrat, p. 241, ii. This is found in the Paris Brev., 1680. It is also tr. in Chope's Hyl., 1862, as "Those whom one glory crowns above."

Coleridge, John Duke, Lord, eldest s. of the Right Hon. Sir John Taylor Coleridge, was b. in 1821, and educated at Eton, and Balliol College, Oxford. He subsequently became a Fellow of Exeter College. Called to the Bar in 1847, he became Recorder of Portsmouth, 1855-65; M. P. for Exeter, 1861; Solicitor-General, 1868; Attorney-General, 1871; and Lord Chief Justice. His hymns "Bending before Thee, let our hymn go upwards" (Divine Protection desired); and "Once again to meet the day" (Morning) in Thring's Coll. make us wish we had more of his lyrics. These hymns were written for private use in the author's family, and were 1st pub. in Thring's Coll., 1880. In the latter st. ii., l. 4, read originally "Strike us back, O Lord, we pray."

Colles, Thomas, A.M., was b. at Rowell, near Winchester, in Gloucestershire, in 1779; and died at Bourton-on-the-Water, in the same county, Sept. 23, 1840, having been pastor of the Baptist church there for 39 years. He wrote several hymns, but only one was pub., viz., "Indulgent God! to Thee I raise," p. 568, i. [W. R. S.]

Collects in Verse, p. 206, ii. The Collects of the Book of Common Prayer have been rendered into Latin Verse by Ep. Charles Wordsworth, and pub. in his Series Collectarum . . . Selecti Hymni Psalmique . . . Lond., J. Murray, 1890. For versions in English see also the Lady Huntington Recreational Register, 1837, p. 135-; and in this Dictionary, p. 335.

Collier, Mary Ann, author of "The sun that lightens yon broad blue sky" (Welcoming a Pastor), in The Psalmist, &c., by Stow and Smith, 1843, daughter of the Rev. William Collier, an American Baptist Minister, was b. at Charlestown, Massachusetts, Dec. 23, 1810, and d. at Alexandria, Virginia, Dec. 25, 1866.

Collins, S. A., p. 243, ii. Mrs. Collins was b. at Middleborough, Massachusetts, May 22, 1830; and married in 1850 to the Rev. S. A. Collins, a Baptist minister, who d. in 1877. Burrage notes three of her hymns: (1) "Jesus, gracious One, calleth now to thee" (Invitation), which has passed into I. D. Sankey's Sacred Songs & Solas; (2) "O God, the prayer of Thy Beloved Son" (Prevailing Prayer); and (3) "Resting, my Saviour, and waiting for Thee" (Heaven Anticipated). (Baptist Hy. Writers, 1888, p. 445.)

Collyer, William Bengo, p. 243, ii. The following hymns by Dr. Collyer are also in C. U.:

1. Another fleeting day is gone. Evening. (1812.)
2. O Jesus, in this solemn hour. Reception of Church Officers. (1842.)
3. O Thou, the helpless orphan's hope. On Behalf of Orphans. In the Evang. Mag., 1809, p. 48.
4. See the clouds upon the mountains. Sunday Morning. (1842.)
5. Soft be the gently breathing notes. Praise to the Redeemer. (1812.)
6. Softly the shade of evening falls. Evening. (1812.) From this, "Soon shall a darker night descend" is taken.
7. Thou Prince of glory slain for me. Good Friday. (1812.)

The date 1812 is that of his Coll., and 1842 of Leitch's Original Hys. (See also Index of Authors and Translators.)

Colquhoun, Frances Sara, nee Fuller-Maitland, fourth daughter of Ebenezer Fuller-Maitland of Stanstead Hall, and Park Place, Henley-on-Thames, was b. at Shinfield Park, near Reading, June 28, 1809; married on Jan. 29, 1831, to John Colquhoun, son of Sir James Colquhoun, Bart., and d. May 27, 1877. To her mother's collection, entitled Hys. for Private Devotion, &c., 1827, she contributed anonymously a piece beginning "Launched upon the stormy ocean," and her well-known additions to Kirke White's fragment "Much in sorrow, oft in woe" (p. 776, i.). In the 1863 ed. of her mother's work there is another piece by her:—"There is a vale in Israel's road," and signed "F. S. C." [G. A. C.]

Come, Holy Ghost, descend from high, p. 244, ii. In some American collections this reads "Come Holy Ghost, come from on high."

Come, Holy Spirit, calm my [our] mind. (Whitsuntide). We have traced this hymn to A. Coll. of Ps. and Hys. for the use of the Lock Chapel, 1803, where it is the first hymn to be sung before Divine Service, in 3 st. of 4 l. In Bickersteth's Christian Psalms, 1833, it has an additional stanza, and in this form it is repeated in the Eng. Presbyterian Church Praise, 1863. It is sometimes attributed to "John Stewart," but we have failed to find authority for the statement. The 3 st. form of the text is given in Common Prayer, 1879, as by "Browne." This we regard as an error. [W. T. B.]

Come, let us all unite to praise. [Praise to Christ] This hymn, possibly by M. Madan, appeared in his Ps. & Hys., 1760, No. 111, in 6 st. of 4 l. It was repeated by R. Conyers's Ps. & Hys., 1772; Bickersteth, 1833, and others to modern hymn-books.

Come, let us to the Lord our God, p. 249, i. This has been rendered into Latin by H. M. Macgill, 1876, No. 67, as "Veniamus poenitentes."

Come, O come with sacred [pious] lays. G. Withers. [Ps. cxlviii.] From his version of Ps. 148 in his Psalmes of David, &c., 1632. It is in the S. P. C. K. Hymns, 1852, and other collections.

Come, O my soul, in sacred lays. [Omnipotence.] In Miller's Singers and Songs, &c., 1869, p. 224, in Duffield, 1886, p. 109, and in others this hymn is attributed to "Thomas Blacklock" (p. 144, ii.), but in no instance is the statement supported by satisfactory evidence. We have failed to trace it in any of Blacklock's works.

Come, O my soul, to Calvary. H. L. Hastings. [Good Friday.] This hymn, in the Bap. Praise Bk., N. Y., 1871, is attributed to "Hastings." In H. L. Hastings's Songs of Pilgrimage, Boston, U. S. A., 1886, it is signed "H. 1867." From this we understand that it is by that writer.

Come, O Thou Traveller unknown, p. 250, i. In the Prim. Meth. Hym., 1887, Nos. 816-18, are three centos from this poem:—(1) "Come O Thou Traveller unknown"; (2) "What though my shrinking flesh complain"; (3) "I know Thee, Saviour, Who Thou art."

Come, Thou Fount of every blessing, p. 253, i. Sometimes given as "Father, Source of every blessing;" and as "Jesus, Source of every blessing."

Come, Thou long expected Jesus, p. 253, ii. This is rendered into Latin by H. M. Macgill, 1876, No. 17, as "Veni Jesu ter Optate."

Come to the ark, come to the ark. [Invitation.] This anonymous hymn has been traced to Percy Francis Hall's Christian H. Bk., 1841. It was repeated in J. Colman's Coll., 1846; H. W. Beecher's Plymouth Coll., 1855; and in several later hymn-books in G. Britain and America.

Come ye who bow to sov'reign grace. Maria De Fleury. [Holy Baptism.] Appeared in J. Middleton's Hymns, 1793, No. 309, in 6 st. of 4 l. In Spurgeon's C. U. H. Bk., 1866, No. 923, is a cento, st. i., ii., iv., being from this hymn, and st. iii. by Mr. Spurgeon. In Miller's Singers & Songs, &c., 1869, p. 328, the original hymn is attributed to James Upton in error.

Conder, E. B., p. 255, ii. Dr. Conder's Heart Chords were republished with an additional piece or two in 1887. His hymn, "Ye fair green hills of Galilee" (For a Children's Service) appeared in the Eng. Church Hyl., 1887.

Conder, G. W., p. 255, ii. Other hymns by him in his Appendix, 1874, are, "Now to the glorious Trinity" (Laying a Foundation Stone), and "Lord, may a sinful little child?" (A Child's Prayer).

Conder, Josiah, p. 256, i. Other hymns are:—

1. O love beyond the reach of thought. The love of God.
2. O Thou, our Head, enthroned on high. Missions.
3. Son of David, throned in light. Divine Enlightenment desired.
4. Thou Lamb of God for sinners slain. Christ the

Co. The hymns therein are Nos. 3, 5, 7, 10, 12, as in p. 220, i., and "On mountain side, in sheltered dell." (For Private Use). All these hymns must be dated "1857."

Dartnell, George Edward, was b. in 1882, and has been associated with the Wills and Dorset Bank at Salisbury for some years. (See p. 226, ii., 4.)

Daughter of Zion, awake from thy sadness. (Victory of the Church.) This is given in Mason and Greene's Church Psalmody, Boston, U.S.A., 1831, p. 576, in 3 st. of 4 l., as the words of an Anthem, and is stated in the index to have been taken from "Fitzgerald's Coll.," which was pub. in 1840. It is found in numerous American collections, including Laudes Domini, 1884.

Davis, Eliel, was b. at Folkestone, June 5, 1803. In 1822 he entered a business establishment in London, and joined the Baptist church in Eagle Street. Entering the Baptist Ministry he was successively pastor at Newport, Isle of Wight; Regent Street, Lambeth, London; Eye, in Suffolk; and St. Ives, in Huntingdonshire. He d. in March, 1849. His hymn "From every earthly pleasure" (Onward) was contributed to a ms. monthly magazine, in 1821, edited by Dr. Belcher, author of Historical Sketches of Hymns, and through Dr. Belcher's influence was pub. in The New Baptist Magazine, March, 1825, in 6 st. of 4 l. It is found, usually abridged, in several modern collections. Another of his hymns "There is a heaven of perfect peace" (Heaven Anticipated), appeared in the Suppl. to the Evangelical Magazine, 1838, and is also in C. U. [W. R. 8.]

Davis, Thomas, M.A., p. 261, ii. Died at Roundhay, Nov. 11, 1887. Another of his hymns from his Devotional Verses, &c., 1855, "Two temples doth Jehovah prize" (The Temple of the Body), is also in C. U. There are 23 of his hymns in Soden's Universal H. Bk., 1885. (See Preface to the same.)

Davis, William T. B. at Plymouth [U.S.A.], in 1823, educated at Harvard College, and is a lawyer by profession. His quasi American National Hymn was written for the 25th Anniversary of the Landing of the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth, Massachusetts, Dec. 21, 1870. It begins, "To Thee, O God, Whose guiding hand."

Davison, W. Hope, was b. at Sunderland, Nov. 27, 1827, and entered the Congregational Ministry in 1852 as Pastor at Bolton, Lancashire. He pub. Ps. & Hys. Bolton, various eds., the last in 1861; The Sabbath Hyl. for use in Schools; and The New Sabb. Hyl., 1877. Also subsequently two Services of Song for Passiontide. From the latter his hymn "Jesus, King of glory, Throned above the sky" (S. & Festival), in the Cong. Ch. Hyl., 1887, is taken.

Dayman, E. A., p. 262, ii. He d. at Shillingstone, Oct. 30, 1890.

Days and moments quickly flying, p. 263, ii. The cento (5) as in Church Hyl., 1871, is adopted in the H. Comp., 1876 and 1890, with the change by Bp. Bickersteth of st. v., l. 3, from "For the Old Year now retreating," to "For the by-gone years retreating," to adapt the hymn for all seasons of the year.

De Fleury, Maria (d. circa 1794), was an intimate friend of Dr. John Ryland (1753-1815), and resided at one time at 31 Jewin Street, Cripplegate, London. She entered very earnestly into the religious controversies of her day, and wrote several works thereon, including Unrighteous Abuses Detected and Chastised, &c., 1781. Antinomianism Unmasked, &c., 1791, and others. Several of her hymns were pub. in Joseph Middleton's Hymns, 1783-3: 5 in Joseph Middleton's Hymns, 1783; and 2 in Dr. Collyer's Coll., 1812. Her Devine Poems, and Essays on Various Subjects, is dated 1791. From this is taken, (1) "Thou sweet flowing Kedron, by thy silver stream" (Sufferings and glory of Christ), from which hymn the cento "O garden of Olivet, dear honour'd spot" is derived; and (2) "Ye angels who stand round the throne," (Heaven desired) [that] hymns have passed into modern use through Collyer's Coll., 1812. The cento "Come, saints, and adore Him, come bow at His feet" (Praise to Christ), in Bickersteth's Christ Psalmody, 1833; Spurgeon's O. G. H. Bk., &c., is composed of (st. l.) the chorus of her hymn, "Thou soft-flowing Kedron, by thy silver stream," as above in her Devine Poems, 1791, and (st. ii.) a stanza from an unknown source.

De profundis exclamantes, p. 263, i. This is also found in a Missal of the Abbey of St. Cornelius at Compiègne, of the 13th cent. (Bibl. Nat., Paris, Lat. 16923), and another of the 14th cent. of the Abbey of St. Denis (Bibl. Nat. Paris, Lat. 1107). (See the Mimet-Weale Analecta Liturgica, 1890, pp. 357, 461.)

Dear is the spot where Christians sleep. A cento from "Say, why should friendship grieve for those?" in the American Sabbath H. Bk., 1858, in 4 st. of 4 l. (p. 266, i.)

Dear Lord, before we part. [After Holy Communion.] This hymn is usually ascribed to "G. Hawson," but on Mr. Hawson's authority this is an error. It was given anonymously in the Bap. Ps. & Hys. 1858, No. 744.

Dear partner of our hopes and fears. [S. S. Anniversary.] Appeared in the American S. S. Union Hys., 1839, in 6 st. of 4 l. In later collections it is in 5 st. of 4 l., as in the Metb. F. Ch. S. S. H. Bk., 1869.

Deathless soul, arise, arise. An altered form in the Prim. Metb. Hyl., 1887, of "Deathless principle, arise," p. 266, i.

Debilis coeant elementa legis, p. 266, i. This is found in the Sens Breu., 1726, as "Jambaticantes timor occupavit." The Paris Breu. text also is in Choppe's Hyl., 1862, by J. H. Butterworth, as "Shadows are fled, a brighter ray."

Deck, James George, p. 266, ii. He d. circa 1884. His hymn, noted on p. 266, No. 28, "Jesus (I) we read in (on) Thee," should be dated 1843. Additional hymns in C. U. are: (1) "Lord Jesus, when I think of Thee," 1856 (Jesus, All and in All); (2) "The day of glory, bearing," 1838 (Passiontide).

Deep waters are come in, O Lord. A cento from F. W. Faber's "O soul of Jesus, sick to death" (p. 262, l. 7), in the 3rd ed. of the Wellington College H. Bk., 1880, in 5 st. of 4 l. It is a practical and prayerful application of the Agony of Our Blessed Lord.

Denny, Sir Edward, Bart., p. 267, ii. d. in London, June 13, 1889. Additional pieces from his Set. of Hymns, 1839, are in modern collections, including:—

1. O wondrous hour! when, Jesus, Thou. Good Friday.
2. 'Tis past, the dark and dreary night. Easter.
3. While in sweet communion feeding. Holy Communion.

Denton, William, M.A., b. Mar. 1, 1816, and educated at Worcester College, Oxford, M.A. 1844. Entering Holy Orders, he was successively curate of Bradfield, Berks; Barking, Essex; and Shoreditch. In 1860 he became vicar of St. Bartholomew's, Cripplegate, London. He d. Jan. 2, 1888. Mr. Denton was the author of well-known commentaries on various parts of Holy Scripture. He was proprietor of The Church Manual, 1853, of which he was also joint editor with Canon W. Cooke.

Dickinson, William, p. 263, ii. Another hymn from his Hys. for Passion Week, &c., 1846, in C. U. is, "When the gospel race is run." (Advent.)

Dickson, William, p. 292, ii. He d. at Edinburgh, April 5, 1889.

Dies absoluti praetereunt, p. 294, ii. The St. Gall ms. cited are Nos. 413, 414.

Dies est laetitiae. In orta regali, p. 294, ii. G. M. Dreyer, in his Cantiones Bohemicae, 1866, p. 42, cites this as in four mss. now at Prag, the fullest form being in a ms., circa 1410, of the Abbey of Hohenfurt, which omits Sime's st. viii.

Dies irae, dies illa, pp. 296-301. In a ms. in the Brit. Mus. of the beginning of the 14th cent. (Harl. 2894, f. 170 b), there is a Responsory, which might possibly have suggested at least some of the allusions in the "Dies irae." The first part reads:—

"Libera me Domine, de morte aeterna, in die illa tremenda; Quando coeli movendi sunt et terra,
Dum veneris judicare saeculum per ignem.
Dies illa, dies irae, calamitatis et miseriae, dies magna et amara valde.
Quid ergo miserum, quid dicam vel quid factam, dum nil boni perferam ante tantum iudicem."

This Responsory is also in a Brit. Mus. ms. of the beginning of the 13th cent. (Launddowne, 431, f. 122 b), and is evidently referred to in a 12th cent. Life of Gundulf, Bp. of Rochester, who d. 1108. See Henry Wharton's Anglia Sacra, vol. ii., 1691, p. 286. He prints the Life from a ms. now in the Brit. Mus. (Nero, A. viii.). The various texts of the "Dies irae," with a full commentary, are in Dr. J. Kayser's Beiträge (p. 656, ii.), ii., 1856, pp. 193-236.

Dix, William Chatterton, p. 292, ii. Additional hymns by Mr. Dix now in C. U. are:—

1. Lift up your songs, ye angel choirs. Ascension.
2. Now, my soul rehearse the story. Christ Feeding the Multitude.
3. Within the temple's hallowed courts. B. V. M.

These hymns are from his Altar Songs, 1867.

Doane, William Howard, p. 304, i., was b. Feb. 3,

Children. Written at Waterhead in 1881, and pub. in The Garden of the Lord.

4. It is the Lord Himself who tends. Christ the Divine Gardener. Written for The Garden of the Lord, 1881.

5. March on, march on, ye soldiers true. Missions. Written at Waterhead, Oldham, circa 1886, for a missionary meeting.

6. Not only for the goodly fruit-trees tall. Christ's care of Children. Written at Waterhead, Oldham, for The Garden of the Lord, 1881.

7. O Father, in Thy Father's heart. Holy Baptism. Written for the Cong. Church Hyl., 1887.

8. O Lord of all, we bring to Thee our sacrifice of praise. S. School Festival. Written at Waterhead, Oldham, circa 1879, for a Whitsuntide Sunday school festival.

9. O Lord of life, and love, and power. Living to God. Written at Waterhead, Oldham, in 1876, for the opening of a new Sunday school, and pub. in The Garden of the Lord, 1881.

All these hymns are in the Cong. Church Hyl., 1887; Nos. 2, 8, in the Meth. Free Church Hys., 1889; Nos. 3, 4, in the S. S. Union Services Book for Ch. & School, 1891; and Nos. 1, 5, and 9 in Hunter's Hys. of Faith & Life, Glasgow, 1889. Taken as a whole, Mrs. Armitage's hymns are exceptionally good.

Earle, Jabez. This name is sometimes met with in connection with old English hymnody. He was b. in 1676, and d. in 1788.

Ebrard, J. H. A., p. 320, l. He d. at Erlangen, July 23, 1888.

Ecoe jam noctis tenuatur umbra, p. 320, l. This hymn is found in a Bern ms., No. 458, of the 10th cent. Additional trs. include:—

1. Behold the shade (shades) of night is (are) now receding. By Ray Palmer, written in 1869, and included in Hys. of the Church, N. Y., 1869.

2. Night doth its place in turn to daylight render. In the Office H. Bk., 1889, No. 704.

Ecoe pulchra, p. 320, l. From Mrs. Chester's tr. at v., vi. are given in some American collections as "Unto Thee be glory given."

Ecoe sedes hic Tonantia, p. 320, l. This is in the Sens Breve., 1726. Hiem. p. lxxv.

Ecoe tempus idoneum, p. 320, l. The Bodleian ms. Laud, Lat. 95 is circa 1300.

Eddy, Daniel O., D.D., b. in Salem, Massachusetts, May 21, 1823, and entered the Baptist ministry in 1846. He is the author of several hymns, one of which for the opening of a Place of Worship, "Maker of land and rolling sea," is in the Bap. Praise Bk., 1871.

Edersheim, Alfred, D.D., s. of wealthy Jewish parents, was b. at Vienna, March 7, 1825. He was the first Jew to take prizes at the University of Vienna. During the time he was a student he embraced Christianity, and subsequently studied theology at the universities of Edinburgh and Berlin. He was for some time a minister of the Free Church of Scotland. In 1876 he was ordained by the Bp. of Winchester. He was Curate of Christchurch, Hants; Vicar of Loders, Dorset; Warburtonian Lecturer at Lincoln's Inn; and Grinfield Lecturer on the Septuagint at the University of Oxford. He d. suddenly at Mentone, March 16, 1889. Dr. Edersheim's publications were very numerous, the most important of which are given in Crockford's Clerical Directory for 1889. His Jubilee Rhythm, from which his trs. are taken, was pub. in 1886, and not 1847, as in a misprint on the titlepage.

Edmeston, James, p. 321, l. Other hymns are:—

1. O Thou Whose mercy guides my way. Assignment. In his Sacred Lyrics, 1st set, 1820, p. 24, in 3 st. of 4 l., and again in his Hys. for the Chamber of Sickness, 1844.

2. Parting soul, the flood awaits thee. Death anticipated. In his Sacred Lyrics, 1st set, 1820, p. 18, in 3 st. of 8 l., and based upon the passage in the Pilgrim's Progress:—"Now I further saw that betwixt them and the gate was a river, but there was no bridge to go over, and the river was very deep."

3. 'Tis sweet upon our pilgrimage. Praise. In his Closest Hymns and Poems, 1846, in 3 st. of 4 l., and headed "An Ebenezer Raised."

4. Welcome, brethren, enter in. Reception of Church Officers. Miller says, in his Singers and Songs, 1869, p. 420:—"This is No. 1 of five hymns supplied by Mr. Edmeston, at the request of a friend, for insertion in a provincial hymn-book, on the subject of admitting members," but he does not give the name of the book, neither have we identified it. The hymn, as given in the New Song, 1869, No. 840, is in 4 st. of 4 l., of which Miller says st. iii. is by another hand.

Edwards, Matilda Barbara Betham (Betham-Edwards), daughter of Edward Edwards, and sister of Amelia B. Edwards, the Egyptologist, was b. at Westerbeld, near Ipswich, March 4, 1836. Miss Edwards is well known as the author of Kitty, The Sylvesters, and other stories. Her Poems were pub. in 1885. Her hymn for Children's Services, "God make my life a little light," in the Cong. Church Hyl., 1887, first appeared in Good Words, 1873, p. 393, together with another hymn for children, "The little birds now seek their rest," (Evening). Several of her religious pieces have passed into devotional and other works.

Edwards, Roger, a celebrated Welsh Calvinistic minister, was b. at Bela, Jan. 22, 1811. He was closely associated with the literary productions of the Calvinistic Methodists, and was editor for many years of their magazine and their reviews. He d. at Mold, July 19, 1886. He edited a denominational hymn-book in 1840, for which he wrote several hymns. He also pub. a volume of moral and sacred songs in 1865.

Eia mea anima, Bethlehem canas, J. Muburn. [Christmas.] In his Rosetum exercitiorum spiritualium et sacramentum meditationum, N. P. 1494 (Brit. Mus.), this is found at folio 104 b, as a hymn on the Birth of Christ, in 13 st. of 10 l. The full text is also in Wackernagel, l. No. 492. Three st., beginning with st. iv., "Heu quid jaces stabulo," passed into many of the older German hymn-books, and are found as a separate hymn in Rambach, l., p. 373; Daniel, l., No. 481; and French, 1861, p. 114. These stanzas have also been tr. from the Latin into English, as "Dost Thou in a manger lie," by Mrs. Charles, 1856, p. 174. Also in the Hymnary, 1872.

Eia ferte Burg, p. 325, l. M. W. Stryker's tr. begins in his Church Song, 1889, "A Tower of refuge is our God." Another tr. is by E. V. Kennedy, in his Poems & Ps., 1864, p. 439. We find that No. 7 on p. 324, i., did not appear in W. H. Furness's Gems of German Verse, 1862, and that the date of Suggen's tr. on p. 325, l. 14, is 1869, not 1868.

Eia, David Kough, r.d., was b. in Maine in 1831. In 1860 he entered the ministry of the American Methodist Episcopal Church. His hymn: "The chosen three, on mountain height" (Transfiguration), was written in 1877 and pub. in the Meth. Episc. Hymnal, 1879.

Ellerton, John, p. 326, l. Other hymns are:—

1. O Father, bless the children. Holy Baptism. Written in 1886, and pub. in his Hymns, dc., 1888, in 4 st. of 4 l. Also in the 1889 Suppl. Hys. to H. A. & M.

2. O Thou Who givest food to all. Temperance. Written Aug. 30, 1882, and printed in the Ch. of England Temperance Chronicle, 8 pt. 1882. Also in his Hymns, dc., 1888.

3. Praise our God for all the wonders. St. Nicholas's Day. Dated in his Hymns, 1888, "December 1882." It was written for the Dedication Festival of St. Nicholas's Church, Brighton, and first printed as a leaflet in 1882.

4. Praise our God, Whose open hand. Fad Harvest. Written as a hymn for the bad harvest of 1881, and printed in the Guardian in August of that year. Also in his Hymns, dc., 1888.

5. Praise to the Heavenly Wisdom. St. Matthias's Day. Dated in his Hymns, dc., 1888, "January, 1888." Also in the 1889 Suppl. Hys. to H. A. & M.

6. Shine Thou upon us, Lord. For a Teachers' Meeting. Contributed to the 1889 Suppl. Hys. to H. A. & M.

7. Thou Who wearied by the well. Temperance. Written for the Opening of a Workmen's Coffee Tavern, and dated in his Hymns, dc., 1888, "September 23, 1882." It was printed in the Ch. of England Temperance Chronicle the same year.

8. Throned upon the awful Tree. Good Friday. Written in 1875, and pub. in the 1875 ed. of H. A. & M. It has passed into many collections, and is one of the finest of Mr. Ellerton's productions.

Mr. Ellerton's original and translated hymns to the number of 76 were collected, and pub. by Skelington & Son in 1888, as Hymns, Original and Translated. By John Ellerton, Rector of White Roding.

Elliott, Charlotte, p. 328, l. Other hymns are:—

1. O how I long to reach my home. Heaven desired. From the Invalid's H. Bk., 1834.

2. The dawn approaches, golden streaks. Second Advent. From Thoughts in Verse, dc., 1869.

Of her hymns noted on p. 328, Nos. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, and 13, all appeared in the 1st ed. of Elliott's Ps. & Hys., 1835.

Falk, Johannes D., p. 309, ll. He d. Feb. 14 (not Dec.), 1286.

Fando quis audivit! Del. C. Coffin. [Passiontide.] Appeared in the Paris Brev., 1734; in Coffin's Hymns Sacri, 1736, p. 49; in J. Chandler, 1837, No. 63; and in Newman, 1838-45. Tr. as:—

1. Who hath believed our report? to whom. By I. Williams, in the Brit. Mag., April 1834; and his Hys. tr. from the Par. Brev., 1839, p. 119. In Sacred Verses with Pictures, Lond., Burns, 1846, No. 9, it begins with st. ii., "O holy Lamb, slain ere the world was made." At p. 573, l., "Optatus votis." 3. "Now to the cruel scourge, the twined thorn," the 1st st. is said to be a tr. from "Et jam flagellis." This stanza is st. vii. of "Fando quis," and the tr. in Brev. is by I. Williams as above, very much altered.

2. Additional trs. are by R. Campbell, 1850, p. 68; W. Palmer, 1846, p. 43; J. Chandler, 1837, No. 63; J. D. Chambers, 1857, p. 143.

Far away beyond the shades. C. H. Bateman. [Heaven.] From the Sacred Melodies for Children, 1843-72, into a few collections.

Far, far o'er hill and dale, on the winds stealing. [Heaven anticipated.] Appeared anonymously in Winchell's Appendix to his Arrangement of Watts, 1832, in 5 st. of 4 l. It is repeated in later collections, including H. W. Beecher's Plymouth Coll., 1855; the Bapt. Praise Bk., 1871, and other American collections.

Fare thee well, our last and fairest. D. M. Moir. [Death of a Child.] This poem was written by Moir in March 1838, on the death of his son, William Blackwood Moir, who died in the previous February, aged 16 months. It was included in his Domestic Verses, 1843, in 12 st. of 8 l., and again in his Poetical Works, 1852 (2nd ed., 1860, vol. i, p. 114), and headed "Wee Willie." In the American Unitarian Hys. for the Church of Christ, Boston, 1853, a cento from this poem was given in 6 st. of 4 l. as "Fare thee well, thou fondly cherished." It is also found in later collections.

Farmer, Sarah. Daniel Sedgwick's repeated statement that this writer was a daughter of a well known Wesleyan layman is repudiated by the family. Two hymns appeared with this name in the Irvingite Hys. for the Use of the Churches, 1864, as (1) "Lord, to Thine altar we draw near" (Holy Communion); and (2) "What though thy soul be sleeping" (Death and Burial). The first of these is dated 1842, and the second 1849.

Father, adored in worlds above. [The Lord's Prayer.] Anon. in Pope's Coll., 1760; Kiplin's Coll., 1795; and several modern Unitarian hymnbooks.

Father, give Thy benediction. [Close of D. Service.] Given anonymously in 1 st. of 8 l., in Longfellow and Johnson's Hys. of the Spirit, Boston, U.S.A., 1864, No. 127, and in the Boston H. and Tune Bk., 1868.

Father, hail, by all adored. p. 244, l. This is entered as being in the Wes. H. Bk., 1780 and 1875, in error.

Father, I know that all my life. p. 367, ll. The hymn "I know, my Father, all my life," in Stryker's Church Song, 1889, is an altered form of this hymn.

Father of all, again we meet. Hester P. Hawkins. [Divine Worship.] Written for and 1st pub. in her Home H. Bk. 1855 and signed "H. P. H."

Father, now the day is over. E. B. [Evening.] Originally pub. for private circulation, and then included with other pieces by the same writer, in Rev. R. Crompton Jones's Unitarian Hys. of Duty and Faith, 1873, in 7 st. of 6 l. In 1884 it was included in Horder's Song Hys., in 5 st. The writer, E. B. (a lady), desires to remain unknown.

Father of all, to Thee let endless praise. &c. [Holy Baptism.] This cento, No. 933, in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, is thus composed:—St. i., new; st. ii., iii. from C. Wesley's Redemption Hymns, 1747, No. 34, st. iii.; st. iv. from C. Wesley's Hymns on the Trinity, ii., iii.; st. v. from C. Wesley's Hymns on the Trinity, 1767, No. viii.; st. vi., altered.

Father of all, Whose powerful voice. p. 368, ii. Another cento from this hymn beginning "All ye who owe to God your birth," is in C. U., as in Hatfield's Church H. Bk., N. Y., 1872.

Father of heaven, Whose gracious hand. J. D. Carlyle. [Resignation and Contentment.] Pub. in J. Fawcett's Ps. & Hys. by Various Authors, &c., Carlisle, 1802, in 6 st. of 4 l. (see p. 696, l.), and again in Carlyle's Poems, &c., 1805 (see p. 306, l.).

Father of Jesus Christ our Lord. J. Montgomery. [Public Worship.] This was printed for use of the Sheffield Church National Schools Festival, Whitmonday, 1848; again for the Sheffield Wesleyan S. S. Union Whitsuntide Festival, 1861; and in Montgomery's Original Hys., 1853.

Father of mercies, condescend. This is given at p. 687, i., as by John Lawson, on the authority of the Rep. New Sel., 1828; and at p. 770, i., to Thomas Morrell, on the authority of the Evangelical Magazine, Dec., 1818. Further enquiries lead us to believe the hymn was composed by Lawson.

Father of might, my bonds I feel. C. Wesley. [Self- Renunciation.] This in Longfellow and Johnson's Bank of Hys., 1846, No. 527; and their Hys. of the Spirit, 1864, No. 329, is a cento from hymns by C. Wesley, in the Wes. H. Bk., modern ed., Nos. 275, 363, 384, &c.

Father, Thy holy name we bless. R. W. Eddis. [All Saints Day.] This, in Dale's English H. Bk., 1874, is from Eddis's Irvingite Hys. for the Use of the Churches, 1864. It is dated 1851.

Father, Thy will, not mine, be done. p. 378, l. Concerning this hymn, the late Mrs. Rawson of Wincobank Hall, Sheffield, communicated to us on Sep. 16, 1876, the following details:—"Of one other hymn I can give you the history, 'Father! Thy will, not mine, be done.' My beloved husband, William B. Rawson, went to Paradise on July 19, 1829, aged 28. When Montgomery was here [Wincobank Hall] some time afterwards, he asked my dear mother about his last hours, and seemed much affected by hearing of his wonderful peace and resignation, for he had everything to make life desirable. My mother put into our friend's hand a short statement of the closing scene, which he took up with him when he retired for the night, and the next day we found these lines written in pencil on a fly-leaf of the manuscript." The reference at p. 378, i. is to the death of Ignatius, Montgomery's brother, at Ockbrook, April 27, 1841, when the hymn was revived by fresh and painful circumstances.

Father, Whose creating hand. T. B. Pollock. [For Use at Sea.] A very appropriate and simple litany for use at Sea. It appeared in the 1869 Suppl. Hys. to H. A. & M.

Faith, Rhijnvis, a Minister of the Dutch Reformed Church at Zwolle, in Holland. His hymn "Loof den Koning, alle Volken" appeared in the Evangelische Gezangen bij Godsdienst in de Nederlandsche Hervormde Gemeenten, 1806 (p. 1520, ii.). This hymn was tr. on January 10, 1828, by J. Montgomery (s. n. s.), as "Praise the Lord through every nation," and so far as we can trace, was first pub. in his Original Hys., 1853, p. 136, as a hymn for Ascension Day, and headed, "Paraphrased, in the original metre, from a Dutch Hymn." In 1855 it was included in Mercer's Ch. Psalter & H. Bk., No. 122, and later in many collections.

Felices nomenum. p. 374, l. Read 1686, p. i.: "Ball's tr. as appearing in the 5th ed. of the H. Nodet, 1873; and Caswall's tr. in his Masque of Mary, 1859, p. 324.

Festum matris gloriose. p. 376, l. The Office of the Visitation of the B. V. M. was printed in 1480.

Fields, James Thomas, b. in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, Dec. 31, 1820; was for some years a partner in the Boston publishing firm of Ticknor and Fields, and also the editor of the Atlantic Monthly from 1862 to 1870. From the 1854 ed. of his Poems, Putnam has given 13 pieces in his Singers and Songs, &c., 1874, p. 437, one of which, "Thou Who hast called our being here" (Child's Hymn), has come into C. U. He d. April 24, 1881.

Finita jam sunt praelia. p. 376, ii. The tr. in the Berwick Hys., 1886, "Accomplished is the battle now," is Neale's tr. altered, and "Hallelujah, hallelujah! Now is the battle done," in the American Sabbath H. Bk., 1838 and others, is an altered form of Dr. Bonar's tr.

Fits, Asa. This signature, as in Thring's Coll., 1842, to "Great Giver of all good" (Pioneer Services), is found in a few American collections. Of this hymn st. i. is by Mr. Thring.

Flagrans amore, perditio. p. 377, ii. We have found this in the Paris Brev. of 1680, Ant., p. 287.

Flavius. Flavius was Bishop of Chalons in 580.

Fletcher, Giles, B.D., s. of Dr. Giles Fletcher, cousin of John Fletcher, the dramatic poet, and brother of Phineas Fletcher (p. 379, l.), was b. probably in London, circa 1605, and educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, B.A. 1606, and M.D. 1619. He was for some time Rector of Alderton, Suffolk, and d. in 1623. His poem, 'Christ's Fulgens praeclara rutilat, p. 401, ii. Another tr. is "More fair than sunrise on our sight," by Mrs. Hornman in the Altar Hyl., 1884.

Fuller-Maitland, Esther. See Herzschell, E.

Fuller-Maitland, Frances. See Colquhoun, F. B.

Fumant Sabacia templa, p. 401, ii. This is found in the Paris Brev. of 1680, Item, p. 311.

Funerum ne date planetum, p. 408, i. This is in the Paris Missal of 1706, p. cxiii., and in that of 1730, p. cxvi.

G

Gallagher. Under this name the hymn "The sun himself shall fade" (Trust) is given in Songs for the Sanctuary, N. Y., 1865.

Gandy, Samuel Whitlock. This writer (Vicar of Kingston-on-Thames with Richmond from Jan. 1817 to his death, Dec. 24, 1851) was the author of "What tho' the Accuser roar" (Victory through Jesus), and "His be the Victor's name" (Victory through Jesus), in the Plymouth Brethren Hym. for the Poor of the Flock, 1838, Nos. 43, 44. Some of his Sermons were pub. posthumously in 1859. Sedgwick says he pub. a Set. of Ps. & Hym., but we have not seen this work (n. ms.).

Gates, Ellen, nee Huntington, of Elizabeth, New Jersey, is the author of several popular pieces in the American Mission and S. School hymn-books. Of these the following have passed from the American books into Sankey's Sacred Songs and Solos:—

1. Come home, come home, you are weary at heart. Invitation.

2. I am now a child of God. Saved through Jesus.

3. I will sing you a song of that beautiful land. Concerning Heaven.

4. O the clanging bells of time. Yearning for Heaven.

5. Say, is your lamp burning, my brother. Watching and Waiting.

Concerning her poem which is used as a hymn in America, "If you cannot on the ocean" (Duty), Duffield says her account of its origin is as follows:—"The lines were written upon my slate one snowy afternoon in the winter of 1860. I knew, as I know now, that the poem was only a simple little thing, but somehow I had a pre-sentiment that it had wings, and would fly into sorrowful hearts, uplifting and strengthening them." (English Hym., 1886, p. 267.)

Gaudete vos fideles, gentium pars electa. [Epiphany]. In a ms., circa 1199, in the Brit. Mus. (Calig. A. xiv. f. 51); and in the Hereford Missal, both in the ms., circa 1390, in the Bodleian, and in the printed ed. ms., circa 1502. Also in Daniel v. p. 180; and Kehren, No. of 1502. Tr. as "Laud, ye faithful! Kings, bow down" by Mrs. E. H. Mitchell, in the Altar Hyl., 1884.

Geh aus mein Herr, p. 406, i. This appeared in the Berlin ed. of Crüger's Praxis, 1653, No. 404.

Gellert, Christian F., p. 406, ii. Miss Knight's book, quoted on p. 408, i., Nos. xxii., xxvii., appeared as Trs. from the German in Prose and Verse, 1812.

Gelobet seist du Jesu Christ, p. 409, i. For other mss. containing the "Grates nunc omnes" see references at pp. 814 and 1045.

Gently, my Saviour, let me down, p. 409, i. This hymn was first printed in F. Sidney's Life of Rowland Hill, 1834, p. 404, and to it he adds the following note:—"This hymn was written by Mr. Hill for the comfort of a dying member of his Surrey Chapel congregation, who received it a few hours before death. I found it amongst his papers, in his own handwriting, and I believe it never has been printed. It is called 'The Prayer of the Dying Christian.'" The hymn is in 8 st. of 4 l.

Gerhardt, Paulus, p. 408, ii. Of his hymns noted on pp. 410-412, the following appeared in Crüger's Praxis, Berlin ed., 1653:—i., No. 236; iii., No. 401; v., No. 106; vii., No. 321; xiv., No. 206; xxi., No. 137; xxiv., No. 101.

German Hymnody, pp. 412-416. The monthly German Hymnological magazine (Blätter für Hymnologie), ed. by Dr. A. F. W. Fischer and Dr. J. Linke (see p. 377, ii.), and which began in 1883, unfortunately ceased to exist with the number for Dec., 1889. Otherwise since 1880 not many important works have appeared in which deal directly with German Hymnology. In the new ed. of Karl Göttsche's Grundriss zur Geschichte der deutschen Dichtung, vol. II., 1884, and III., 1887, there is a considerable amount of bibliographic information regarding German hymn-writers from the Reformation to about 1750; and Dr. Albert Ritschl's Geschichte des Pietismus, vol. I., Bonn, 1880, II., 1884, III., 1885, contains many references to hymn-writers and hymns of the Pietistic school.

The only two purely hymnological works which need be noted are (1) Wilhelm Bode's Quellennachweis über die Lieder des hannoverschen und des lüneburgischen Gesangbuches, samt den dazu gehörigen Singweisen, Hannover, 1881. This is a most careful and elaborate monograph on the Hannover G. B., 1740; and the Lüneburg G. B., 1767; and has been of great use to the present writer. (2) Dr. O. Wetzstein's Religions Lyrik der Deutschen im 19. Jahrhundert, Neustrelitz, 1891. This is very well done, embraces both Roman Catholic and Protestant authors, and the information is brought up to date. We may add that in 1886 Dr. Fischer pub. the first part of a Supplement to his Kirchenlieder-Lexicon, but the final part has not yet appeared.

The references throughout this Dictionary to German libraries where certain works are to be found are not meant to be exhaustive, but to supplement those given by Bode. [J. M.]

Gerok, Karl von, p. 410. He was b. at Vaihingen on the Enz (not at Stuttgart), and d. at Stuttgart, Jan. 14, 1890.

Gibbons, Thomas, p. 430, i. From his Hymns, &c., of 1784, are also in C. U.:—

1. Lord God, omnipotent to bless. Divine Help desired.

2. Now may the God of peace and love. Cloze of Service.

3. O what stupendous mercy shines. Benevolence.

Giles, Charles, an American Methodist minister, was b. near Fort Griswold, Connecticut, Feb. 23, 1783, entered the ministry in 1806, and d. at Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 30, 1867. His hymn, "The fading world promiscuous flown" (Heaven Anticipated), is found, in 6 st. of 5 l., in James Gallagher's New Selection, Cincinnati, Ohio, 1835; and in 8 st. of 5 l. From it the hymn, "This world is poor from shore to shore," in Beecher's Plymouth Hym., 1855; Dr. Hatfield's Church H. Bk., 1872, and others, is taken.

Gill, George, s. of William Gill, was b. at Tiverton, Devonshire, Jan. 23, 1820, and was for some time a missionary in the South Sea Islands. His hymn, "Beautiful Zion, built above" (Heaven), was written, the author says, "on the island of Mangala, South Sea, April, 1850." It was printed in the Juvenile Miss. Mag. in 1852. His rewritten form of Phoebe Cary's "One sweetly solemn thought" (p. 214, i.), beginning "This sweetly solemn thought," is dated 1861, and also appeared in the Juv. Miss. Mag. Gill left the South Sea in 1860, and in 1861 became pastor of Westgate Congregational Chapel, Burnley. He d. Aug. 19, 1890.

Gillette, Abram Dunn, s. n., editor of Hym. for Social Meetings, 1843, to which he contributed 12 pieces, including one on Missions, "Far off beyond the sea, I love," was b. in Cambridge, Washington County, New York, Sep. 8, 1807; entered the Baptist ministry in 1830; and elsewhere; and d. Aug. 24, 1882.

Gill, T. H., pp. 421-3. Additional hymns to those annotated are in C. U.:—(1) "O dreadful glory that doth make," a cento from No. 48, p. 423, ii.; (2) "O mystery of Love Divine" (The Love of Christ); (3) "Ye souls for whom the Saviour died" (Electing Love). These are all from his Golden Chain of Praises, 1869.

Giver of each perfect gift. This is an altered form of "God of all redeeming grace," p. 426, i.

Gladden, Washington, was b. at Pittsgrove, Pennsylvania, Feb. 11, 1836; was educated at Williams College; and entered the Congregational Ministry. He was for some time editor of the New York Independent, and of the Sunday Afternoon. In the Sunday Afternoon, his hymn, "O Master, let me walk with Thee" (Walking with God), appeared in 3 st. of 4 l., in March 1870. Of these sts. i. and iii. are in Laudes Domini, 1884, and others.

Gloria in Excelsis, p. 425, i. Another tr. is "Glory to God in the highest," by Mrs. Charles, in her Christian Life in England, &c., 1866, p. 17.

Gloria, laus et honor, p. 426, i. Additional trs. include (1) "All glory, praise, and honour," an altered form of Neale's tr. in the Pennsylvania Lutheran Church Bk., 1868; (2) "To Thee, O Christ, be glory, praise loud," in the Divine Office, 1763, and the R. C. Parochial H. Bk., 1880; (3) "Wele, herizung, and worshippe be," by W. Herbert, circa 1330, in Wright and Halliwell's Reliquiae Antiquae, II., 1843, p. 225; (4) "Praise, glory, and honour, Redeemer, to Thee," by J. Wallace, 1874.

Christi Salvatoris, p. 427. i. F. W. E. Roth gives, in his Lutherische Hymnen, 1862, p. 27, the readings of a 15th cent. ms. Breviary, now at Darmstadt, and apparently of the use of Cologne. This text adds a doxology.

Glory to the Father gives, p. 426, ii. This hymn was printed on a broadsheet for use at the Sheffield Walsworth National and S. School Festival, June 11, 1871, and again for the Sheffield S. S. Union, as stated at p. 428, ii.

Glory to the King of glory: Sp. E. H. Bickertsh. [American]. Written at Portsmouth, N. Wales, 1841, and pub. in his From Year to Year, 1853, p. 93, in 4. v. of 4 double lines. It was included in the 1860 ed. of the Lyra, Temp.

Glyde, Ellanveth. In the 2. ms. (P. No. 2) there is the following text on this writer and her lyrics:—"Written by Miss Glyde some ten years before it was published. Miss Glyde was the daughter of Mr. Glyde, of Exeter, a son of an Independent chapel there." "Copy, in the last ed. of his Sings of G. & G., No. 574, gives 1840 as the date of the hymn.

Go, bury thy sorrow. [Reignation]. We find this hymn in F. Hild's Gospel Songs, Cincinnati, 1874, p. 98, in 2. v. of 4 double lines. The words are given anonymously, whilst the music is signed "F. P. R., 1. v. F. Hild." In I. D. Sankey's Sacred Songs & Solo this is also the case. There is no authority known to us for attributing the words to Hild.

Go forth, in spirit g. J. Gmelin. [Good Friday]. This appeared in the English Musical W. B., 1747, in 4. v. of 4 l., the sixth stanza beginning—"Thou hast our Saviour loved." In the 1801 ed. this stanza was omitted, and the stanza "His blood thy crime will wash," by John Hunter, was substituted. This form of the text is retained in the 1868 ed. of the same book. In Sadler's Unworned H. B., 1868, No. 216, l. 1-4, are from the 1747 ed., as above, and l. 5-6 is the first stanza of the hymn repeated, with slight alterations.

Go thou in life's fair morning. [Faith for Christ]. Arise, in W. B. Bradbury's Grades, 1846; I. D. Sankey's See, & Solo, 1874, and others. It was apparently suggested by Mrs. Simpson's "Go when the morning dawns," p. 104, ii.

Go to dark Othello, p. 436, ii. Nearly all the alterations in the revised version of this hymn as printed on p. 430 were given in the Lyra ed., 1822, No. 404, which shows that the revision was originally made for that ed. and not for the Christian Psalmist.

Goodly, F. W., p. 431, i. A companion hymn, for Church Brotherhood, to his hymn, No. 3, on p. 431, ii. It gives to Allen's Comp. Psalmist Hym., 1868, as "Our Father's Friend and God."

Goodly, Thomas, p. 431, ii. He d. at Nottingham, March 18, 1829.

God bless our native land. [National Hymn]. Several hymns opening with this first line are in C. C. U. The best of them is the English National Anthem, "God save the Queen." The most popular form of that which had its origin in America, about 1834, the English form, dating 1836, not being in very general use. The following details and strains are of some interest to hymnologists.

I. The American History and Parts.

i. The Rev. C. T. Brooks, an Unitarian minister, during the time that he was studying at the Exeter School, Cambridge, U. S. A., 1839 to 1840, wrote the following, said to be a fr. from the German:—

"God bless our native land!
Firm may she ever stand!
Through storm and night!
When the wild tempests rave,
Ruler of wind and wave,
Father Eternal, save Us by Thy might!
"Lo! our hearts' prayers arise
Into the upper skies,
Regions of light!
He Who hath loved each sigh,
Watched each weeping eye:
He is forever nigh, Venge of Right."

ii. The next form of this hymn is by the Rev. J. S. Dwight (p. 1860, ii.), and reads:—

"God bless our native land!
Firm may she ever stand!
Through storm and night!
When the wild tempests rave,
Ruler of wind and wave,
Do Thou our country save
By Thy great might!
"For her our prayers shall rise
To God above the skies:
For Him we ever sigh,
Thou Who art ever nigh,
Girding with manifold eyes,
To Thine almid sea eyes,
God save the State!"

The italics in the above indicate the alterations in C. T. Brooks's text by J. S. Dwight. Phyllis (songs of the Liberator, 1874, p. 278) that the hymn was first introduced in the Lyra ed. of 1822, and in Masson's singing books." The American edition of 1844.

iii. The third form appeared in Hildes and Emerson's Unitarian Hymns for the Church of Christ, 1832, No. 103. In this 1. and 2. it is 1. v. of the second form above. The remaining lines read:—

"Thou Who hast loved each sigh,
Watching each weeping eye,
Be Thine for ever nigh!
God—save the State!"

iv. The fourth form appeared in the Unitarian Hymns, Boston, 1864, No. 201. In this 1. v. of 4 l., as above, 4. l. is altered thereon, and 4. l. is new:—

St. ii. "For her our prayers shall rise,
Our faith is God, to Thee,
On Thee we ever sigh,
Be her faith's Hildes—
Her rulers Righteousness;
Her officers Be Peace;
God save the State!"
St. iii. "Lord of all truth and right,
In Whom alone is might,
On Thee we call!
Give us prosperity;
Give us true liberty;
May all the oppressed go free;
God save us all!"

v. In addition to the foregoing there are a few variations to be found in some American collections. Practically, however, the above is a resume of the history of the American hymn.

II. The English History and Parts.

i. Under the date of Oct. 12, 1849, William Elvert Hickson (d. 1870) then of Fairmea, Wrexham, Kent, wrote to Daniel Sedgwick, claiming that he was the author of "God bless our native land," which he had now attributed to J. S. Dwight. Sedgwick pointed out that there were two distinct hymns with the same first line, one of which was certainly American in origin, and the other might possibly be by Mr. Hickson. Eventually he proved to be the case. Hickson's account of his hymn as "It was written by me in 1834 as a new nation anthem," and "appeared in the Lyra (Cam. Tr. Book), No. 3, of the Singing Master." The Singing Master was pub. in 1836 (2nd ed. 1837). This hymn is in 4. l. i.

"God bless our native land!
May heaven's protecting hand
Skill guard our shore
May peace her power extend,
For he transferred to God,
And Britain's rights depend
On us no more."

The full text is in the 1844 Lyra, in the Lyra (Cam. Tr. Book), 1847, and other collections.

ii. In the Lyra, S. S. H. B., 1874, No. 103, is an anonymous hymn which begins:—

"God bless our native land!
Her strength and glory stand
Ever in Thee."
St. ii. is "God smile upon our land," and 4. l. is "Through every changing scene."

iii. In the Lyra, S. S. H. B., 1874, No. 104, appears with the same stanza as No. 103, but 4. l. is "God guard our sought land," and 4. l. is "God smile upon our land."

The words in these two hymn-books suggest a common original of four or more stanzas, but this original, if it exists, we have not seen. [P. 1.]

God forbid that I should glory. [Glorying in the Cross.] In his Notes to the Scottish Presb. Hym. of 1876, Mr. Thin says of this hymn, "Anon. Appended to Cottage Sermons, circa 1808."

God made me for Himself, to serve Him here. Sir H. W. Baker. [Home Missions.] Appeared in the Hym. for Mission Churches, &c., N.D., No. 47, pub. by the Compilers of H. A. & M., and in the 1889 Suppl. Hym. to H. A. & M.

God moves in a mysterious way, p. 433, l. In the Salisbury H. Bk., 1867, this hymn is altered to "God deigns to move in mystery."

God of almighty power. [Omnipresence.] This hymn appeared in the English Bap. Ps. & Hym., in 1850, and in the American Salisbury H. Bk. in the same year. This points to an earlier source from which the hymn was taken by the editors of both collections, but this source we have failed to find.

God of our Fatherland. Rp. E. H. Bickersteth. [National Hymn.] Written in 1883, and pub. in his From Year to Year, 1883, p. 231, in 4 st. of 4 l. It was included in the Hym. Comp., 1890. 3. Wherefore do the nations rage. Ps. ii.

These are all from his posthumous sacred Poems, 1839.

Grates, peracts jam die, p. 450, ii. This hymn is based upon the "Deus Creator omnium," p. 291, l.

Graves, Henry C., D.D., b. at Deerfield, Massachusetts, Sep. 22, 1830, and entered the Baptist ministry in 1858, since which he has held several pastorates, the last being New Bedford, Massachusetts, 1886. He has written several hymns for S. Schools and other purposes. One of these, "All-seeing, gracious Lord" (Divine Help desired), appeared in Welcome Songs, 1879. Another of his hymns, "Soul, soul, thou art passing" (Old and New Year), is in the Hym. Praise Bk., 1871.

Gray, Jane, nee Lewers, d. Nov. 14, 1871. A selection of her poems was printed in N. York for private circulation, in 1872, as Selections from the Poetical Writings of Jane Lewers Gray.

Great God of our Salvation. Rp. E. H. Bickersteth. [Consecration of a Church.] Written for the Consecration of Truro Cathedral, which took place on Nov. 3, 1867. It was printed by Sampson Low & Co., with music by Dr. Charles Vincent. Included in the 1890 ed. of the Hym. Comp.

Great God, the Giver of all grace. Cecil F. Alexander. [Consecration of a Church.] Written by Mrs. Alexander for the reopening of Derry Cathedral, in 1887, and printed in the Derry Cathedral Magazine for March 1887; the Church Bells, March 11, 1887, &c.

Great God, Thy glories blame, p. 478, l. S. This sometimes reads "Creator God! Thy glories blaze."

Great God, when my weak, trembling steps. A. M. Toplady. [Death anticipated.] This hymn was printed anonymously in the Gospel Magazine, Oct. 1876, in 5 st. of 4 l., and again in Walter Row's ed. of Toplady's Contemplations on the Life, Death, and Resurrection of Christ, 1822.

Great God, while we surround Thy throne. [S. S. Teachers' Prayer.] Appeared anonymously in the S. S. Union Teachers' H. Bk., 1846, No. 66, in 4 st. of 4 l. In the Leeds S. S. U. H. Bk., 1879, No. 328, it is enlarged to 5 st. of 4 l.

Great God, Whose sceptre rules the earth. J. Quarles. [Glory and Power of the Divine Father.] This appeared in his Divine Meditations . . . with several Divine Ejaculations, 1655, p. 125 (Ps. lxxviii.), as the 1st Ejaculation. The cento "Fountain of light and living breath," in Martineau's Hymns, 1840 and 1873, is from this hymn.

Great God, with heart and tongue. This is an altered form of J. Fawcett's "With humble heart and tongue," p. 373, ii. 77.

Great One in Three, great Three in One. [Holy Trinity.] Anon. In the American Sabbath H. Bk., 1864, No. 473, and in later collections, including Hatfield's Church H. Bk., 1872, and others.

Great Shepherd of our souls! O guide. W. Croswell. [The Good Shepherd.] From his Poems, 1860, p. 221, somewhat altered, into Dale's English H. Bk., 1874. Croswell's title is "Hymn for the First Sunday after Easter."

Great Shepherd of the sheep, Who all Thy flock dost keep. [The Good Shepherd.] This is given in the Scottish Hymnal, 1884, as from an "American" source.

Greek Hymnody, p. 457, ii. In l. 12 from the top, read "whether he believed in the Resurrection of the body."

Greene, Thomas, of Ware, was for some time a member of the Congregational body in that town. In 1778 a minority of the members, of Arian principles, having obtained the lease of the chapel, the majority seceded and built themselves the "Old Independent Chapel." Mr. Greene was one of those seceders (Miller's Singers & Songs, 1869, p. 314). His Hym. and Poems on Various Subjects, chiefly Sacred, were pub. in 1780 (2nd ed.).

1792). From this work the hymn "It is the Lord, enthroned in light" (Annals), is taken. In Sticker's Christian Psalter, 1833, it begins, "It is the Lord, my covenant God." In modern collections it is found in both forms. Another hymn from the same work is "The more my covenant I survey" (Trusting in Jesus), as in Spurgeon's C. C. B., 1884.

Griffiths, Ann, p. 470, ll. A long account of this writer, and several frs. into English of her hymns, are given in B. Elvet Lewis's Sweet Singers of Wales (H. T. N., 1909).

Goswami, A. B., p. 471. In 1936 Dr. Goswami pub. a vol. of original verse as Songs of the Day and Night, or Three Centuries of Original Hymns, etc. Several of these pieces are of striking merit, and are worthy of the attention of hymn-book compilers.

Guist, Charles, p. 473, II. His Reortologie was pub. in Paris, 1437, and reprinted in 1724. It contains the Latin hymns proper to the various dioceses in France.

Quintana, Henry Orville, son of Capt. John Quintana of Dublin, was a countesseller, and Dublin, Ireland. His was an extraordinary case. From childhood, since which time he has visited most parts of the world in prosecuting his evangelistic labours. He has written numerous hymns and printed them privately by circular in letters and parcels, and by general distribution. Of these the following were included in The Standard London W. Ak. 1873:—(1) How Beautiful (Newman's text) (Chorus in Memory); (2) Thou art my Joy, Lord Jesus (The Glory of Jesus); (3) Yes, Thou art mine, my blessed Lord (Jesus our All).

Orpua, Madame, p. 478, l. Other des. in C. U. are: 1. From No. 3 on p. 478, l. the cento in Martineau's Hymns, 1800, No. 160, "Almighty Formers of creation's plan" is taken.

Haste, my spirit, flee away. [Death Anticipated.] Anon. in Elliot's Ps. & Hys., 1835, No. 396.

Hastings, T., p. 494, l. Additional hymns are:—

1. Children bear the wondrous story; and "Sinners, hear the melting story," are altered forms of No. 36, on p. 496, l.
2. Father, we for our children plead. On behalf of Children.
3. Forgive my folly, O Lord most holy. Lent.
4. Hosanna to the King. That for, &c. Praise to Jesus.
5. I look to Thee, O Lord alone. Pardon desired.
6. Jesus, full of every grace. Pardon desired.
7. O why should gloomy thoughts arise? The Mourner Encouraged.
8. Peace to thee, O favoured one. Peace in Jesus.
9. Saviour, hear us through Thy merit. Forgiveness.

Of these hymns, No. 3 is in Hastings's Spiritual Songs, 1831; No. 9 in his Mother's H. Bk., 1834, and his Devotional Hys., 1860; and Nos. 4, 5 & 8 in his Devotional Hys., 1850.

Hatch, Edwin, D.D., was b. at Derby, Sep. 4, 1835, and educated at Pembroke College, Oxford, n.a., in honours, in 1857. After holding important appointments in Canada, he returned to England and became Vice Principal of St. Mary Hall, Oxford, 1867; and Rector of Parleigh, 1883. (See also Crockford.) He d. Nov. 10, 1889. His hymn-writing was limited. One, and that a very spirited lyric, is in Allon's Cong. Psalmist Hyl., 1868: "Prestbe on me, Breath of God" (Whitsuntide.) Dr. Hatch's hymns were pub. in his posthumous Towards Fields of Light. Lond. 1890.

Havergal, Frances Ridley, p. 496, l. Miss Havergal's Poetical Works were pub. in 2 vols. in 1884 (Lond., J. Nisbet); and the hymns therein are accompanied by notes. From these vols., and the Hav. Mus., we gather the following facts concerning additional hymns in C. U.:

1. In God's great field of labour. Work for Christ.

mysteriis et hymni. In this Ms. there are only two nearly complete hymns, "Ante oecula qui manens," and "Adeae cernis gloriam," and the second part of an alphabetical hymn, beginning with "F" ("Fefellit caevam, verbum factum et caro").

Hill, Stephen P., p. 534, l. B. at Salem, Massachusetts, April 17, 1806; entered the Baptist ministry in 1832; and d. at Washington, District of Columbia, Sep. 15, 1884.

Hiller, Philipp F., p. 534, ll. His hymn "Gottes Sohn, in Fleisch gekleidet" (Christmas), from his Leiderkistelein, 1762, is fr. by Dr. Loy, in the Ohio Lutheran Hym., 1880, as "God in human flesh appearing."

Hinchcliffe, Joseph, a Sheffield manufacturer, and a member of the Wesleyan body, was b. at Sheffield in 1760, and d. at Dumfries in 1807. Concerning his hymn in the Prim. Meth. Hym., 1887, "This is the field, the world below" (Death and the Resurrection), Dorricot and Collins say in their Lyric Studies, 1889, p. 289, "It has been traced to a Tract, entitled Patronage Hymns, Odes, and Anthems, as Sung at the Methodist Chapels in Sheffield, Rotherham, Doncaster and Nottingham Circuits, Fifth edition, 1797, and immediately under the title of this hymn are the words 'By J. Hinchcliffe.'"

Hirmos, The. See Greek Hymnody, § x., 11; xvi. 10.

Hoeder, Edwin, pub. in 1863 The New Sunday School H. Bk., and in 1868 a New and Enlarged ed. of the same. To this collection he contributed 27 hymns, each of which is headed with his name. Of these nearly one half have passed into other hymnals for children, including Major; the Bap. S. S. H. Bk., 1880; the S. S. U. Voice of Praise, 1886, and others.

Hodges, George Samuel, M.A., b. at Walmer in 1827, educated at Jesus College, Cambridge. In 1862 he was preferred to the Vicarage of Stubbings, near Maidenhead. His principal work is The County Palatine and other Poems Sacred and Secular, 1878. In it appeared several frs. from the Latin, from English into Latin, and original pieces including his children's hymn for Palm Sunday, "Hosanna we sing like the children dear," which is also in the 1878 ed. of H. A. & M. A hymn for Lent, "All my sins uprising now," is in the Durham Mission H. Bk., 1885, and others. His fine offertory hymn "Eternal! assembled with songs of thanksgiving," written to Dr. Pykes's tune "St. Leonards," was first sung at a Gregorian Festival in Lichfield Cathedral, and subsequently at Coventry, &c. It is printed in the Lichfield Festival Hk., but is not included in any hymnal. He pub. Hys. and Sonnets, 1890.

Hoffmann, Eliza Albright, author of "Have you been to Jesus for the cleansing power?" (Holiness desired), in L. D. Sankey's Sac. Songs and Solos, 1881, was b. in Pennsylvania, May 7, 1839.

Hols, Samuel Reynolds, D.D., b. at Ardwick, near Manchester, Dec. 5, 1819, and educated at Brasenose College, Oxford; M.A. 1844; D.D. by Abp. of Canterbury, 1897. He was Curate of Causton, Notts, 1844-1850, and Vicar 1850-87. In 1887 he became Dean of Rochester. Previous to this he had held several important appointments. He has pub. some prose works including Hints to Preachers, &c., 1880; A Book about Roses, 1869, &c. His hymn, "Sons of labour, dear to Jesus" (Working Men's Service), appeared in the 1889 Suppl. Hys. to H. A. & M.

Holty, Ludwig H. C., p. 530, l. Concerning the frs. of his hymn "Ueb' immer Treu," we note that No. 1 is found in the German Songster, Berlin, 1798, p. 13; No. 2 is by Joseph Gottick, in his Spirit of German Poetry, 1848, p. 139.

Holy Father, hear me. Bp. E. H. Rickersteth. (Morning). Written in 1861, and pub. in his From Year to Year, 1883, p. 145; and the Hg. Comp., 1890.

Holy Jesus, Saviour blest, p. 531, l. This hymn was 1st pub. in Bp. Mant's Holidays of the Church, vol. I. 1830, and then in his Ancient Hys., &c., 1837.

Holy Saviour, Thou hast told us. [Divine Worship]. From the S. S. Union Hymns, 1841.

Holy Source of consolation. [Whitsuntide]. Anon. from B. W. Noel's Sol., 1832.

Home at last, thy labour done. J. D. Sankey. [Death and Burial]. "Written on the dying words of a young convert (Maggie Lindsay), who lost her life in the railroad catastrophe at Manuel, Jan. 27, 1874." Included with a note in his Sac. S. and Solos, 1876.

Home Dei creatura, p. 530, l. From Caswall's fr., "Creature of God, &c." three cantos are given in the

R. C. Parochial H. Bk., 1880, as (1) "When to the silence of the tomb;" (2) "The angels, while with tearful eyes;" (3) "Alas! what tongue of man can speak."

Hone, William, 1780-1842, is given in The Church Praise Hk., N.Y., 1882, as the author of "The proudest heart that ever beat" (Salvation), therein.

Hope, Alexander James Beresford, LL.D., b. Jan. 25, 1820, educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, was M.P. for his University for several years, and d. Oct. 20, 1887. He is connected with hymnology through his Hys. of the Church, literally translated, for the use of English congregations. Lond., J. & F. Rivington, 1844. None of these frs. have come into C. U. See Index of Authors and Translators. In the Cambridge University Calendar he is entered as "Alexander James Beresford Beresford-Hope."

Hope, Henry Joy McCracken, a bookbinder, s. of James Hope, was b. near Belfast, Ireland, in 1809; was in the employ of Messrs. Chambers, Dublin, for many years, and d. at Shanemagowston, Dunadry, County Antrim, Ireland, Jan. 19, 1872. His hymn, "Now I have found a Friend" (Jesus the Friend) was privately printed in 1852. It seems to have been suggested by Mrs. Bowler's "Pass away, earthly joy" (p. 162, l.), st. iv. of which is sometimes associated with it.

Hopkins, John Henry, D.D., Jun., s. of J. H. Hopkins, sometime Bishop of Vermont, was b. at Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 28, 1820, educated at the University of Vermont, ordained in 1839, Rector of Christ's Church, Williamsport, Pa., 1876, and d. at Troy, New York, Aug. 18, 1891. He pub. Poems by the Wayside written during more than Forty Years, N.Y., James Pott, 1883; and Carols, Hymns, and Songs, 1882; 3rd ed. 1892. Of his hymns the following are in C. U.:

1. Blow on, thou [ye] mighty Wind. Missions.
2. Come with us, O blessed Jesus. Holy Communion.
3. Glory to God the Father be. (Dated 1867.) Holy Trinity.
4. God hath made the moon whose beam. (Dated 1840.) Duty.
5. Lord, now round Thy Church behold. (Dated 1867.) For the Re-union of Christendom.

These hymns are in his Poems by the Wayside, 1883. In the same volume there are frs. of the O Antiphona. See pp. 73-74.

Hora novissima, tempora pessima, p. 533, l. It is also in the Brit. Mus. Mss. Graecopatra, A. viii., f. 5 (circa 1100), and Harl. 4092 f. 40 b (12th cent.); the Bibl. Nat. Paris Mss. Lat. 14066 of the 12th cent., and others of later date. The complete text is also in T. Wright's Anglo-Latin Satirical Poets, Lond. 1872, ll. pp. 5-102. Centon from Dr. Neale's fr. of the poem, additional to those given on p. 534, include:—

1. To thee, O better country. In the Salisbury H. Bk., 1857.
2. O sweet and blessed country. In Hys. & Songs of Praise, N. Y., 1874.
3. Jerusalem the holy. In T. Hartley's Hys., 1890.
4. The world is old and sinful. In the Bap. Hym., 1879.

Horne, Thomas Hartwell, M.D. (p. 534, ll. 13), b. Oct. 20, 1780, was for some years a member of the Wesleyan Society; took Holy Orders in 1819; Rector of St. Edmund the King with St. Nicholas Acon, London, 1833; and d. Jan. 27, 1862. A catalogue of his prose works is long and interesting. (See old eds. of Truckford.) He was a friend and pupil of Dr. Adam Clarke, the Commentator.

Horologion. The. See Greek Hymnody, § xiv. (7).

Hort, Fenton John Anthony, D.D., was b. Ap. 23, 1820, and educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, M.A. in 1st class Classical Tripos, 1850, and also in the Moral Science Tripos and the Natural Science Tripos, 1851. He has held several distinguished appointments at his University, has pub. several learned works, was joint editor with Dr. Westcott of The New Testament in the Original Greek, and sat as one of the Revision Committee of the New Testament. He has fr. a few hymns, for which see Index of Authors and Translators.

Hosanna be the children's song. J. Montgomery. [Sunday M. Jubilee]. Written for the London Sunday S. Jubilee. It is No. 325 of Montgomery's orig. Hys., 1853, in 7 st. of 4 l. In the American Sabbath H. Bk., 1858, it begins "Hosanna be our cheerful song," sta. l., III.-v.

Hoskins, J., p. 534, ll. Additional pieces from his Hymns, &c., 1789, in C. U., in America include:—(1) "Let thoughtless thousands choose the road" (Life in Christ), p. 312; (2) "To-day the Saviour rose" (Master), p. 384; (3) "Behold, behold the Lamb of God" (Invitation), p. 342.

Hutton, William Pepperrell, sometime Vicar of St. Bridget's, Chester, b. Aug. 1, 1804, d. Aug. 1; 1856. His hymn, "Child of sorrow, born, forsaken" (Comfort in Affliction) appeared in Drummond & Greville's Ch. of England H. Bk., 1834.

Hymnarium. In regard to the ms. (f.) at p. 547 we would add:—The two ms. at Dublin are (a) that in Trinity College, and (b) that in the Franciscan Convent (St. Isidore's). On a recent visit to Ireland the Rev. G. M. Dreves, S.J. (see p. 563, i., &c.) kindly collated both ms. Besides the hymns indexed at pp. 547–551, they contain also:—

1. "Abbas probatus omnino." 2. "Adenai Domine."
3. "Alto et ineffabili." 4. "Christe qui lux es et dies."
5. "Christi Patria in dextera." 6. "Ecce fulget clarissima." 7. "Hymnum dicat turba fratrum." 8. "Procelli diem fert orbita."

Of these No. 7 is contained in both ms.; Nos. 1, 2, 3, 6, 8 only in a; Nos. 4, 5 only in b. No. 2 is marked as the "Lamentatio S. Ambrosii Episcopi," and is an alphabetical hymn in rhythmical prose.

Another ms. of interest has been collated since this article was electrotyped, viz., the Arundel 155 in the Brit. Mus. This contains, at ff. 147–152, a Hymnarium written in England in the 12th cent. The hymns therein contained are all indexed at pp. 547–551, except the following:—

1. "Iustus tan en coelestia." 2. "Festa presentia celebrat diel." 3. "Pauditor mundus simul omnis illi." 4. "Per te nitecat Rex Deus." All of these are noted at pp. 551–554, but from later ms.

Note also that at p. 548 the hymn contained in the ms. b. is the Christe Redemptor omnium, Omnes (not Christe... Ex Patre). At p. 551, under (u) read "a Hymnarium of circa 1350."

Hymnum canentes, p. 555, i. Read tr. No. 3 thus:—
"A voice from Ramah there was sent."

O. P." These initials are supposed to belong to a member of the Parr family of whom Miss Harriet Parr (Edme Lee) was one.

I trust in One I never saw. [Psalm.] In G. W. Conder's 1874 Appx. to the Leeds H. Bk., 1863, this is signed "W. Dearu."

I walk as one who knows that he is treading. [Forward.] Pub. in his Hys. of Faith and Hope, 1857, in 7 st. of 4 l.

I want to be an angel, p. 559, i. Hensleigh Buttrworth gives in his work, The Story of the Hymns, N. Y., 1876, p. 151, the date April 19, 1845, as the day of the death of the child, and the child's name as Annie Louisa Farrant.

Ida, George Barton, D.D., p. 561, i. Dr. Burrage gives in his Baptist H. Writers, 1888, p. 308, a list of Dr. Ida's hymns, and states that he was b. Sep. 17, 1804. This date must be substituted for 1806 on p. 561, i.

If I in Thy likeness, O Lord, may awake. [The Resurrection.] Anon. in Pious Songs, &c., Baltimore, 1836, No. 482.

Immanuel! sunk with dreadful woe. [Gethsemane.] Anon. in the 1800 ed. of Hippon's Bap. Sel., No. 135.

Immortal honour, endless fame. This is the concluding stanza of Dryden's tr. of the "Veni Creator Spiritus," noted at p. 1210, i., 3.

In der Angst der Welt, p. 1079, i. This hymn was first pub. in the Christliche Monatschrift, May, 1826.

In His own raiment clad. K. Munro. [Story of the Cross.] This Story of the Cross, by Munro, with music by A. Redhead, was pub. by Masters & Co., of London, and is still on sale (1891) in sheet form. Edward Munro was the eldest s. of Edward Munro, M.D., of London, and was b. in 1815. He was educated at Oriel College, Oxford (B.A. 1836). Ordained in 1837, he became incumbent of Harrow-Wend in 1842, and Vicar of St. John's, Leeds, 1860. He d. Dec. 13, 1866. He pub. several Allegories, Sermons, and other works which have mainly gone out of use.

In seasons of grief to my God I'll repair. [Christ the Rock.] This is No. 200 in John Stamp's Christian's Spiritual Song Bk., 1845, in 6 st. of 4 l. Daniel Sedgwick ascribes it to the "Rev. John Price, 1805."

In some way or another the Lord will provide. [Providence.] This hymn, by E. D. Martha Cook, see Walker, b. July 23, 1806, d. Sep. 15, 1874, was pub. circa 1864, and is found in I. D. Sankey's Sacred S. & Solos, 1878.

In the fair morning of our youth. [Early Piety.] Anon. in Allen's Children's Worship, 1878.

In the mid silence of the voiceless night. [Midnight.] This beautiful lyric is known in the following forms:—
1. In Fosbery's Hys. and Poems for the Sick and Suffering, 1844, it begins:—

"In the mid silence of the voiceless night,
When chased by airy dreams the slumbers flee."

This in Thring's Coll., 1882, No. 19, for Private Use.
2. This second form is No. 1278 in H. W. Beecher's Plymouth Coll., 1886, in 4 st. of 4 l., beginning:—

"In silence of the voiceless night,
When chased by dreams, the slumbers flee."

3. The third form is in the American Unitarian Hys. of the Spirit, 1864, No. 186, in 4 st. of 4 l., as:—

"In the still silence of the voiceless night,
When from my wakeful eyes the slumbers flee."

4. The fourth form is in Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1873, No. 596:—

"In the dead silence of the voiceless night."

It is composed of the Hys. of the Spirit text, and st. iii. of No. 1 as above as st. iii.

In the name of God the Father. J. W. Hewitt. p. 530, ii. This hymn is not in his Vernes, &c., 1859, but in the People's H., 1867.

Bk.*, 1880, is composed of i. iv.-vii. and x. of Pt. 3; st. i. of Pt. 4; and st. ii. of Pt. 5 in the order named. Another cento from Faber is in the H. Bk. for the use of Wellington College Chapel, 1863. It begins "Jesu! Who saw'st on one sad night," and is formed of st. iv.-vi. and ix. of Pt. 3; and st. ii. of Pt. 4, slightly altered.

Jes-Blake, T. W., p. 603, ii. Dr. Jes-Blake succeeded the late Dr. Plimptre as Dean of Wells in Feb., 1891.

Johnson, Catherine. wife of the Rev. Herrick Johnson, D.D., a Presbyterian minister in Chicago, is the author of "An earthly temple here we build" [Laying Foundation Stone of a Place of Worship], which in Hatfield's Church Hys., N. Y., 1872, is dated 1866. Another hymn by this author is given in an abridged form in Stryker's Church Song, N. Y., 1889, as "The whole wide world for Jesus." Sometimes dated May 9, 1872.

Johnson, Nathaniel Emerson. b. 1864, d. 1847. A hymn by this writer is given in The Church Praise Bk., 1882, under the date of 1832, as "Christ had His sorrows when He shed" (Christ, our Brother). The same hymn is given in Heard's Unitarian Coll. of Hys., Lond., 1837, No. 162, as from the Christian Register.

Johnston, James Aithen. p. 605, i. He d. Aug. 29, 1871, aged 63.

Join all the human race. Part of "Glory to God on high," p. 428, ii.

Jonas, Justus. p. 605, ii. At lines 6-12 it is stated that he adopted the name of Jonas in 1519. In the Wittenberg Matriculation Album his name appears in 1511 as "Jodocus Jonas of Nordhausen." He was thus known as Jonas as early as 1511.

Jonas, Edmund. p. 605, ii. In The Church Bk., by L. W. Bacon, N. Y., 1883, No. 279 begins with st. ii. of Jones's hymn, "Come, humble sinner, &c.," and begins:—"I'll go to Jesus, though my sin." Also note that in that article the words "author of No. 333," should read "author of No. 355."

Jones, Samuel F., p. 606, i. We find that his hymn, "Father of life, confessing," was pub. with Turle's music in Feb., 1866.

Jenson, Ben. p. 606, i. His "Hymn to God the Father," beginning "Hear me, O God, A broken heart," is in Thring's coll., 1882, in an abridged form.

Jocelyne, M. Under this name, "As the rosy tint of dawning" (Morning) was given in the S. S. U. Songs of Gladness, 1871.

Jubileus omnes una. p. 608, i. This is also found in several early mss. in the Bibl. Nat., Paris, including Lat. 1118, circa 980; Lat. 1240, in a hand of the end of the 11th cent., and others. See G. M. Dreyer's Prosarium Lemovicense, 1890, p. 33. Note also that Dayman's tr. should read, "Honour . . . and praise."

Judge me, O Lord, I've walked in mine integrity. H. Bonar. (Ps. xvi.) Appeared in his Hys. of Faith and Hope, 1866.

Judkin, T. J., p. 608, ii. The following of his hymns are also in C. U.:—(1) "Throu'd high is Jesus now" (Ascension); and (2) "When darkness reign'd o'er Egypt round" (Light in Darkness).

Judson, Emily, nee Chubbuck, who wrote under the nom de plume of "Fanny Forester," was b. of very poor parents at Eaton, Central New York, Aug. 22, 1817. She was self-educated, and displayed literary power at an early age. In 1846 she became the third wife of Dr. A. Judson (p. 609, i.), and sailed with him from America for Burma the same year. She d. at Hamilton, New York, June 1, 1884.

Several of her pieces are in The Day-spring: Hym. Old & New, 1878; Wreath of Praise; and Gospel Choir, 1887 (Paisley, J. & R. Parlane).

Methodist Hymnody, pp. 726-728. Recent publications include:—

1. Lyric Studies, &c. By I. Dorricott and T. Collins, Lond., 1889. This is a hand-book to the Prim. Meth. Hym., 1867. The biographical and illustrative Notes are well done, but its hymnological criticism is weak.
2. Methodist Free Church Hymns, Lond., 1889. From the denominational standpoint this is a good collection, and well edited.
3. The General Hymnary for Missions and Special Services, Lond., 1889. "Compiled by a Sub-Committee of the General Book Committee" of the Wesleyan Conference. Of the usual missionary character, without any features of special merit or excellence.

Mighty God, while angels bless Thee. R. Robinson. [Glory of God. Christmas.] Miller, in his Singers and Songs of the Church, 1869, p. 267, says that Robinson in his ms. Catalogue thus refers to this hymn as "A Christmas Hymn, set to music by Dr. Randall, and, with the notes, engraven on a copperplate half-sheet." The date added by Miller is 1774. The hymn is in J. Middleton's Hymns, 1793, No. 137, in 9 st. of 4 l., with the refrain "Hallelujah, H. H. Amen," and the signature "Robinson." This text differs slightly from that given by Burrage in his Hap. Hymn Writers, &c., 1888, pp. 73, 74, which he regards as the original. (See also the Universalist H. Bk., Boston, U. S. A., 1792.) Dr. Reicher (p. 133, l.) says the hymn was written by Robinson for Benjamin Williams, sometime deacon of the Baptist Church, Reading, England, when the latter was a boy, and asserts that he had the information from Williams himself. The hymn is widely used, as is also the cento therefrom from "Lord of every land and nation." (See Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, for full text.)

Miller, Emily, nee Huntington, daughter of the Rev. Thomas Huntington, D.D., was b. at Brooklyn, Connecticut, Oct. 23, 1833; and was subsequently married to Professor Miller. Mrs. Miller is joint editor of The Little Corporal, pub. at Chicago, in which several of her poetical pieces appeared. Of her hymns the most widely known are:—

1. Enter Thy temple, glorious King. Opening of a Place of Worship. This was written for the opening of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at Akron, Ohio, 1861; previously printed for private circulation in his Hymns of the Latin Church, Translated by David T. Morgan, with the Originals appended, 1871.

Morice, Francis David, M.A., was b. in 1849; educated at New College, Oxford; ordained in 1873; and became assistant master at Rugby in 1874. To the 1876 ed. of Hymns for the Use of Rugby School he contributed (1) "Give ear unto my cry" (Ps. lxi.); and (2) "O Lord, my God! if fear or shame" (St. Peter).

Morris, David, of Lledrod, pub. in 1773, a collection of hymns under the title of Sin y Pererision, or The Pilgrim's Song. He d. in 1791.

Morris, Robert, LL.D., b. Aug. 31, 1818, in a member of the Presbyterian Church, and an extensive writer on Freemasonry. In 1868 he visited the Holy Land on behalf of the Freemasons of America, the outcome of which was his work, Freemasonry in the Holy Land. He is the author of some 300 poetical pieces. One of these, "Each gentle dove and sighing bough" (Freemasonry), is in H. R. Palmer's Songs of Love for the Bible School, 1874, Sankey's Sac. Songs and Solos, 1881, &c.

Mortal, if e'er thy spirits faint. Cardinal Newman. The Shadow of a Guild. Written "Off Pantelmaria, December 1832," and pub. in the Lyra Apostolica, 1836, p. 23 (ed. 1879, p. 23), in 3 st. of 4 l. Also in Card. Newman's Verses on Various Occasions, 1868, p. 91.

Memorable Breviary, p. 170, ii.

Mosley, Harriet, nee Newman, sister of Cardinal Newman, and wife of the Rev. Thomas Mosley, d. in 1882. In 1835 she pub. Hymns for Children on the Lord's Prayer, Our Duty towards God, and Scripture History. It reached a 6th ed. in 1856. It contained 28 hymns. From that volume—(1) "Think upon Eve and Adam's sin," Seagayima; (2) "When safely on dry land once more," Quinquaginta, were included with alterations in the Child's Christian Year, 1841, and are sometimes found in other works. See also Litanies, No. 8.

Much in sorrow, oft in wee, p. 773, ii. From this "Christian, let your heart be glad," is taken.

Mudie, Charles E., p. 774, i. He d. at 31, Marefield Gardens, Hampstead, Oct. 28, 1890. His hymn, "I lift my heart to Thee, &c.," was written in Oct., 1871.

Must I be carried to the skies? A cento from "Am I a soldier of the Cross," p. 65, ii.

Must Jesus bear the cross alone? [No Cross no Crown.] This hymn is found in the following forms:—

1. In 3 st. of 4 l. in H. W. Beecher's Plymouth Coll., 1855, No. 70, where it is signed "G. N. Allen." American authorities inform us that this was taken from G. N. Allen's collection The Social and Sabbath H. Hk., 1849. In this form st. i. is altered from T. Shepherd's Penitential (vers), 1693, No. 23, st. iii., and st. ii. is found in a missionary collection pub. at Norwich (England), circa 1810. To these three stanzas three others were added in the Plymouth Coll., which are ascribed to the editor's brother, C. Beecher (p. 125, ii.).

2. In the American Meth. Episc. Hyl., 1878, the 3 st. from Allen's collection as above are given us by "Thomas Shepherd, alt." G. N. Allen was b. in 1812, and d. in 1877.

3. In the Oberlin Manual of Praise, 1880, No. 416 is composed of 4 st., of which st. ii. is unknown to the Plymouth Coll.

My faith shall triumph o'er the grave. From "Great God I own Thy sentence just," p. 137, No. 60.

My Father, when I hear Thy voice. This hymn is No. 65, in 3 st. of 8 l., in the Songs of Zion. A Sel. of Hymns for Pub. Worship. Alphabetically arranged. By the Rev. Isaac Ashe. 3rd ed. enlarged. Dublin Tract Repository, n.d.

My God, is any hour so sweet, p. 780, i. In Elliott's Ps. & Hymns, 1835, No. 284.

My God, my Father, let me rest. Bp. E. H. Ricker-steth. [Spiritual Service.] Written in 1891 for the Church of England Sunday S. Institute. Pub. in his From Year to Year, 1893, p. 180, and his Hym. Comp., 1890.

My God, my grateful heart I'll raise. (Daily Prayer.) From the Magdalene Coll., 1761, p. 116.

My God! though cleaving to the dust. [Lent.] This fr. from Adrien Rolander's "Seigneur! du sein de la poussière," is from H. Downton's Hym. and Verses, 1873.

My harp untuned, and laid aside. J. Newton. [Hoping for a Revival.] Appeared in the Olney Hymns, 1779, Bk. ii., No. 82, in 7 st. of 4 l., and headed, "Hoping for a Revival." From it the hymn "While I to it my soul gave way," sometimes "While to its grief my soul gave way," beginning with st. iv., is taken. In the Preface to the Olney Hymns Newton says: "My grief and disappointment [at the downfall of Cowper's health and mind] were great; I hung my harp upon the willows, and for some time thought myself determined to proceed [with hymn-writing] no farther without him. Yet my mind was afterwards led to resume the service." On comparing this extract with this hymn it seems very probable that this was his first effort after resuming his sometime abandoned work.

My hiding-place, my Refuge Tower. Part of "Begin, my tongue, some heavenly theme," p. 126, ii.

My Lord, my God, my Love. (Christ All in All.) From the Catholic Choralist, 1842.

My opening eyes with rapture see. [Sunday Morning.] Usually attributed to J. Hutton (p. 645, ii.). Duffield (Eng. Hym., 1886) says it is in the Appendix to D. Benham's Memoirs of Hutton, 1856, but we have failed to find it in any English edition of that work. It is in J. Codman's Boston Coll., 1813, in 6 st. Its modern form of 4 st. is from the American Prayer Bk. Coll., 1826.

My son, give me thine heart, and let. J. Montgomery. [Sunday S. Anniversary.] Written for the Sheffield Wesleyan Red Hill Sunday S. Anniversary, held on March 9, 1834.

My son, know thou the Lord. [Early Pasty Enforced.] Anon. In Rebecca Wilkinson's Short Sermons to Children, &c., circa 1795 (see p. 1033, ii.) at the end of Ser. xvi. In J. Benson's Hymns for Children and Young Persons, &c., 1816, No. 64, it is given with others as by "Brackenbury." As this was four years before R. C. Brackenbury's death (see p. 106, i.), and both he and Watson were Wesleyan ministers, and well known to each other, we hold this to be good proof of Brackenbury's authorship.

My soul and all its powers. A cento from "God of my life, to Thee," p. 435, ii.

My soul doth long for Thee. An altered form of "My spirit longeth for Thee," p. 783, i.

My soul, praise the Lord, speak good of his Name. [Ps. ciii.] This in Kennedy, 1863, No. 1023, is an altered form of W. Kethe's paraphrase of Ps. 104, in the O. V.

My spirit to Thy chastening stroke. J. D. Burns. [Submission.] From his Vision of Prophecy, &c., enlarged ed., 1858.

Myriads of spirits round the throne. B. Beddome. [The Church Triumphant.] Appeared in R. Hall's posthumous edition of Beddome's Hymns, &c., 1817, No. 676, in 5 st. of 4 l. Sometimes given as "A host of spirits round the throne."

Mysteria, and Miracle Plays, p. 907, ii.

Mysterious Presence, Source of all. [Before Sermon.] This hymn in the American Unitarian Hy. (4 Tune) Book, 1868, is attributed therein to "S. C. Beach."

Nathan, El: or El Nathan, a nom de plume of D. W. Whittle, q.v.

Naar, Elias Eikildsen, sometime Professor in the Gymnasium, Odense, Funen, Denmark, who d. in 1724, was the author of "Naar min Tunge ikke mere" (Death Anticipated), fr. by S. Baring-Gould in the People's Hyl., 1867, as "When my tongue can no more utter."

Neale, Cornelius, M.A., s. of James Neale, of St. Paul's Churchyard, was b. Aug. 12, 1789, and educated at St. John's, Cambridge; M.A. 1811; Sen. Wrangler; Fellow of St. John's, 1813; M.A. 1815. He took Holy Orders in 1822, and became Curate of Mildenhall, near Newmarket. He d. Aug. 4, 1823. His Lyrical Dramas, with Domestic Hours, a Miscellany of Tales and Songs, were pub. in 1819, and his Memoirs and Remains in 1834. In the latter the following hymns are found:—(1) "And Thou dost still forgive" (Pardon), 1820; (2) "O happy land above, My soul would fain be there" (Heaven desired); (3) "'Tis but a film of flesh divides" (Heaven anticipated). The second and third of these hymns are also in his son's (Dr. J. M. Neale's) Hym. Chiefly Met. on the Joys & Glories of Paradise, 1865.

Near the cross our station taking. From "Near the Cross was Mary weeping," p. 1004, l. 6.

Newman, John Henry, p. 622, ii. He d. at Edgbaston, Birmingham, Aug. 11, 1890.

Newton, J., p. 663, i. Another hymn in C. V. from the Olney Hymns, 1779, is "Let me dwell on Golgotha" (Holy Communion).

Nicholas, T. G., p. 304, ll., d. at West Molesey, Jan. 23, 1891.

Nicholson, James, an American Methodist minister, is the author of (1) "Dear [Lord] Jesus I long to be perfectly whole" (Holiness desired); and (2) "There's a beautiful land on high" (Heaven), both of which are in I. D. Sankey's Sac. S. and Solos, 1878.

Nisoll, Robert, was b. Jan. 7, 1814, at Auchtergaven, Perthshire. At the age of 13 he began to write verse. In 1835 he opened a circulating library in Dundee, and in the following year he became the editor of the Leeds Times. This he retained for a short time only. Broken in health through taxing his strength too much, he d. in 1837. He was a successful writer, and is often referred to as "a second Burns." His Poems and Lyrics were pub. in 1838; 2nd ed., with numerous additions and Memoir, 1842; 3rd ed. 1862. From these Poems the following pieces are taken:—

1. An offering to the shrine of power. The Reformers. 2. I may not scorn the meanest thing. Humility. This and No. 1 date 1833.

3. Lord, from Thy blessed throne. (People's Anthem.) (1842.)

Miles, Nathaniel, was b. Sept. 15, 1836, and educated for the legal profession. He practiced at Providence, Rhode Island. His hymn, "Precious promise God hath given" (Promises of Rest), was written whilst travelling in a street car, circa 1871, and is given in I. D. Sankey's Sacred Songs and Solos, 1878.

No need of the sun in that day. Part of C. Wesley's "Away with our sorrow and fear," p. 104, ll.

No room for mirth or trifling here. Part of "And am I only born to die?" p. 63, ll.

Noel, Caroline Maria, daughter of the Hon. Gerard T. Noel (p. 309, ll.), and niece of the Hon. Baptist W. Noel, was b. in London, April 10, 1817, and d. at 39 Great Cumberland Place, Hyde Park, Dec. 7, 1877. Her first hymn, "Draw nigh unto my soul" (Indwelling), was written when she was 17. During the next three years she wrote about a dozen pieces: from 20 years of age to 40 she wrote nothing; and during the next 20 years the rest of her pieces were written. The first edition of her compositions was pub. as The Name of Jesus and Other Verses for the Sick and Lonely, in 1861. This was enlarged from time to time, and its title subsequently changed by the publishers to The Name of Jesus and Other Poems. The 1876 ed. contains 78 pieces. Miss Noel, in common with Miss Charlotte Elliott, was a great sufferer, and many of these verses were the outcome of her days of pain. They are specially adapted "for the Sick and Lonely" and were written rather for private meditation than for public use, although several are suited to the latter purpose. Her best known hymn is the Processional for Ascension Day, "At the Name of Jesus." It is in the enlarged edition of The Name of Jesus, &c., 1870, p. 59, and is dated 1870 by her family.

Norman, John, was a student at the Baptist College, Bristol, and entered the Baptist ministry, as assistant to D. Turner, in 1777. He was afterwards, for a short time, assistant to the Rev. P. Gibbs, of Plymouth, in which town he d. in the spring of 1782. In Rippon's Bap. Mel., 1787, appeared a hymn on Holy Baptism, "Thus it became the Prince of grace," in 4 st. of 6 l., and signed "Norman." It is still in use in its full or in an abbreviated form. [W. R. S.]

Not all the powers of hell can fright. Part of "Are there not in the labourer's day?" p. 76, ll.

Not far from Jordan's ford. Hp. E. H. Bickersteth. [St. Andrew.] Written in 1883. In his From Year to Year, 1883, and his Hy. Comp., 1890.

Not heaven's wide range of hallowed space. [Opening of a Place of Worship.] Sometimes attributed to C. Wesley, but on insufficient evidence.

Not in the Churchyard shall he sleep. [Burial at Sea.] ANON. in the Amer. Cheshire Association Unitarian Hys., 1844, and later collections.

Not till the freezing blast is still. J. Keble. [The Church and Mission Work.] Written Jan. 20, 1824, and pub. in his Christian Year, 1827, for the 2nd S. in Advent. The concluding 12 lines, beginning "Ye who your Lord's commission bear," are in the Leeds H. Bk., 1853, and others.

Not to mount Zion's [Babel's] flaming height. Part of J. Bowdler's "Children of God, who pacing slow," p. 166, l. 2.

Now let the Christian's hope abound. [Confidence and Hope.] This appeared in Hall's Mitre H. Bk., 1836, No. 135, in 4 st. of 4 l., and again in several later collections. It is usually ascribed to E. Oster. Hall miss. It is given as by Doddridge, but we cannot find anything corresponding thereto in his Hymns.

Now let us raise our voices high. Miss [Harvey]. From the Evang. Mag., 1796, p. 540, under Bap. Ps. & Hys., 1856, and later collection, as by Miss Gager, several of whose hymns were pub. in the Evng. Mag., 1796, &c., as by Ellis. She was married, in 1798, to the Rev. William Cooper.

Now the busy week is done. S. J. Jones. [Singing Evening.] Contributed to the 1880 Suppl. Hy. to A. & M. The author, Spencer John Jones, was educated at Worcester College, Oxford, and became Rector of Batsford, Gloucestershire, in 1867.

Now to the Lamb that once was slain. Part of "Hold the glories of the Lamb," p. 136, ll.

Now to the shining seats of bliss. A cento by "Come, Lord, and warm each languid heart," p. 116, ll.

Now winter holds his solemn reign. Four. ANON. in Hys. and Sac. Songs, &c., by G. Bickersteth, others, Manchester, 1856, No. 126, in 6 st. of 4 l., marked as "Original." It has passed into a few collections, but its use is by no means equal to its merit.

Nun ruhen alle Wälder, p. 323, l. The text: "All the woods are sleeping," in the Hys. for the First Sherburne School, 1889, is Miss Winkworth's version of four or five lines from E. Thüning's Dr. of the war hymn. Both trs. are noted on p. 323, ll.

Nune Dimittis, p. 323, ll. See also pp. 686, 736, 861, 868, 886, 926, 1177.

O

O beata Hierusalem, p. 324, ll. The tr. in the Supplemental Hys. to H. A. & M., "O Jerusalem so blissful," is by J. Ellerton.

O blast memorial of our dying Lord. Part of By Woodford's tr. of "Adoro te devote," p. 22, ll. &

O Christ, Thou hast ascended. Hp. E. H. Bickersteth. [Ascension.] Written in 1872, and printed in the Record newspaper of the same year. Included in the Hy. Comp. in 1876.

O Christus qui noster poli, p. 325, l. In Martineau's Hymns, &c., 1873, J. Chandler's tr. of this hymn is altered to "The Crucified is gone before" (the tr. thereon, p. 308, ll. 1, is an error); and in Chope's Hys., 1862, l. Williams's tr. reads, "O Thou, Who art gone up on high."

O come, let us raise Our tribute of song. J. Montgomery. [Sunday S. Anniversary.] Written for the Sheffield Wesleyan Sunday S. Anniversary, held April 1, 1821. It is No. 336 of Montgomery's Orig. Hys., 1816.

O comrade bold of toil and pain. Chad. Newman. [St. Paul.] In the British Mag., 1833, p. 266; the Lyr. Apostolic, 1834, p. 214; Martineau's Hymns, 1874, &c.

O could we always pray. This is part of C. Wesley's "Ab, when shall I awake?" p. 32, ll.

O covenant Angel, full of grace. P. R. Bell. [Circumcision.] 1st pub. in E. Bickersteth's Christian Psalmodist, 1833, No. 318, in 6 st. of 4 l., in the author's Companion Psalter, 1874, and in several other hymns. In the 1890 ed. of the Hy. Comp. it is altered to "Word Incarnate, full of grace."

O day of God, most calm, most bright. From "Bless day of God, most calm, most bright," p. 149, l.

O Deus ego amo Te. Nam prior Te amabam, p. 326, l. We find that this hymn is a paraphrase of a prayer in St. Ignatius Loyola's Exercitia Spirituales, and in the 1st ed. Rome, 1548 [Brit. Mus.] which is found on the last leaf of sheet 1. The prayer is part of the "Contemplatio ad amorem spiritalem in sollicitudinem," and runs thus:—

"Suscipe Domine universam meam libertatem. Accipe memoriam, intellectum, siquid voluntatis omnem. Quicquid habeo, vel poscides, mihi largire: id tibi totum restitua, ac tuas preces voluntatis trado gubernandum. Amorem tui solum, cum gratia tua, mihi dones: et dives sum satis: nec aliud quam ultra posco."

O Deus ego amo Te, Nec amo Te ut salves me, p. 326, ll. Other translations are:—

1. O God, my God, I do love Thee. In the Sabbath H. Bk., 1867.

2. O God, Thou art the object of my love. In the Roman Hyd., N. Y., 1864.

3. O God, I love Thee; not that my poor love. By Hp. E. H. Bickersteth; printed by J. Townsend, Exeter. "For use in the Diocese of Exeter." [Record, Feb. 2, 1869.] It was repeated in the 1890 ed. of the H. Comp., together with the Latin text in the Notes to the same.

4. O God, my spirit loves but Thee. By H. W. Longfellow in his Outre-Mer, Lond., 1835, li. p. 106.

5. I love Thee, O most gracious Lord. In the Songs of Promise and Poems of Devotion, Philadelphia, 1866, as by C. C. Cox.

6. My God, I love Thee, not to gain. In the Church Quarterly, April, 1869.

7. O God, I love Thee not with love. Francis Pott, in the Guardian, Nov. 13, 1880.

O du Liebe meiner Liebe, p. 237, li. To the note in small type (ending "in Silesia") add:—It is found in the no. 2183 of the Breslau Town Library. Professor Dr. Markgraf, the librarian, has kindly informed me that this ms. is evidently of about the middle of the 17th cent., and bears on its first page the inscription, "Der Hochwohlgebornen Freyle Freyle Elisabeth v. Senitz geistliche Arien und Sonette mit Ihrer eigenen Hand geschrieben, durch besondere Gültigkeit der hochwobl. Freyle, Freyle Sophia Elisabeth v. Senitz im Jahr 1735 erhalten. Jo. Casp. Arlet, von Breslau." From this it is at least evident that Arlet in 1735 regarded it as an autograph, and as consisting of original pieces by Elisabeth von Senitz. [J. M.]

O Father, in Whose great design. S. J. Stone. [Temperance.] Contributed to the 1890 Suppl. Hys. to H. A. & M.

O Father, let me be. W. H. Bathurst [Ps. lxxvii.] From his Ps. & Hys., 1831.

O Father, Who hast given Thine only Son. Rp. E. H. Rickersteth. [H. Communion.] "A hymn especially to be sung at the Holy Communion on Intercession days for Foreign Missions." Written in 1889, and included in the 1890 ed. of the H. Comp. It is based on "The Comfortable Words" of the Communion Service.

O for a sight, a pleasing sight. Part of "Descend from heaven, immortal Dove," p. 280, li.

O God, bow down Thine ear to earth. F. Hall. [Lent, for Children.] Written by Frank Hall, at the age of 16 years, whilst a pupil with the Rev. G. Moultrie, and pub. in the People's H., 1867, under the signature of "F. H."

O God, my God, in mercy hear. [Ps. xlii.] Appeared in Hall's Mitre H. Bk., 1836, and again in Kennedy, 1863.

O God of Israel, hear my prayer. J. Fletcher. [For Divine Protection.] Ascribed to Joseph Fletcher, D.D., sometime minister of the Congregational Church, Stepney, London, who was b. at Chester, Dec. 3, 1784, and d. in London, June 8, 1843.

O God of Love and Power. J. M. Neale. [Morning.] From his Hys. for Children, 1842, No. 15.

O God of our salvation. We thank Thee, &c. W. T. Brooke. [National Hymn.] Contributed to the Meth. S. School H. Bk., 1879.

O God, on Thee we all depend. S. Browne. [Confidence in God the Father.] An altered form of his "Yes, Lord, Thy children may depend," in his Hys. & Songs, 1720, Bk. i., No. 99.

O God, our God, Thou shinest here. Part of "Our God, our God," &c., p. 278, l.

O God, our Strength, our Hope, our Rock. Rp. E. H. Rickersteth. [Holy Baptism.] Written at Penmaenmawr, in 1883; pub. in his From Year to Year, 1883, and the H. Comp., 1890.

O God the strength of every heart. [Faithful Obedience.] This appeared in the Mitre H. Bk., 1836, No. 173. In the Hall ms. it is attributed to "C. Wesley;" but we cannot find anything in the Poetical Works of the Wesleys to justify the ascription.

O God, Thy children gathered here. p. 604, li. Entered as by E. Johnson in error. It is by S. Longfellow, p. 685, li.

O God, Thy grace impart. An altered form of "My faith looks up to Thee," p. 277, l.

O God, to Whom in flesh reveal. C. Wesley. [Jesus Unchanging.] Pub. in Hys. & Sac. Poems, 1749. From it is taken "Jesus, a word, a look from Thee" (P. Works, iv. p. 372).

O grave, thou hast the victory. [Old Age.] Apoc. in Elliott's Ps. & Hys., 1835, the Leeds H. Bk., 1853, &c.

O happy Church, O Bride of heaven. [The Church.] Rewritten from "O happy Church, celestial Bride," in W. Barnes's Sol. of Ps. & Hys., 1833, and 1840, No. 254 in 5 st. of 4 l. As all the hymns in that Sol. are given anonymously, we have no means of determining its authorship. It is probably by Barnes.

O happy soul departed. [Death and Burial.] A cento in the Prim. Meth. Hyl., 1887, thus composed: st. 1., li. 1-4, W. T. Brooke; st. li., li., li. 5-8, iv. from the Wesley P. Works, vi. p. 342, 343; and li., li. 1-4, from the same, v. p. 218. C. Wesley's dates are 1759, and 1749 respectively.

O heaven, abode of saints. Charlotte Elliott. [Heaven anticipated.] Appeared in her brother's Ps. & Hys., 1835, in 4 st. of 6 l.

O hochbeglückte Seele. p. 236, l. This hymn was written in the winter of 1827.

O Holy Father, Who in tender love. Rp. E. H. Rickersteth. [Holy Communion.] Printed for use in the diocese of Exeter, and dated, "January 27th, 1889." (Exeter, J. Townsend.) It is printed as a leaflet, and is accompanied by the following note by the author:—"The structure of this hymn was suggested by Canon Bright's verses, so well known in their abbreviated form, beginning, 'And now, O Father, mindful of the love,' and the hymn was written with the echo of the most beautiful tune, 'Unde et memores,' by W. H. Monk, to which these verses are set in Hymns Ancient and Modern, vibrating in my heart." It was included in the 1890 ed. of the H. Comp. with the above note in a rewritten form, and the addition that fearing some misapprehension might arise he sent a copy to Canon Bright, from whom he received an assurance that he should regard it as a "parallel hymn" to his own. (See p. 1273, li.)

O Holy, holy, holy Lord! Thou God of hosts, &c. From "Thee we adore, eternal Lord," p. 1182, l.

O Holy Spirit, Whom our Master sent. J. Ellerton. [Quinquagesima. Love.] Written for and first pub. in the 1890 ed. of the H. Comp.

O Israel, to thy tents repair. T. Kelly. [Advent.] Given in the 2nd ed. of his Hymns, &c., 1806, in 5 st. of 4 l. In Kennedy, 1863, No. 52, it is in great part rewritten by Dr. Kennedy.

O Jesu, consecrate to God always. Rp. E. H. Rickersteth. [Circumcision.] Written at Penmaenmawr in 1883; pub. in his From Year to Year, 1883, and included in the H. Comp., 1890.

O Jesu, meine Sonne. p. 238, li. We find that this was pub. in the Christliche Monatschrift, Lüneburg, 1826, p. 190, as, "O Jesu, meine Wonne, Die alle Noth verscheucht" (st. l. li. 3, 4, of the 1833 text).

O Jesus, sweetest, holiest name. [Name of Jesus.] Given in the Bap. Ps. & Hys., 1858, as by "John Graham, 1850."

O joy of the justified, joy of the free. Altered form of "O bliss of the purified, bliss of the free," p. 164, li.

O King of glory, come. Altered from B. Francis's "In sweet exalted strains," p. 356, li., in the 1856 ed. of the Cooke & Denton Hymnal, No. 222, in 4 st., with a doxology; and in the 1890 Suppl. to the Bap. Ps. & Hys., without the doxology.

O Light of Light, Whose glory is to dwell. Rp. E. H. Rickersteth. [St. John the Evangelist.] Written at Penmaenmawr in 1883; pub. in his From Year to Year, 1883; and included in the H. Comp., 1890.

O Lord, how infinite Thy love. p. 706, li., 7. Given to H. F. Lyte in error. It is by Miss H. Auber, 1829.

O Lord our God, arise. [Missions.] This is No. 59 in the Tubernacle Coll., 1800 [p. 1077, li.], in 2 st. of 4 l. In Dr. Wardlaw's Sol., 1863, No. 53, it is enlarged to 4 st. of 4 l., a form still retained in modern collections. The hymn is usually attributed to Dr. Wardlaw, but on insufficient evidence.

O Lord, Thy sovereign aid impart. A cento from "Ab, my dear Lord, Whose changeless love," p. 23, li.

O Lord, we now the path retrace. An altered form of "O Lord, when we the path retrace," p. 286, l.

O Lord, with awe the path we trace. An altered form of "O Lord, when we the path retrace," p. 286, l.

O Lord, with toil our days are filled. A. Ainger. [Divine Help Desired.] Written circa 1865, and printed shortly afterwards in the Sunday Mag. Also in Horder's Org. Hys., 1884.

O Love that wilt not let me go. G. Matheson. [Jesus All and in All.] Dr. Matheson says this hymn was "written in the Manse of my former parish (Inneshall, Argyshire) one summer evening in 1882. It was composed with extreme rapidity; it seemed to me that its construction occupied only a few minutes, and I felt myself rather in the position of one who was being dictated to than of an original artist. I was suffering from extreme mental distress, and the hymn was the fruit of pain." (i. ms.) This hymn first appeared in the Church of Scotland magazine, Life and Work, in 1883. From thence it passed into the Scottish Hyl., 1884; and there Onward, holy champion, Run the Christian race. B. H. Kennedy. [Confirmation.] This is given in Scapp's Songs of 17. & 12., 1872, as having been written in 1867. Also in Dr. Kennedy's Occasional Sermons, 1877.

Opie, Amelia. p. 571, l. Another hymn by Mrs. Opie in C. U. is "When the disciples saw their Lord" (Travel by Sea and Land) in Gen. Praise, 1879.

Optatus votis omniaum. p. 578, l. Concerning the frs. of this hymn we note:—(1) "O mighty joy to all our race" in the Hys. & Songs of Praise, N. Y., 1874, begins with st. v. of Mrs. Charles's tr.; (2) "The Lord on high ascends, Once more, &c." in the same collection begins with st. ii. of R. C. Singleton's tr.

Orchard, Edwin John, a chemist at Salisbury, was b. at Whitchurch, Hants, in 1834. In 1869 he pub. a collection of original tunes as Orchard's Supplemental Psalmody. His hymn, "I have a Father up in heaven" (The Divine Father), appeared in W. R. Stevenson's School Hymnal, 1880, and again in other collections. One of his songs, "The Muster Roll," has been widely circulated in the Army. [W. R. S.]

Ossoli, Sarah Margaret, nee Fuller, Marchess, an American Unitarian writer of note, daughter of the Hon. Timothy Fuller, was b. at Cambridgeport, Massachusetts, May 23, 1810, and in after years was engaged for some time in educational work in Boston and Providence. In 1840 she edited the Dial; and in 1847 was married at Rome, to the Marchess Ossoli. On July 16, 1850, she was lost in a shipwreck near New York. Her Memoirs, by R. W. Emerson, W. H. Channing, and J. F. Clarke, appeared in 1851; and her Works in 1874. Her hymn "Jesus, a child His course began" (Christ the Pattern of Childhood), from Life Without and Life Within, 1859, p. 404, is in C. U. in G. Britain and America.

Our Father, guide these streams aright. [Divine Guidance desired.] Given in the Irvingite Hys. for the Use of the Churches, 1864, as by "E. S. 1849."

Our God to heaven ascendeth. W. T. Hooke. [Ascension.] First printed about 1870-73, in the Church Times, in 8 st. of 8 l., and then the Methodist S. S. H. Bk., 1879.

Our heaven is everywhere. [Heaven within Ourselves.] Pub. in the same collection, and with the same signature (Miss Fletcher) as "Think gently of the erring one," p. 1164, ii.

Our life is hid with Christ. Part of "Not to ourselves again," p. 163, l. 70.

Our souls by love together knit. From W. E. Miller's Original and Select Hys., 1802.

Out of the deep I call. Sir H. W. Baker. [Pt. cxxx.] Contributed to the 1868 Appendix to H. A. & M., and since included in several hymn-books. It is a beautiful and tender paraphrase of the Psalm.

Packard, C. M., is the author of "O shadow in the sultry land," in the Unitarian Hys. of the Spirit, 1864, and the Hys. (& Tune) Bk., &c., Boston, U. S., 1868.

Page, Edgar, is set forth in I. D. Sankey's Sacred Songs & Solos, 1878-81, as the author of (1) "I've reached the land of corn and wine" (Peace with God); (2) "Simply trusting every day" (Trust in Jesus).

Paice, Henry, was a Baptist minister at Waddesdon Hill, Bucks, in 1795, and, subsequently, at other places, the last being London. During his residence at Brackley, he pub. a New Sel. of Hys., taken chiefly from the best Periodical Publications, with Additions and Improvements, printed, &c., by W. Smith, Iron bridge. It is undated; but is probably earlier than 1816. One of these, "Great Source of uncreated Light" (Electing Grace), in 6 st., has come down through Denham's Coll., and others to modern hymn-books, in 3 st., as, "Ah! but for free and sovereign grace." [W. R. S.]

Palin, Emily I. J., daughter of the Rev. William Palin, some time Rector of Stifford, Essex, contributed "Where is our Master now?" (Ascension) to O. Shipley's Lyra Messianica, 1864.

Palin, William, who became Rector of Stifford, Essex, in 1834, was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, M.A. 1831, M.A. 1839, and d. Oct. 16, 1882. He pub. several works, and was for some time editor of The Churchman's Magazine. He contributed "He is not here! What words of cheer" (Easter); and "Open! ye gates, for the battle hath ended" (Ascension) to the Lyra Messianica, 1864.

Palmer, Phoebe, an American Methodist, b. 1807, and d. in 1874, wrote "Blessed Bible! how I love thee" (Holy Scriptures), and "O! when shall I sweep through the gates" (Heaven Anticipated). The latter is in I. D. Sankey's Sacred Songs and Solos, 1878.

Palmer, Ray, D.D., p. 577, l. The following original hymns by Dr. Palmer are also in C. U.:—

1. O Rock of Ages, since on Thee . . . Auth. From his Poetical Works, 1876, p. 21, where it is dated 1869. Bp. Bickersteth says "This hymn" . . . is "worthy of Luther." (Note Hys. Comp. ed. 1876.)

2. Thy holy will, my God, be mine. Resignation. From his Hys. of my Holy Hours, &c., 1868, p. 41. Also in his P. Works, 1876, dated 1867.

3. We praise Thee, Saviour, for Thy grace. Holy Communion. From his Hys. and Sac. Pieces, &c., 1866. Also in P. Works, 1876, dated 1864.

Palmer, Roundell, see Selboms, Lord.

Palmer, William, M.A., eldest s. of W. J. Palmer, Rector of Mixbury, Oxford, was b. July 13, 1811, and matriculated at Magdalen College, Oxford, July 27, 1826, aged 15. He graduated M.A. 1831, and M.A. 1833. He subsequently was a Fellow, Bursar, Tutor, and Vice-President of his College; and also held other important appointments both at Oxford and at the University of Durham. He joined the Church of Rome in 1855, and d. April 5, 1879. Mr. Palmer pub. some frs. of Latin hymns as Short Poems and Hymns, the latter mostly Translations, Oxford. Printed by I. Shrimpton, MCCCCLV. A few of these have come into C. U.

Paris Breviary. p. 178, l.; p. 661, ii.

Paris Missal. p. 1042, ii.

Park, Edwards A., D.D., an American Congregational Minister, b. at Providence, Rhode Island, Dec. 29, 1808, was one of the editors of the Sabbath H. Bk., pub. at Andover in 1855, in which the hymn, "Unto the Lord, unto the Lord" (Public Worship), sometimes ascribed to him as in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, was pub. anonymously as No. 37. By all the American hymnological authorities it is still regarded as "Anon." This is strong evidence against Dr. Park's authorship.

Parker, Anna, nee Nesbitt, daughter of W. Nesbitt, was b. at Horsley-on-Tyne in 1828; married in 1851 to the Rev. Dr. Parker (subsequently Minister of the City Temple, London); and d. Sept. 20, 1863. To the Cavendish Hymnal, edited by her husband and the Rev. R. A. Bertram, in 1861, she contributed 18 hymns, all of which are signed as by "Mrs. Parker."

Parker, William Henry, was b. at New Basford, Nottingham, March 4th, 1845. Early in life he began to write verses, and having joined a General Baptist church and become interested in Sunday schools was led to compose hymns for use at anniversaries. Three of these were introduced by his pastor, the Rev. W. R. Stevenson, M.A., into The School Hymnal, 1880, and passed into The Children's Book of Praise, 1881, and other collections. In 1882 Mr. Parker pub. a small volume entitled, The Princess Alice and Other Poems. His hymns in C. U. are:—1. "Children know but little" (God's condescension to the Little Ones). 2. "Holy Spirit, hear us!" (Hymn to the Holy Ghost). 3. "Jesus, I so often need Thee" (A Child's prayer to Christ). [W. R. S.]

Parkinson, William, b. in Frederick County, Maryland, Nov. 8, 1774, entered the Baptist ministry in 1799, was for some time Congress Chaplain, then pastor in New York City, &c. He d. March 9, 1848. He pub. A Sel. of Hys. and S. Songs, 1809 (known as Parkinson's Coll.), and to it contributed 9 hymns (List in Burroughs). Of these "Come, dear brethren in the Saviour" (Prayer Meeting) is still in C. U.

Partridge, Samuel William, publisher of the British Workman and kindred works, is the s. of Samuel Partridge, and was b. in London Nov. 23, 1810. His hymns were pub. in his Important Truths in Simple Verse, 1840; Hymns Worth Remembering, &c. From the former his popular hymn, "How dearly God must love us" (Flower Services) is taken. Another of his hymns in C. U. is, "Thou Who hast in mercy blest" (Morning). This is in The Church S. S. H. Bk., 1868.

Pastore perousse, p. 663, ii. In the Paris Brev., 1660, Rom. p. 320.

Patrick, St., p. 665, ii. (1) In the Oxford University Herald of April 6, 1889, is an anonymous paraphrase in 7 st. of 4 l. of a portion of "St. Patrick's Hymn," beginning—

"Father, Son, and Holy Ghost!
May Thine overshadowing might Be as armor to my soul,
Be my weapon in the fight."

(7) Note concerning ¶ 3, on p. 353, l. 1, that Dr. W. Dickinson's h. appeared in his original form in the Sunday School, Sept. 5, 1857. In his edition, Calcutta, 1866, p. 66, is an altered form to that of 1857 and 1866.

Patria aeterna, p. 353, ll. In the Patria Breve, 1866, h. form, p. 133.

Paulina, Paulina Marcella. St. Paulina of Nola, b. at Benevento in 353, became Ep. of Nola in 409, and d. circa 431.

Peace, troubled soul, thou needst not fear. (Confession.) We have noted this hymn in two forms. The first is in the Psalter H. B., York, Spence, 5th ed., 1766 (possibly earlier), No. 184, in 8 st. of 4 l. This passed into the American collection. The second form begins "Peace, peace, my soul, thou needst not fear," and is appended to Servant II., on Matt. vi. 33, in S. Jackson's posthumous Songs on Grace, etc., Liverpool, W. Jones, 1808, in 7 st. of 4 l. Neither is in the original H. B., 1778.

Peace, John, was b. in 1751, became a Wesleyan Minister in 1767, returned therefrom through ill health in 1796, and d. in 1802. In 1770 he pub. Songs of Praise compiled from the Holy Scriptures.

Peace, Selma P., an American Baptist hymn-writer, and author of "Be our joyful song to-day" (Jesus Only), and a Mission hymn, "Hark, 'tis the voice of gladness," is the daughter of a Baptist Minister at Marietta, Ohio, was b. at Lorain, Ohio, Dec. 29, 1841.

Felix, John Kendrick, pub. the Ragged School H. B., London, J. Snow, n. d., in which he indicates that at the time of publication he lived at Hammer-smith. He also says that at one time he was a scholar at the Tabernacle, City Road, London, and that his teacher was the celebrated John Williams, the North Sea martyr. Several of his hymns with his name appended thereto are in S. D. May's ed. of Prayers for Home-School, 1849, Allen's Children's Hymns, 1879, and others.

Peter, William, p. 353, l. We find that this writer was a resident at Chertsey, and was a Member of Parliament in 1840. A. p. 353, from Nov. 21, 1839, "And is the day of mercy set" (Pra. Inez.), in the Sup. P., 3 Hys., 1866, is taken.

Phelps, Austin, n. d., b. at West Brookfield, Mass., Jan. 7, 1828, was Professor of Sacred History at Andover, 1848-1879, and one of the editors of the Sabbath H. B., 1850, d. at Bar Harbor, Maine, Oct. 15, 1880, aged 52. He is the author of "Father if I may call Thee so" (Journal of Parliament) in the Sabbath H. B., 1869, No. 1269.

Phelps, Arthur R., s. of Dr. R. D. Phelps, was b. in New Haven, Connecticut, Jan. 15, 1843, and educated at Brown University and Yale College. His hymn, "Help me, my Lord, to grow" (Likewise to Jesus desired) appeared in the Christian Secretary, April 4, 1868, and Hastings's Songs of Pilgrimage, 1868.

Phelps, Bryanna Dryden, p. 353, ll. Additional hymns in C. V. by Dr. Phelps include (1) "Father, from Thy throne above" (Temperance); (2) "When ever our land bring oppression's dark pall" (Temperance), both written in 1841. To J. A. Adair's Sacred Lyrics, he contributed (3) "Sweet is the hour of prayer" (Prayer); (4) "Sweet Sunday-school! I love the place" (Sunday-Schools); and (5) "Come friends, and let our hearts awake" (Divine Worship). There are also (6) "Once I heard a sound at my heart's dark door" (Voice of God written), in Pure Gold, with a refrain by Dr. Lowry; (7) "While on life's stormy sea" (Praise to God), written in 1862; and (8) "O God, trembling soul, be not afraid" (Confession), "written after visiting a sick man, who, feeling his need of Christ, found it difficult to believe." Concerning his popular hymn "Savior! Thy dying love," Barnage says it was written in 1862, and pub. in the Watchman and Recorder, and then, with music by Dr. R. Lowry in Pure Gold. It has been set into Swedish and other languages. Barnage gives a revised version of the text, recently made by the author. (Barnage's Eighth H. B., Writers, 1884, p. 364.)

Phillips, Harriet Cecilia, was b. in Sharon, Connecticut, in 1806, and was for many years an active worker in Sunday Schools in New York city. She contributed five hymns to the Rev. W. C. Hoyt's Family and Social Meditations, 1855, and has also written for various magazines. "We bring (O glittering treasures)" (Sunday S. Announcements), was written circa 1848 for a S. S. Festival in N. York city, and pub. in the North. Episcop. hymnal, 1868 (North's Hymns, 1868, p. 341).

Philips, Philip, common title, was b. in Newbury, 1804. Although engaged early age he devoted himself to the work in which capacity he has been known. His popular Announcements, 1851; Five Hymns of Pilgrimage, 1856; two hymns, including "The love of Christ, as it is sweet and pure," and others, 1875.

Phy. Daphn., p. 364, way in his form, 1844 Suppl. Hys., 1858, no. 21, fr. 1-10, joyful light of it in Phy's Suppl. Hys.

Pilgrim, Edward. The writer chiefly on the 1 and included in a Way Hymnal, at various points, 1875. This work contains the children of the West and French, one 6 Penitential; and one.

Plains, Charles (last) (Cousman of Knapp) ascribed to Adam, and of Adam's sorrowful pen in his soul, 1800, p. 10, as doubtful, and (citing it as in a 17th c. New York) No. 1264 in an early 18th c. Musical (Add. 1865), now in the British Museum. The printed Original, ll. p. 35; Text No. 358, in the Pure Gold music-book.

Peter, J. A., (1) "Jackson Mason, in 1 p. 186, ll. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 114, 115, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134, 135, 136, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 158, 159, 160, 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173, "B. J. W." in the British Magazine, Nov. 1833. In Kennedy, 1863.

Precious Saviour, may I live. [Only for Christ.] This is given in Snepp's Songs of G. & G., 1872, as by "Eliza Ann Walker, 1864."

Preserved by power divine. Part of "And are we yet alive?" p. 63, li.

Primo die quo Trinitas, p. 912, l. From E. Caswall's tr. the cento "O Lord, on this Thy holy day," in the Savoy Hymnary, is taken.

Prior, Matthew, the well-known English poet, contributed "Heavy on me, O Lord, Thy judgments be" (Ps. lxxxviii.) to N. Tate's Miscellaneous Sacra, Pt. II., 1697. Prior was b. in 1664, educated at Westminster School, and St. John's College, Cambridge. He held several important appointments under the Government, as Secretary to the Congress at the Hague 1690; Secretary of State, 1700, and others. He d. at Wimpole, Cambridgeshire, in 1721.

Provis, Benjamin Wilmet, was b. at Chippenham, Wilts, in 1822, but for many years has resided at Coleford, in Gloucestershire, where he is in business. He is a member of the Baptist church in that town. Mr. Provis has written a number of hymns, chiefly for use in his Sunday school or on anniversary occasions. Two have passed into C. U. (1) "No tie so strong or sweet below," with the refrain, "No parting there;" and (2) "Bright and joyous be our lay" (Sunday Gladness), in W. R. Stevenson's School Hymnal, 1880. [W. R. S.]

Prudentius, A. C., p. 915, li. Two somewhat full versions of Prudentius are: (1) The Cathemerinon and other Poems of Aurelius Prudentius Clemens in English Verse, Lond., Hivington, 1865; and (2) Translations from Prudentius, By Francis St. John Thackeray, M.A., F.R.S., Lond., Bell & Sons, 1890.

Prune thou thy words, thy thoughts control. Cardinal Newman. [Flowers without Fruit.] Written "Off Sardinia, June 20, 1833." It was pub. in Lyra Apostolica, 1836, p. 80 (ed. 1879, p. 85), in 3 st. of 8 l.

Purchase, John, M.A., was educated at Christ's College, Cambridge (M.A. 1844) and became in 1866 the Minister of St. James's, Brighton. The prosecution which he underwent in connection with his ritual observances, in matter of history. His hymn in the M. Margaret's Hyl. (East Grinstead), "Evensong is hushed in silence" (Evensong), was written for St. James's, Brighton, circa 1866, and was pub. with music by J. E. Ros. It is a hymn full of hopefulness with a sad undercurrent of weariness and pain. Mr. Purchase was b. in Cambridge in 1823, and d. Oct. 16, 1872.

Pyer, John, of Welsh descent, and formerly spelt Poyer, was b. at Bristol, Dec. 3, 1790. In 1803 he joined the Methodist Society, and subsequently became for a short time a local preacher in that connexion. He was then engaged for some time in what was known as "The Tent Mission." This evangelical work led him in 1830 to join the London City Mission. In 1834 he became pastor of a Congregational chapel at South Molton, Devon, and later he held similar charges at Cork, and at Devonport, where he d. April 7, 1859. His hymns include "Met again in Jesus' Name" (Beginning of Service). His Memoirs, by his daughter, Mrs. K. P. Russell, were pub. in 1868.

Pyper, Mary, daughter of a soldier, was b. at Greenock May 25, 1795. Although earning her living as a needlewoman, and dwelling in comparative poverty, she wrote some pleasing pieces of sacred verse, which were collected and pub. as Select Pieces in 1847. She d. May 25, 1870. One of her hymns, from her Select Pieces, 1847, p. 23, "We shall see Him, in our nature" (Heaven Anticipated), is in C. U.

Q

Quae gloriosum, p. 945, li. In the Paris Brev., 1680, Hymnalis, p. 324.

Qui procedis ab utroque, p. 945, l. Another cento from Caswall's tr. is "O Holy Ghost, Thou Fount of Light."

R

Rand, Elias Tertius, D.D., LL.D., s. of poor parents, was b. in a log cabin at Oxwallis, Nova Scotia, May 17, 1810, and entered the Baptist ministry in 1834. In 1849 he undertook missionary work amongst the Micmac Indians, and subsequently translated the whole of the New Testament and a large part of the Old into the language of that people. He also prepared a Micmac grammar and dictionary. Almost entirely unaided he mastered about a dozen languages. He has written more than 50 hymns, including trs. of several English hymns into Latin, &c., an account of which was given in the Bapt. Quarterly Review, April 1868. His hymn, "Jesus, my Lord, my God" (Trust in Jesus) is given in The Canadian Baptist Hyl., 1889, with 4 st. of the original omitted. (Barrage's Baptist H. Writers, 1880.)

Randa, W. B., p. 951, li. He was b. in 1826, not in 1862.

Ransard, Ellen, nee White, b. 1811, d. 1879. Two hymns by this writer (sometimes signed "L. N. R.") are given in Snepp's Songs of G. & G., 1872, with the following dates: (1) "Mark that long dark line of shadows" (The Present Opportunity), 1861; (2) "To thee, O gracious Father" (New Year), 1866.

Rawson, George, p. 952, l. Additional hymns by this author in C. U. include:—

1. Come, Spirit of the Lord. From his "How shall the mighty God," in his Hys., Verses, &c., 1876, No. 43.
2. Each trial hath a gentle voice. Patience and Hope. In the 1880 Suppl. to the Bap. Ps. and Hys. this is dated 1857. It is not in the author's Hymns, 1876.
3. Stand up before your God. All Saints. In the 1880 Bap. Ps. and Hys. this is dated 1865. It is not in Rawson's Hymns, 1876.

Reasener, Katherine M. "I am waiting for the Master" (Heaven Anticipated) is given as hers in I. D. Sankey's Sac. Songs and Solos, 1881.

Redeemed, restored, forgiven. Sir H. W. Baker. [Praise for Salvation.] In Hys. for Mission Churches, . . . ed. by the Compilers of H. A. & M., x.d., No. 126; and the 1889 Suppl. Hys. to H. A. & M.

Rejoice in Christ alway. J. Moultrie. [Advent.] Pub. in his Dream of Life, &c., 1843, p. 152, in 5 st. of 8 l.

Rejoice in the Lord, There is light, &c. Marianne Hearn. [Praise.] From her Lays & Lyrics, &c., 1860, p. 96.

Rejoice ye saints, rejoice and praise. J. H. Evans. [Praise for Redemption.] From his Memoirs, &c., 1852.

Remember me, my Saviour God. Lent. Anon. in the Amer. Bap. Psalmist, 1843, No. 606.

Return, my soul, enjoy thy rest. A part of "Another six days' work is done" (p. 71, li.).

Return, O wanderer, to thy home, p. 404, li. 16. In the 1889 Suppl. Hys. to H. A. & M., No. 628, the first stanza of this hymn by Dr. Hastings is given as st. i. and the remaining st. li.-vi. are by the Rev. A. G. Purchase of Auckland, New Zealand, and musical editor of the New Zealand Hyl. Mr. Purchase wrote those stanzas during the Mission held by Messrs. Rolleston and Mason, in New Zealand in 1886. The hymn in this form was printed as a leaflet for use in the Mission.

Rex Salomon fecit templum. Adam of St. Victor. [Dedication of a Church.] This is found in a tr. written at Limoges, circa 1199, in the Hibl. Nat. Paris (Lat. 1139f, 165 b); in a Gradual written in Germany, circa 1199, in the Bodleian (Liturg. Misc. 341 f. 66); in a service book written in France, circa 1276, in the Brit. Mus. (Add. 23,935, f. 437), and in the Paris, York, and other Missals. Printed text in M. Leon Gautier's ed. of Adam of St. Victor, 1858, i., p. 148; 1861, p. 68; Kehrein, No. 872; Daniel, v. p. 108, &c. Tr. as "King Solomon a temple built," by Mrs. E. H. Mitchell in the Altar Hyl., 1864. Also by Wingham, i., 1881, p. 148. [J. M.]

Rexford, Eben Eugene, an American writer, b. July 16, 1848, is the author of Nos. 199, 246, 263, 323, in I. D. Sankey's Sac. Songs and Solos, 1878, No. 6, and 466 in the Meth. S. S. H. Bk., 1879.

Rhodes, Sarah Betta, nee Bradshaw, wife of a Sheffield merchant, wrote "God Who made the earth" (S. & P. Festival) for the Sheffield S. S. Union Whitstide Festival, 1870. The tune also was by Mrs. Rhodes. The hymn is in several collections, including the Meth. S. S. H. Bk., 1879, &c.

Rhys, Morgan, p. 959, l. A short notice of this writer (a schoolmaster in connection with the Calvinistic Methodists), is given in H. Elvet Lewis's Sweet Singers of Wales, 1889, together with a few trs. into English of his hymns.

Rice, Caroline Laura. Nutter, in his Hymn Studia, &c., 1884, says that "Wilt Thou hear the voice of praise?" (For A. School Fest.) was "contributed to this Hymnal [Meth. Episcopal] in 1877. It was written originally for a Sunday-school celebration; . . . Caroline Laura Rice, b. in 1819, is the wife of the Rev. William Rice, D.D., of Springfield, Mass."

Rich are the joys which cannot die. Part of "These mortal joys, how soon they fade," (p. 306, li. 54).

Richardson, Charlotte, nee Smith, an American, was

h. of poor patients in 1775. In 1839 she was married to a Mr. Richardson, who d. two years after. In 1841 several of her poetical compositions were pub. as *Poems written on different subjects. From this work the hymn "O God, be Thine we take our eyes" (Lanterns) is taken. It is claimed from a poem on the death of her husband. (Nuttall's Bygone Studies, &c., 1894.)*

Ripley, Thomas Baldwin, b. at Boston, Massachusetts, Nov. 20, 1785, entered the Baptist ministry in 1814, and d. at Portland, May 1, 1855. In 1811 he pub. a vol. of Hym. for Conference and Prayer Meetings. In this vol. his hymn for Holy Baptism, "O Thou, Who once in Jordan's wave," appeared.

Rippon, Thomas, M. A., nephew of Dr. Rippon, b. 1794, educated at Eton, entered the Baptist ministry, and d. June 3, 1825. His hymn "Aid me, O Christ, Thy cross to sing" (The Cross of Christ) appeared in the 27th ed. 1827, of Rippon's vol. with the title "Edinburgh, Feb. 23, 1827." [W. R. S.]

Rise, O Advocate almighty. [Accession.] This came in the R. C. Parochial H. B., 1866, in three compass, stn. 1-11, are from E. Caswell's Tr. of "Nativitas, domus, fugio," p. 801, l. 1, and st. 12, from his Tr. of "Mundus effugio," p. 777, l.

Roberts, James Thomas, b. at Linton, Bedfordshire, Dec. 22, 1858, entered the Baptist ministry in 1874, and was successively pastor at Bedford, Grimsby, and Wotton, near Halifax, and then retired and entered into business at Linton. He wrote a few hymns for S. School Anniversary whilst at Wootton. One of these "O Jesus, blessed Jesus," was included in W. R. Seymour's Second Hymnal, 1890. [W. R. S.]

Roberts, Samuel, commonly known in Wales as "S. R.," was born at Llanberis, Mar. 4, 1806, and d. at Conway in O. C., 1885. He was well-known Congregational minister. In 1841 he pub. a collection of over 2000 hymns, of which several of the originals and trs. were by him; but as there is no index of authors, his productions cannot be distinguished from the rest (Welsh Hymnody, § 11. 8).

Roberts, Thomas. Concerning this writer and his hymns, "My Shepherd's mighty aid" (Ps. xciii.), Nuttall says in his Bygone Studies, 1894, p. 297, that his hymns "came into our hymn-book" (Metth. Episc. Hymnal) in 1848. I have not been able to learn anything more concerning it, or its author.

Robins, Gordon, an American bookbinder, was b. at Hartford, Connecticut, Nov. 7, 1843. Two of his hymns appeared anonymously in The Psalterist (Boston, 1843): (1) "There is a land mine eye hath seen" (Isaiah); (2) "When thickly meet the storms of life" (God a Rock).

Robinson, George, contributed five hymns to E. B. Mould's Original Hym., 1862, from which "One sublimed sign" (Psalm), and "When to the exiled soul were given" (New Jerusalem), are taken with alterations.

Rock of ages, shaft for me, p. 970, l. Another Tr. of the full text (but slightly altered) by Bp. Charles Wordsworth, is in his Sacred Collection. . . . Sacred Hymns Psalterist. . . . Lond., J. Murray, 1890, as "Thou art good, ancient rock, Roper."

Roman Catholic Hymnody, p. 978, l. The hymns by Miss Procter referred to are, Confide in "conspicuous" "Fret not, poor soul, while doubt and fear;" Our Daily Bread, "Give us our daily bread;" and Sand to Success, "I had a message to send her." The first and second of these appeared in her Chapel of Verse, pub. in 1842, in aid of the Providence R. & N. Night Refuge for Homeless Women and Children.

Root, George F., M. A., b. in Sheffield, Berkshire County, Mass., Aug. 26, 1817. He is much more widely known as a composer of popular music than as a hymn writer. Four of his hymns are in E. D. Sankey's Sac. S. & Soloist, 1878, Nos. 14, 106, 283, and 397. A sympathetic biographical sketch, with portrait, is in The Rose and the Lily, Sep., 1886.

Rose, Elizabeth, p. 923, l. From Mrs. Rose's Methodist Works, &c., 1726, the following hymns are taken —

1. Heave in high celestial strain. Praise to God.
2. Look, what is man that he should prove: The Love of God.
3. The glorious armies of the sky. Praise to God.
4. To Thee, O God, my prayer ascends. God our Joy.

For full biographical details, see the Rev. Brittain, &c., of Steps of the Chapel Messenger, 1778.

Rudel, Martin. [Rudolph, M.]

Hannover, Germany, June 17, 1843, and in 1873 became a Professor in the Capital University, Columbus, Ohio. He contributed 8 original hymns and several trs. from the German to the Evang. Luth. Hym., Columbus, Ohio, 1880, under the signature of "C. H. L. S."

Scott, Elizabeth, p. 1019, B. Another of her hymns in C. U. from the Coll. of Ash & Evans, 1769, No. 393, "The Lord of love will sure indulge," is given in some American hymnals as "The God of mercy will indulge" (Heath of Parents), with the name of "Fawcett" prefixed in error.

Scotts, Mary Queen of (b. Dec. 8, 1842; d. Feb. 8, 1887). A metrical prayer in Latin:—

"O Domine Deus! speravi in Te;

O care mi Jezu! nunc libera me.

In dura catena, in misera poena, desidero te;

Languendo, gemendo, et genu flectendo, is given in several works including Julian Sharman's Poems of Mary, Queen of Scots, 1873, as the composition of the ill-fated Queen. It is said that it was written by her on the fly-leaf of her prayer-book (Horae in laudem B. M. Virginis) the night before her execution. This book—or at any rate what is regarded as such—is in the library of Stonyhurst College, Lancashire. It has been examined for the purposes of this Dictionary. The Prayer is not therein, nor is there any evidence of any portion of the book having been torn away. This fact raises a grave doubt as to its authorship which we are unable to settle. The Prayer has been tr. by several persons, including J. Fawcett, 1782; J. W. Hewitt, 1889, p. 145, &c.

Adoro, implo, ut libera me."

Scottish Hymnody, p. 1023, L. & M. In Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, the following centos have been taken from the Scottish Psalter of 1680.

1. Like as the hart for water-brooks, Ps. xlii.

2. O greatly blest'd the people are, Ps. lxxxi.

3. O Thou that art the mighty One, Ps. xlv.

4. Pray that Jerusalem may have, Ps. cxxii.

5. Thou shalt arise, and mercy have, Ps. cii.

6. Woe's me that I in Mesch am, Ps. cxx.

Of this cento sta. 1, ii. are from the Scottish Ps. and iii.-v. are by Mr. Spurgeon.

Other centos also in C. U. are:—

7. Give thanks to God, for good is He, Ps. cxxvii.

8. Praise God: from heaven praise Him, Ps. cxlvi.

9. Set thou thy trust upon the Lord, Ps. xxiiv.

Scudder, Eliza, p. 1035, L. From No. 7, "Thou long disowned, &c.," the cento "Come, Thou, with purifying fire," in Stryker's Church Song, 1889, is taken.

Sears, Septimus. Three hymns with this signature are given in Snapp's Songs of G. & G., 1872, all dated 1865:—(1) Lov'd with love from everlasting (Adoration); (2) O people, selected by sovereign love (Adoration); (3) Sons of Zion, lift your eyes (Heaven Anticipated).

Sedulius, Coelius, p. 1037, L. Migne's text is from Arcad., not from Huemer.

Selborne, Roundell Palmer, Earl of, s. of W. J. Palmer, Rector of Miskbury, Oxford, was b. Nov. 27, 1812, and educated at Trinity College, Oxford. Called to the Bar he rapidly advanced in the profession, and became Lord Chancellor in 1872. Lord Selborne did great service to hymnody by the publication of his Book of Praise, 1862 (enlarged ed., 1867), in which the original texts of some of the finest of English hymns were restored; and by calling attention in his paper on English Church Hymnody at the York Church Congress in 1866, to the mutilations which those hymns had undergone. Since 1866 editors of repute have recognized the justice of Lord Selborne's strictures, and far better work than heretofore is the result.

Sena Missal, 1042, B.

Serie, Ambrose, a Commissioner in the Government Transport Office, was b. Aug. 30, 1742, and d. Aug. 1, 1812. He pub. Horae Solitariae; or Hymns upon some remarkable Names and Titles of Jesus Christ, &c., 1786. In this work short hymns are appended to some of the articles, and of these, "Jesus commissioned from above" (Redemption), and "Thy ways, O Lord, with wise design" (Providence), have passed into several collections. Serie was also the author of other works. The Rev. E. Bickersteth pub. Selections from the Works of Ambrose Serie, in 1833.

Servoss, M. E. Hymns by this writer are in I. D. Sankey's Sac. Songs & Solos, 1881. (1) "Be glad in the Lord, and rejoice" (Joy in the Redeemer); and (2) "When the storms of life are raging" (Refuge in God). Another, "Thou Jesus when the burdened heart" (Jesus, the Sinner's Friend), is in the S. S. U. Voice of Praise, 1887. Miss Servoss was b. at Schenectady, near New York.

Seven Dolours of the B. V. M., p. 573, B.

Sewall, Elizabeth Minsing, writer of a number of novels (Cleve Hall, &c.), is the author of "O Saviour: when Thy loving hand" (For use at Sea), in the 1889 Suppl. Hym. to H. A. & M. She was b. in 1815.

Shakleton, Mary, was b. in 1837, and d. in Dublin, Sep. 28, 1883. She was for many years an invalid, during which time she wrote several hymns, which were printed in broadsheet form. Several of these are given in Chosen, Chastened, Crowned. Memorials of Mary Shakleton, late Secretary of the Invalids' Prayer Union, by her Sister, 1884, and are in C. U.: (1) "It passeth knowledge, that dear love of Thine" (Love of Jesus), 1863; and (2), "One fervent wish, my God! it speaks the whole" (Desiring to know Jesus), 1867.

Shepote, Mrs., was one of three sisters who pub. in 1840, Hymns for Infant Children. By A. C. and A., the initial "E" being that of Mrs. Shepote. From this little work the popular hymn for children, "Jesus, holy, undefiled" (Child's Litany), No. 4, is taken. Mrs. Shepote was the wife of the Rev. E. G. Shepote, sometime in Holy Orders in the Church of England. Both husband and wife eventually joined the Roman communion.

Shepherd of Israel! hear my prayer. Sarah Ellis, nee Stickney. (The Good Shepherd.) Dated 1833 in Martineau's Hymns, 1872. Mrs. Ellis was b. 1812, and d. 1872.

Sheppard, John, pub. The Foreign Sacred Lyre: Metrical Versions of Religious Poetry from the German, French, and Italian, Lond., 1867; and, The Christian Harp, a companion to the former, Lond., 1869. "A wail of woe, Whose path of wonder" (Divine Guidance Desired), is from the latter.

Shindler, Mary S. B., p. 1043, L. Other hymns usually attributed to this writer, are "Prince of Peace, control my will" (Perfect Peace), in the Church of England Magazine, March 3, 1859, in 32 lines; and "Once upon the heaving ocean" (Jesus calming the Sea).

Shine on our souls, O King of grace. Altered form of his "Shine on our souls, eternal God," p. 305, L.

Shine Thou upon us, Lord. J. Ellerton. (For Parents and Teachers.) In his Hym., 1888, as "Break Thou to us, O Lord," and dated 1881. Revised by him for the H. Comp., 1890.

Shirley, James, b. 1596, d. 1666. His "Canst Thou, good Lord, forgive so soon?" (Passiontide) is in C. U.

Should the rising whirlwinds tear. From "Praise to God, immortal praise," p. 904, L.

Shrubsole, William, p. 1056, L. It must be noted that this hymn-writer is not the William Shrubsole of Canterbury, the organist, and composer of the tune "Miles Lane" to E. Perrouet's "All hail! the power of Jesus' Name" (p. 41, L.).

Signed with the Cross that Jesus bore. [Confirmation.] Apoc. in the Catholic Hal., 1860, and several later collections. From it "Here in Thy presence, dread and sweet," is taken.

Sigourney, Lydia, p. 1057, B. Additional hymns are: 1. We thank Thee, Father, for the day, Sunday. This in Stryker's Church Songs, 1889, is dated 1850.

2. When the parting beam bleeds, For Use at Sea. From Adams and Chapin's Hym. for Christian Devotion, 1846.

3. Prayer is the dew of faith, Prayer.

4. We praise Thee, Lord, if but one soul. An altered form of her hymn on Temperance (No. 13).

Since all the coming [varying] scenes of time. Altered form of "Since all the downward tracts of time," p. 517, L.

Sing, my soul, His wondrous love. [Praise of the Father.] In a Baltimore Coll., 1800, in 3 st.; the Amer. Prayer Bk. Coll., 1826, in 4 st., &c.

Sing to the Lord the children's hymn. R. S. Hawker. [School Hymn.] In his Poetical Works, 1879, p. 77, in 7 st. of 4 l., and headed, "The Song of the School; St. Mark's, Morwenstow" (p. 496, L.).

Singleton, R. C., p. 1060, L. From Burke's Landed Gentry we find Singleton was the second s. of Francis Corbet, of Aclare, co. Meath, who in 1820 took the name of Singleton only, and gave to his son the name of Corbet as a Christian name. The same authority says that R. C. Singleton was b. Oct. 9, 1810. He d. Feb. 7, 1881.

Sinner, come, 'Mid thy gloom. Lent. In T. Hastings's Spiritual Songs, 1831, No. 278.

Sit qui rite canat te modo virginem. J. R. de Sanctis. [St. John Evangelist.] In his Hymni Sac., 1679, p. 31; the Sena Brev., 1702; the Rosen Hren., 1728; the Paris Revue, 1736; and Newman, 1838-45. Fr. an-

"Some rightly celebrate," by D. J. Chambers, 1851.

Bit qui tonantem. Christus, canis manum. [Sacred Heart of Christ.] This is found in the Synopsis of 1584, p. 400, and the Synopsis de Nagon, 1732, p. 400, as a hymn for the Festival of the Sacred Heart, the office being appointed for use on the 16th of September, and marked as a double of the second class. It is also found in the Roman Martyrology, 1843, p. 596. From this it was fr. as—"Some sing, O Christ, Thine art his power," by T. L. Hall, for the 5th ed., 1874, of the Apex, to the H. Nodet, as No. 240. [J. M.]

Sleep on, beloved, sleep and take thy rest. Amos Antiphony. [Fourth Antiphony.] Pub in for Pr. of Life, 1871, p. 76, in 7 m. of 3 l., with the refrain "Good night." It is entitled "The Christian of Good night" and is headed with the following sentence, "The early Christians were accustomed to bid their dying friends 'Good night!' as were were they of their awaking at the Resurrection morning."

T

T. T. M. An anonymous writer who contributed the following hymns to the 2nd ed. of the Anglican H. Bk., 1871: (1) "Awake! awake! put on Thy strength" (Processional); (2) "My son, give me thine heart" (Lent); (3) "O loving Saviour, who art touched" (Jesus, the Sympathiser); (4) "The Lord ascends the sacred hill" (Transfiguration); (5) "Throned above the starry spheres" (St. Mark).

Tait, Gilbert. See Mascoll, William.

Tapp, Jakob. Little is known of this writer. He became pastor primarius and superintendent at Schöningen, Brunswick, in 1616, and d. there in 1630 (ms. from Superintendent Wichmann, Schöningen, &c.). The hymn, "Das alte Jahr vergangen ist" has sometimes been ascribed to him. See p. 1093, l.

Tatlock, Eleanor, of Sandwich. Two vols. of her Poems were pub. in 1811, and her hymn "Far from Thy fold, O God, my feet" (Reconciliation) is given in Hatfield's Church Hys. N. Y. 1872. It appeared in the Evang. Mag., 1798, p. 367.

Taylor, Clara. Miller, in his Singers and Songs of the Church, 1869, p. 230, says of this hymn-writer, "She is said to have been a member of the Church of England residing in Westminster;" that "she was probably a friend of Zinzendorf's, and much in association with the Moravians," and that "she died in February, 1778." Her original hymns and trs. from the German appeared in the Moravian H. Bk. 1742-89. There are in the 1886 ed. of the same H. Bk. the following original hymns all signed with her name—

1. All glory be to God on high, Ye sons of Adam, &c. Christmas. (1742.)

2. Behold the loving Son of God. Good Friday. (1742.)

3. Lord, my times are in Thy hand. Death Anticipated. (1789.)

4. Lord, to Thy people aid dispense. Missions. (1789.)

5. O Jesus, Jesus, my good Lord. Lent. (1742.)

6. O Lord, the contrite sinner's Friend. Jesus the Friend. (1742.)

7. Our heavenly Father is not known. God the Father. (1742.)

8. The Cross, the Cross, Oh that's my gain. Good Friday. (1742.) From this "What wondrous cause could move Thy heart?" in Spurgeon's O. O. H. Bk., 1866, is taken.

9. What praise unto the Lamb is due. H. Communion. 10. Who can condemn, since Christ hath died? Safety in Christ, 1742. Part of No. 7.

In 1865 D. Sedgwick collected 39 of her hymns, and pub. them as Hys. composed chiefly on the Atonement of Christ and Redemption through His Blood.

Taylor, William, the s. of a manufacturer, was b. at Norwich, Nov. 7, 1.65, and educated at Mr. Barbauld's school at Fulgrave (see p. 113, ll.). After travelling abroad, he settled at Norwich in 1782. In 1791 he retired from business and devoted himself to literature. He was a frequent contributor to the Monthly, the Critical, and other Reviews, and was one of the first to introduce the study of German literature into England. His trs. of Lessing's Nathan der Weise appeared in 1791, and of Goethe's Iphigenia in Tauris in 1793. In 1813 he pub. English Synonyms Discriminated, and in 1824-30 his Historical Survey of German Poetry, 3 vols. He d. March 5, 1836. A Memoir of the Life and Writings of William Taylor, by J. W. Rothenburg, in 2 vols., was pub. in London in 1843. Taylor was a member of the congregation of the Octagon Chapel, Norwich, and contributed the following 5 hymns to Tr. Enfield's Norwich Sol. of Hys. for Social Worship, 1795 (p. 331, ll.):—

1. Father of peace, O turn once more. For Mercy.

2. God of the universe, Whose hand. God the Universal Benefactor.

3. Moon & planets, suns that swim the sky. Nature perishable, God eternal.

4. The Lord is just; He made the chain. The Just Man.

5. Well sleeps the good who sinks to rest.

These hymns were repeated without author's name in the Norwich hymn-book of 1814, and again, sometimes with and at other times without name, in later Unitarian collections. [V. D. D.]

Teach me to live! 'tis easier far to die. [Transfiguration of Self to Christ.] This is given in the 1872 ed. of Suepp's S. of Grace and Glory, as from a "Dublin Leaflet, 1860." In the Musical ed. of 1880 he gives the writer's name as "Ellen Elizabeth Hurman, 1860."

Tebbs, Henry Virtus, was b. in Chelsea in 1797. He was a Proctor in Doctors' Commons, and joined in establishing the first Sunday School in Chelsea. Most of his later years were spent on the Continent, mostly at Pegli, near Genoa, and where, mainly through his exertions, a Church for the English congregation was erected.

and where he d. Nov. 27, 1874. [Record, Dec. 23, 1874.] And his hymn "Come to me, Lord, when first I wake" [Morning] was written for his wife's birthday, March 18, 1831, and circulated in ms. for some years. In 1863 it was printed in the N. Y. Journal of Science, and then in the Hy. Comp. and other collections. It has been for sale in 17 languages, and has also been enclosed for the blind.

Tennyson, Alfred, Lord, s. of the Rev. G. C. Tennyson, Baronet of Sonship, Lincolnshire, was b. at Somersby, Aug. 6, 1809, educated at Trinity College, Cambridge; appointed Poet Laureate in 1850, and raised to the Peerage in 1851. Although Lord Tennyson has not written any hymns, extracts from his poems are sometimes used as such, as "Strong Son of God, Immortal Love" (Poeth in the dew of God), from the Introduction to his in Memoriam, 1850; the well-known "Too late, too late, ye cannot enter now," and others. The hymn is sometimes given as "Spirit of Immortal Love," and again as "Eternal God, Immortal Love."

Tupper, James, author of "Dark was the hour when Jesus bore" (Passiontide—Gethsemane), in the Baptist Psalmody, 1850, was an American barrister, member of the State legislature, and master in equity. He was b. at Charleston, South Carolina, Dec. 9, 1819, and d. at Summerville, South Carolina, Aug. 29, 1868.

Turnbull, Robert, D.D., was b. at Whitburn, Linlithgowshire, Scotland, Sept. 10, 1809, and educated at the University of Glasgow. After officiating for a time in England and Scotland as a Baptist minister, in 1833 he removed to America, where he ministered in several places until 1845, when he became pastor of the First Baptist Church, Hartford. He d. at Hartford, Nov. 20, 1877. He pub. Olympia Morata, 1842, and several other works. His hymn on Heaven, "There is a place of waveless rest," appeared in Cutting's Hymn for the Vestry and Fireside, 1841. In the Bap. Psalmist, 1843, it was altered to "There is a place of sacred rest," the form in which it is known to modern collections.

Turton, W. H., a Lieut. in the Royal Engineers, has pub. A Few Hymns written by a Layman between the Festivals of All Saints, 1880 and 1881. This contains 12 hymns. The Second Series, "written between the Festivals of All Saints, 1881 and 1882," also contains 12 hymns, and the Third Series, 1882-1883, another 12. These hymns are worthy of attention. Those which have passed into C. U. include:—

1. And now our Eucharist is o'er (1665-1675). July. 1
Chorus.
 2. O Thou who at Thy Eucharist didst pray. For 1
Choir. "This hymn was used at St. Mary Magdalen's, 2 Monaster Square, N.W., in the Anniversary Service of 3 the English Church Union, June 22, 1861. It is assumed 4 to be sung after the "Agnus Dei," at a choral celebra- 5
 tion." In the 1869 Suppl. Hym. to H. A. & M. it reads 6
 "Thou, Who at Thy first Eucharist didst pray." 7
 These hymns are in the Altar Hymns 1864, to- 8 gether with a third, "Behold! the star is shining," 9
 (Appropriation.) Leont. Turton's signature on A Few 10

Werner, Georg, b. March 22, 1859, at Preussisch-Holland, near Elbing, Prussia. In 1814 he became a master in the Löhrenicht school at Königsberg, and in 1816 rector of the school at Preussisch-Holland. He was then appointed, in 1821, diaconus of the Löhrenicht church at Königsberg. He d. at Königsberg, July 15, 1843 (Aech, iii., 208, v. 659; Goedeke's Grundriss, vol. iii., 1887, p. 134, &c.). He edited the Königsberg G. B. of 1843 (earliest copy now extant has title dated 1850, and preface dated 1843), to which he contributed a number of hymns. He also contributed to B. Jenschau's G. H., 1839 (p. 1248, ii.). His Psalm versions are noted under Psalteria, German. The only hymn by him which has passed into English is a fr. from the Latin, and is noted at p. 1187, i. [J. M.]

Wesley, Charles, p. 1366, i. In addition to nearly one thousand of his hymns which are annotated in this Dictionary there are many more in C. U. which we have not space to notice.

Westbury, Joseph, b. in 1836. Ordained in 1861, Vicar of Hartshill, Staffordshire, 1864-96, and Chaplain of the Newcastle (Staffordshire) Union Workhouse from 1876 to his death on Nov. 29, 1890, was the author of "Brightly, O Father, when morning is breaking" (Morning), in Thring's Coll., 1882.

What a rapturous song. Part of "Come, let us ascend," p. 248, i.

What are these [those] soul-reviving strains! [Palm Sunday.] Traced to Pratt's Coll., 1829, but probably earlier. Sometimes attributed to J. Montgomery, but in error. It is in several modern collections, including Snapp's Songs of G. & G., 1872.

What have I in this barren land! A cento from "I sojourn in a vale of tears," p. 557, ii.

What secret place, what distant star! Part of "O height that doth all height excel," p. 422, ii., 48.

What shall I render to my God For all his gifts to me! J. Mason. [Praise to the Father.] From his Songs of Praise, 1893.

What though the people rage. Charlotte Elliott. [Ps. 41.] Pub. in Elliott's Ps. & Hys., 1835, p. 1.

What vain desires and passions vain, p. 1239, L, No. 190. This appeared in Waite's Sermons, vol. i., 1721.

Whately, Richard, D.D., b. in London, Feb. 1, 1787; educated at Oriel College, Oxford; Bampton Lecturer, 1822; Principal of St. Alban's Hall, Oxford, 1825; and Archbishop of Dublin, 1831. He d. in Dublin, Oct. 8, 1863. His association with hymnody is very slight. In 1860 he pub. his Lectures on Prayer, in which were several fr. of German hymns by his eldest daughter, Miss Emma Jane Whately. Dean Dickinson, from whom we have received this information, also says that the Archbishop's hymn "Thou to Whom all power is given" (Lent), was written circa 1830. It was 1st pub. in the 1st ed. of the Irish Church Hyl., 1856. The Archbishop's youngest daughter, Blanche, was also a writer of hymns.

When bending o'er the brink of life, p. 1268, i. In the Evang. Mag., 1896, p. 489.

When Christ came down on earth of old. Cecil F. Alexander. [Advent.] Contributed to the S. P. C. K. Hys., 1852, No. 2, in 4 st. of 4 l. This is altered in Kennedy, 1863, to "From heaven when Christ came down of old," and in the Westminster Abbey H. Hk., 1883, to "When Christ from heaven came down of old." In the Lyra Anglicana, 1862, Mr. Alexander expanded the original hymn to 8 st. of 4 l., as "When Jesus came to earth of old." This is in Thring's Coll., 1882. From it "O Son of God, in glory crowned," in the Ibros Hyl., 1871, is taken.

When first before His mercy-seat. Part of "Be still, my heart, these anxious cares," p. 204, i.

When God is mine and I am His. Part of "I know that my Redeemer lives, And ever prays for me," p. 548, ii.

When God's right arm is bared for war. Part of "Awake, sweet harp of Judah, wake," p. 103, ii.

When His salvation bringing. [Palm Sunday.] In H. and J. Gwyther's Psalmist, A Sel. of Ps. & Hys., &c., Lond., 1830, there is 1 psalm version signed "J. King," and 1 psalm version and 4 hymns signed "J. King." One of the latter is "When His salvation bringing," No. 417, in 3 st. of 6 l., with a chorus. This hymn is in extensive modern use. Concerning the author great difficulty has been experienced in tracing his identity. Under date of Aug. 15, 1863, the Rev. John Gwyther informed D. Sedgwick that the signatures above stood for "Joshua King, late Vicar of Hull." In a second communication, dated Aug. 19, 1863, he writes further, "Mr. Joshua King was Curate to Mr. J. Eyton, of Wellington, Shropshire, when Mr. E. made his collection of Hys. and wrote them for his Bk., but whether he published them in any other form I don't know. Mr. E. gave his H. Bk. to my brother." From the Registers of Eyton Church we find that Mr. King's name was John. He graduated at Queen's College, Cambridge, B.A. 1814; became Incumbent of Christ Church, Hull, in 1822, and d. Sep. 12, 1868, aged 59.

When I look up to yonder sky. [God the Giver of Good.] Anon. in the American S. S. Union H. Hk., 1833, and later collections.

When I sink down in gloom or fear. Card, Newman. [Psalm.] Dated "At sea, June 23, 1833," in the British Mag., Nov. 1833, the Lyra Apostolica, 1836, p. 29, &c.

When languid frame, or throbbing pulse. J. S. B. Monnell. [St. Luke.] Pub. in his Spiritual Songs, 1857, in 14 st. of 4 l. A cento therefrom in C. U. 18, "How good to think that He, Who stands."

When, Lord, we kneel before Thy throne. An altered form of "Lord, when we bend before Thy throne," p. 696, i.

When morning's first, and hallowed ray. [Morning.] Anon. from Cheever's Amer. Commonplace Bk. of Poetry, 1831, into the Bap. Praise Bk., 1871, and others.

When round the camp for Israel's sin. [Easter.] Appeared in the British Magazine, Sept. 1832, p. 31, in 6 st. of 4 l., headed "Hy. for the first S. after Easter," and signed B. J. W. It was included in Kennedy, 1863.

When shall I hear the inward voice. Part of C. Wesley's "Father, if Thou my Father art," p. 267, ii.

When shall I see the welcome hour! Part of C. Wesley's "My God, I know, I feel Thee mine," p. 779, ii.

When shall that sound of gladness. J. Edmeston. [Missions.] From his Fifty Missionary Hys., 1822, into a few collections.

When the morning paints the sky. Sp. E. H. Bickersteth. [Christ, the Child's Example.] Written in 1850; pub. in his From Year to Year, 1883; and included in the Hy. Comp., 1890. In the latter the author says, "This hymn was suggested by seeing the words 'What would Jesus do?' in illuminated letters on a card suspended in a children's orphanage."

When thou, O Lord, in flesh wert dressed. J. Anstie. [Christmas.] From his posthumous Hymns, 1836.

When Thy soldiers take their swords. Frances M. Owen. [Confirmation.] Written circa 1872, and pub. in her Essays and Poems, 1887. It is in Hus. for the Use of the Chapel of Cheltenham Coll., 1890, &c. Frances Mary Owen, nee Syngge, wife of the Rev. J. A. Owen, Assistant Master at Cheltenham College, was b. April 18, 1842, and d. June 19, 1883.

When up to nightly skies we gaze. John Sterling. [Trust.] In Martineau's Hys., 1873, this hymn is dated 1810. It is also in Horder's Eng. Hys., 1884, and others.

While the stars unnumbered roll. A cento from "Interval of grateful shade," p. 363, 11.

While we walk with God in light. Part of "Portents of a glorious hope," noticed on p. 364, l. 4.

Whitfield, Emma, nee Hooper, is the author of "Gloria, Holy Jesus" ("Child's Prayer to the Saviour"), which has passed into numerous collections for children.

Whither, O whither, should I fly. Part of C. Wesley's "God of my life, whose gracious power," p. 433, 11.

Whittemore, Hannah M., sister of W. M. Whittemore, is the author of "How sweet to think that all shall live" ("Faith"), which appeared in her brother's The Short Liturgy, and again with others in her uncle Jonathan Whittemore's Songs, in all R. Ann., 1846. This hymn is dated by D. Soderberg "1846," and is included in several modern collections as the Sup. Hym., 1879, 4c.

Whittemore, William Maynard, Editor of Seaside, pastor of St. Katherine's Ch., London, is the author of "I want to be like Jesus" ("Early Praise"), in his Infant Altar, 1862; and "We won't give up the Bible" (H. Sermons), 1870. The form of the latter in Sermons consists of 11, 4 c., 1873, is a revision by Rev. John Grogan.

Whitins, D. W. Six of his hymns (Nos. 306, 308, 309, 385, 386, 417) are given in I. D. Sankey's San. S. and Notes, under the signature of "M. Nathan."

Why should gloomy thoughts arise. F. Hastings. [Psalm.] In his Functional Hym., 1856, p. 87, in 3 st. of 4 l. Another form of the text—"O why should gloomy thoughts arise?" is in the Meth. Episc. Hym., 1848, in 6 st. of 4 l. This indicates that the original publication has yet to be found.

Why should we have our foolish minds? E. Chavonell. [Liturgy in the Year of God.] Pub. in his Hym. & Poems, 1812, in 4 st. of 4 l., and headed "In God's Sight."

Why these fears? I beheld the pillow. An altered form of "Why these fears? I beheld 'tis Jesus" (p. 618, 11, 26).

Wiesemeyer, Burchard, was a native of Helmstedt, and d. at Pöthenberg (probably Pöthenberg near Alt-Landenberg), apparently before 1829. He was from 1637 to 1644, and probably somewhat longer, one of the masters in the cryptography (cryptography) at Berlin. (Koch, in 241, 2. Archiv der Math., 1870, p. 228, 2c.) He assisted in preparing the two hymn-books which his colleague at Berlin, Johann Vögler (p. 371, Nos. 1, 4), issued in 1640 and 1651. To these he contributed a few poems and earlier hymns. The only one tr. into English is noted at p. 1001, l. [J. M.]

Wiglesworth, Esther, daughter of Thomas Wiglesworth, son of a Brass Turner, Tottenham, Middlesex, in 1827, and is now (1891) Matron of the Magdalen Asylum, Stratham. She has composed a large number of small poetical works, and has contributed numerous hymns and poems to the periodical press. The words from which most of her hymns in C. U. are America:—(1) "Eternal God, celestial King," Ps. lvi.; (2) "Praise the Lord, His power confess," Ps. cl.; (3) "To Thee, my righteous King and Lord," Ps. cxli.

Wrestling in agony, wrestling alone. Sp. E. H. Hickereth. [Good Friday.] Concerning this "Story of the Cross" Sp. Hickereth says in his note thereon in the 1890 ed. of his Hymn Comp.: "These verses on the Passion of Jesus were written by the Editor (1880) on the same lines as 'The Story of the Cross,' by the late Rev. Edward Monro (p. 1873, l.). For the dramatic conception the Editor is indebted to Mr. Monro; and the measure and structure are the same as his. But the facts dwelt upon are different, and they reflect a different aspect of the Passion. They have been sung for the last ten years in a constantly increasing number of churches during Holy Week, and especially on Good Friday. The Editor has therefore ventured to include them in this Hymnal."

York Missal, p. 1042, li.

York, Charles Edward, M.A., b. in 1842, Chaplain Royal Marine Light Infantry; educated at Pembroke College, Oxford (M.A. 1864), and for sometime Chaplain in the Royal Navy, is the author of "As near the wish'd-for port we draw" (For Use at Sea), in the 1889 Suppl. Hym. to H. A. & M.

York, Sarah Emily, nee Waldo, an American writer, was b. in 1819, and d. in 1851. Her Memoir was pub. by Mrs. Needberry in 1853. Her hymn, "I'm weary of straying, O fain would I rest" (Rest desired), appeared in the Reformed Dutch Ps. & Hym., 1847.

Young, J. Under this signature two hymns are given in the Amer. Bap. Psalmist, 1843: (1) "O for a shout of joy" (God's Eternal Love), No. 157, in 5 st. of 6 l.; and (2) "O Holy Lord, our God" (On behalf of Ministers), No. 952, in 4 st. of 7 l. Both are still in C. U.

Your harp, ye trembling saints, p. 1300, l. Another cento is "H, on a quiet sea." The text is considerably altered.

Z

Zeal for Christ which will not tire. A. Midlane. [Zeal for Christ.] Written Aug. 14, 1862, and printed in the London Messenger, Sept. 1864.

Zehner, Samuel, D.D., p. 54, li. 2. B. at Suhl in Thuringia, May 4, 1594; became pastor and superintendent at Schleusingen, 1632, and d. there April 27, 1635.

Zinzendorf, Nicolaus Ludwig, Count von, p. 1301, li. The Rev. J. T. Müller of Herrnhut, has kindly supplied the following additional notes to certain of Zinzendorf's hymns:—

i. Ach Sein von meinen Beinen, p. 1302, li. This is st. v., vi. of the hymn "Gedanken und Ideen, Ach die vorsetzigen," 1st pub. in his Kinderspielern, vol. vi., No. 3, dated Aug. 18, 1755.

x. Ich bin ein kleines Kindlein, p. 1303, l., 1st appeared as an App. to the catechism, Laudere Mili der Wahrheit von Jesu Christo, pub. in June 1723.

xvi. Ruht aus von eurer Mühe, p. 1303, li. Written Feb. 6, 1737, at London, on receiving the news of the death of some of the Brethren on the island of St. Thomas.

xix. Wenn sich die Kinder freuen, p. 1303, li., 1st pub. in Gemeintagslectionen, dated Jan. 12, 1752.

xxv. Du laug geliebter Erlöser der Sünder, p. 1304, l. Written for the birthday of his daughter Benigna (p. 709, li., No. 40), Dec. 28, 1735.

xxxiii. Schau von deinem Thron, p. 1304, li. Written in December 1720 for his cousin Theodora (see No. xxxvi. at p. 1306, l.). The initial letters of li. 1-30 form the acrostic Sophia Theodora Græfin zu Castell; and the initial letters of li. 31-36 were intended to represent "Friede sei mit dir verliebte Schwester."

The following notices were omitted in error:—

Sachs, Hans, the famous German poet and shoemaker, was b. at Nürnberg, Nov. 5, 1494; settled there in 1516 after his journeyman wanderings, and d. there on the evening of Jan. 19, 1576 (see full notices in K. Gosdeke's Grundriss, vol. li., 1886, pp. 468-437; Allg. deutsche Biog., xxx., 115, &c.). His poetical works were collected at Nürnberg in 3 vols., folio, 1652-61 (vol. 4, 1578; vol. 5, 1579); and a complete ed. of his works is now being pub. by the Literary Union of Stuttgart, of which vol. xvii. appeared in 1884. His pre-Reformation hymns are given by Wackernagel, li., Nos. 1403-1410; and his post-Reformation hymns by Wackernagel, li., Nos. 83-106. Two of his hymns (Wackernagel, li., Nos. 83, 97) have been tr. by Sp. Coverdale, 1539 (see p. 442, li., Nos. 16, 57); and two others (Wackernagel, li., Nos. 86, 82) by Miss Winkworth, 1869, pp. 131, 134. See also p. 1234, l., and p. 1543, li. [J. M.]

Salis-Beewis, Johann Gaudenz, Baron von, was b. Dec. 26, 1762, at the castle of Bodmer (Bothmar), near Malans, Grisons, Switzerland. From 1779 to 1792 he was an officer in the French army; and after 1798 he held various offices connected with the Swiss Militia, and with his native canton. He d. at Bodmer, Jan. 29, 1834, and was buried at Seewis, near Malans (Allg. Deutsche Biog., xxx., 215, &c.). His Poems appeared as his Gedichte at Zürich, 1793; 2nd ed., 1794; 3rd, 1797; 4th, 1800; 4th enlarged ed., 1803; new ed., 1806 [all in Berlin Library], and many later eds. The most famous of his poems is "Das Grab ist tief und still" (in his Gedichte, 1793, p. 34, entitled "The Grave, 1783"), of which there are at least 7 trs. into English. The only one in English C. U. as a hymn is:—

Ina stille Land! Wer leitet uns hinüber. For the Dying. 1st pub. in his Gedichte, Neue Auflage, Zürich, 1806, p. 146, in 3 st. of 7 l., each ending "Ina stille Land." In his Gedichte, Cologne, 1816, p. 134. The tr. in C. U. is:—

Into the Silent Land! Ah! who shall lead us thither. In full by H. W. Longfellow in his Voices of the Night, Cambridge, U. S., 1810, p. 141, repeated in the later eds. of his Poetical Works. Included in Hodge and Huntington's Hym. for the Church of Christ, 1853, and many later American collections. It has been retranslated into Greek verse by Dr. B. H. Kennedy, in his Between Waffles, 1877. There are at least three other versions in English. [J. M.]
